FAITH CONDUCTS A YEAR 'ROUND SCHOOL FOR CHILDREN

In some school districts, the problem of overcrowded classrooms has been alleviated by a year 'round rotation system, in which some children will spend the summer, or most of it, in school. However, when they do have their vacation, they should not be allowed to forget such things as manners, discipline, and above all, faith. The latter is especially important at this time, because regardless of what the schools do, the Sunday schools are closed for the summer; and this makes it easy for the children to forget what they learned during the rest of the year. Faith is a year 'round curriculum, so whether the children are at home or in school, they should be taken to the House of Worship; where they will be reminded of it.

We can't give our children the future
...but we can give

people on the 15-member board of directors are farmers. Five members are University of Minnesota faculty.

Wyse views the structure as an opportunity to build trust between the university and people living in rural Minnesota. Before the institute was formed, most people thought the university had little interest in sustainable agriculture, he said.

The institute is in the developing stage as directors decide which areas of sustainable agriculture should be studied, he said.

Wyse, a native of Wauseon, Ohio, has a bachelor's degree in agronomy from Ohio State University and master's and doctorate degrees in agronomy from Michigan State University. He joined the University of Minnesota in 1974 and is a professor of weed science in the Department of Agronomy and Plant Genetics.

Richard Jones, dean of the College of Agriculture, said Wyse is respected nationally for his expertise and innovation in weed science.

"I am confident that he will bring those same attributes to sustainable agriculture," Jones said. "The institute is unique among sustainable agriculture efforts, and I am excited that it can help us address urgent issues in the agricultural industry."

The Times' Editorial Opinion

What's the issue here?

Vice President Dan Quayle was given the dubious task of refocusing the political campaign toward "family values" and away from the riots in Los Angeles.

Social values have been changing for — oh let's say the past decade or two — much to the chagrin of — oh, let's just say "some" people. And, as those values have shifted, the media has followed those changes and as a result the general public's interest in crime and punishment have also increased. So, in the spirit of Dan Quayle's vague message, let's just assume that most Americans are in favor of family, flag and law and order.

Never mind that Quayle never defined "family" and never mind the fact that he alienated a large number of people who come from single-parent families or are single parents struggling to make ends meet. And, never mind that although most of us grew up with the "Cosby's" or "Leave It To Beaver" our family lives never even came close to the successful single family show called "Murphy Brown". For that matter, should we measure our real life experiences with that of fictional television characters?

What should be asked is, why this issue was even raised at this time? It cannot be ignored that the Bush administration's, dare I say bold new political campaign issue came at a time when the nation's focus on this country's economic woes was hurting Bush in the polls.

The real culprit in Quayle's "poverty of values" message should have been poverty. Rioters in Los Angeles perceive the justice or lack of justice meted out in the Rodney King case as an example of the deepening rift between the haves and the have nots. Has justice become an economic issue?

A friend of mine who tries to live on two part-time jobs without any real security asked me, "How can we expect someone's values to change for the better if they can't climb out of the gutter?"

There are many other issues Quayle should have or could have taken a stand on. This country does need to support family, flag and the American way, but our politicians must first deal with the greater inequities and more serious issues created by our ailing economy.

Letting Go

Letting go, I mean really letting go, like letting go of a child is something very difficult to do. A friend who has a son graduating from high school said, "it seems like only yesterday that I was taking my son to little league baseball games.

There was one in particular that he remembers well. It was one of those father and son deals that every father dreams of. His son was 8 years old and the father was still enjoying being a father.

They were driving down a residential road when a truck suddenly pulled out in front of them. As he slammed on the brakes, he put his hand out to protect his son from hitting the dash-board or windshield. He held on to his son so tight that he left bruises on his little body.

The point being that sometimes in trying to protect the ones you love, being a father and or mother means hurting the ones you love.

It's not easy to let them go — to face all the dangers in the world that you already know exist. You still want to protect them with every ounce of strength in your body, even if it hurts them.

Good luck parents and graduates.

LETTERS

To the Editor:

(A letter to the Chamber of Commerce, City of Thief River Falls)

We had occasion to have 20 Good Sam Trailers and Motor Homes stay at your campground on the May 15, 16, 17 and 18 Canadian long weekend. The Thief River Falls campground is really a beautiful spot and since the campground has been enlarged it is even that much better. The addition this year of the new washrooms and showers is very much appreciated by all Good Sam members.

On Friday, May 15, we received a visit from your Julie Olson and Mr. Dave Strong. They presented to us, on behalf of the Chamber, "Goody Bags" containing notification of up and coming events and coupons for some of the local stores and businesses. These were distributed to all visitors in the camp until we ran out of material. Everyone stated their appreciation for such thoughtfulness on your part.

Wherever we went during our shopping excursions we met with friendly clerks who went out of their way to help us. Our thanks too to the Management and staff of the Best Western on Highway 32. They quickly arranged to feed breakfast to over 40 of us on Sunday morning and allowed us to have a short but essential meeting in the same room immediately after. The food and hospitality shown to us is unmatched. We were most certainly made to feel "WELCOME" in Thief River Falls, and you can rest assured that the Manitoba Goldeyes Good Sam Club will return to your fair city in the near future.

Manitoba Goldeyes Good Sam Club

To the Editor:

Is there nothing that we as citizens can do to halt the consolidation and mechanization of our country. Every time that the Government messes with something to make it bigger and better they throw more and more people out of work. If the trend keeps on, who will be left working and paying taxes?

This time I will just write about the post office. They tell us that this new machinery really speeds up the sorting of the mail. I have a daughter living in a St. Paul suburb whose birthday was May 25. Well, I studied my calender and saw that the 25th was red so no mail would be delivered that day nor Sunday, so I decided that she should get it if I mailed it on Friday, that would allow it two working days, but just to be safe I mailed it on Thursday the 21st. I'll bet that you just guessed it. She didn't get it until the 26th.

And then there was last Christmas. My niece in North Carolina sent me a Christmas gift. She made a mistake and sent it to my former address. Well the rules say that they can't forward mail longer than six months so here I am living just a few blocks away and my gift goes back to North Carolina. If this is efficiency, do we want it? I could understand it if I had moved out of town, but in this computer age it should not be difficult to keep track of the local people.

Yours for better mail service,
Donella Larson

Rural Pupils in Music Festival

"A rain and hail storm last Thursday evening prevented the expected large attendance at the Pennington county rural school music festival in the Auditorium, but the 150 pupils who, with their parents, assembled for the occasion had an enjoyable time. All the pupils participated in twelve choral numbers directed by Miss Judith Lockrem, county superintendent. The program also included numbers by the Goodridge high school girls sextet, rhythm band of District 64, a fonette solo by Duane Hanson of District 68 and a trombone solo by Lorraine Brossoit of North township, accompanied on the piano by Jean Senstad."

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

St. Hilaire, Polk County, Minnesota June 8, 1892

From Newspaper Files of One Hundred Years Ago

Ringling Bros. Circus

"The SPECTATOR takes pleasure in announcing to its readers that while the famous Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows will not be seen in this place during the present season, arrangements have been made with the railroad authorities by which all who desire to go to Crookston where this aggregation exhibits Thursday June 16th can do so at greatly reduced rates. A visit to this biggest of great shows will constitute a gala day long-to-be-remembered, and, besides, it will furnish an opportunity for seeing the grandest exhibition in the world. Under the largest tents ever constructed will be shown the finest zoological collection on earth including two great herds of performing elephants, a whole drove of camels, the largest living hippopotamus, a magnificent Percheron stallion with a mane nine feet in length, a complete horse fair containing 350 head of high-bred horses, and a circus performance embracing more high-salaried performers than any other two shows can boast, the best bareback riders in the world and the most exciting chariot and other races ever seen under canvas. A grand street procession occurs at 10 o'clock when among many other novel features there will be exhibited free: a mammoth highway locomotive drawing one section of the parade— a magnificent reproduction of Moscow's Kremlin Tower with its chimes of sweet sounding bells and a full mile of other wonders, such as no other show in the world has ever exhibited."

Strandquist School

The last week at the Strandquist school has been quite eventful and we appreciate the news of our junior citizens. We have received calls from folks near and far away who enjoyed reading it this past year. We hope to have more this fall when they return.

The Tri-County students of Strandquist elementary presented "Some Silly Songs to Celebrate Spring" on Thursday, May 21, at 1:30 p.m. Mrs. Englund's music students gave their musical selections to an audience of parents, grandparents, and special friends. It was very enjoyable. Following the concert the third grade students were presented with diplomas in recognition of their year in Strandquist elementary. We will miss the third grade students and wish them luck in their years at Karlstad elementary.

Nicholas Schindele and his second grade classmates are happy to announce the arrival of Evan Douglas Schindele who was born to their teacher and her husband, Jayne and Doug Schindele on Tuesday, May 19. The second graders have been anxiously waiting for him to arrive. Aaron Stusynski won the baby contest in the second grade and all of his guesses were the closest. He was only off 6 minutes in guessing the arrival of Evan.

Friday, May 22, track ribbons were awarded to all the students who participated in the elementary track meet on May 13. We are very proud of all the students who worked so hard to do their best. We appreciate their efforts.

This marks the end of our first year at Tri-County/Strandquist. It has been a very memorable year and very enjoyable for all of us. We would like to thank all the people who helped make the transition such a success and we'll see you next year.

Shirley Anderson drove to the Cities on Monday to bring Jenny, who has attended Hamline university this past year, home for the summer. Shirley stayed at Stuart Bernard's home while there. On Tuesday she visited Beth Castleman in Shakopee and on Wednesday Shirley and Jenny visited Pastor and Mrs. Miles of Staples on their way home.

Jenny Anderson spent Wednesday night with Owen and Diane Hagen in Grygla.

Joyce Sjodin of Grafton, ND and Marion Nyflot of Lake Bronson visited Mary and Donna Renstrom after attending the Strandquist Senior Citizen meeting on Thursday.

Peter and Pearl Thompson and Elsie Lefrooth accompanied Isaac and Betsy Thompson to Red Lake Falls to attend the graduation exercises of Nicole Thompson, the daughter of Richard and Carol Thompson. Later they enjoyed refreshments at the Richard Thompson residence in Red Lake Falls.

Elmer and Anna Holmstrom and Ellen Stromberg visited Frank Kleinvachter's on Friday evening.

The American Legion is having a Memorial Day program on Monday, May 25th, at 10:30 a.m. at the Strandquist school. Dinner will be served after the program at 11:00 until 2 o'clock. We hope you all come and show our dedication for our soldiers, living and dead.

George Rasmussen celebrated his 93rd birthday on Wednesday the 13th, with friends and relatives in Walker, where he is living with Glen and Audrey Rasmussen. Rev. Virgil and Ruth Rasmussen came a couple of days early from Minneapolis with pie etc., to see him. Virgil and Ruth had spent a couple of weeks in Seattle visiting their son, Nathan Rasmussen, who is scheduled to return as a missionary to Tanzania, Africa this week. LaVerne Rasmussen of Chicago, is planning to bring George up here the 1st or 2nd of June, to spend some time "at home" in Karlstad.

Gladys Nelson and son, Daryl, from Minneapolis, spent from Wednesday to Saturday visiting her brother, Earl, and his wife, Ebba Sihlberg. While there Joyce Bothum from Kennedy came to visit with them also. Others who visited them were the Donovan Donarski family, Art Kleinvachter, and Viola Fredricks.

Mickey Egstad of Grand Forks telephoned Earl Sihlberg to say that Dave Egstad had a triple by-pass, but now is doing very well. Dave is well known around here, and we wish him the best of health.

The Strandquist Junior citizens are hanging it up for the next three months or so, but we have appreciated hearing from them almost each week this year. Thanks so much to all those who have helped getting the news to me. I hope you all have a delightful summer vacation and I'll see you in the fall.

The Tri-County/Strandquist students visited the Karlstad Nursing Center and the Karlstad Hospital on Tuesday, May 12. They sang their favorite song for the residents of the nursing center and toured the Karlstad Hospital. They visited the different areas of the hospital including the lab, the X-ray room, surgery, and the emergency room. We received balloons and other items from the hospital. We would like to thank the nursing home and the hospital for allowing us to visit them.

The elementary track meet was held on Wednesday, May 13, at the Tri-County football field. The elementary competed in various events such as frisbee throw, softball throw, long jump, and various running events. We had our sack lunches at Moose Park, and all of us enjoyed the day.

All the students at Tri-County/Strandquist are practicing for their music program to be held at the school on Thursday, May 21, at 1:30 in the afternoon. This will be a special day for our third graders, who are spending their last days with us at the Strandquist school, and will transfer to the Karlstad Elementary next fall. We'll miss them all. Thanks to all who made this year a wonderful one for all of us.

The Strandquist Senior Citizens met on Thursday the 13th, at the Center with 19 members and one visitor present. A short business meeting was held with Lorraine Setten, elected as secretary, to replace Ruth Harper, who passed away this winter. The afternoon was spent tying rugs. Quite a number were taken care of. The hostess was Helen Jacobson and the winner of the door prize was Louis Lofstrom.

Post 2793 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars donated $200 to assist German language students at Lincoln high school with expenses for a study trip to Germany this summer. Brad Cota, who will be one of the students making the trip, accepts the donation from post commander John Ellison.

INSURANCE Update
by Dee Schmidtgall
Most business owners must differentiate between risks which they must insure, and those which are essentially "business risks". The latter usually consists of risks that are fairly predictable, preventable, and there is a low potential for loss. In contrast, it would be poor business judgement to "self insure" the larger, unpredictable risks with the reasoning that the premium is too high. The cost of premiums pales beside the cost associated with an uninsured loss. While it is impractical to insure a business against every conceivable type of loss, it makes good business sense to insure for the potentially large losses.

Pucker up to a Holstein and you're likely to get a licking. Region I Dairy Princess Jana Kiecker took this tongue lashing from one of her favorite cows in the Kiecker Dairy Farm herd.

When it's snack time at the Bud and Cielle Kiecker farm east of McIntosh, dairy products usually find their way to the table. Region I Dairy Princess Jana plays hostess to her mom and dad and brother Kevin, serving vegetables with dip, cheese and crackers and milk.

While handling milking chores at the Kiecker Dairy Farm east of McIntosh, Northwest Dairy Princess Jana Kiecker connects a milker unit to the vacuum and milk transfer pipelines.

Just a little taste of ice cream is shared with Region I Dairy Princess Jana Kiecker by Belle Kaupang, 102-year-old resident of Pioneer Memorial Home at Oklee where Jana works this summer as a registered nurse's aide.

Jana frequently assists her father, Lauris (Bud) Klecker with the bookkeeping in his home business of working with investments. Bud's office is just off the kitchen of the expanded and remodeled farm home, making it quick for him to go from supper table to computer.

Region I Dairy Princess Jana Klecker is no stranger to the dairy barn. For six months last year she handled morning and evening milking for the 80-cow herd of neighbors Tim and Dave Rolf. It was an easy eight-hour-a-day job—from 4 to 8 a.m. and 4 to 8 p.m. 12 days in a row, then a weekend off. Here she is shown in the Klecker family's own dairy barn.

Friends are welcome at the Klecker Dairy Farm east of Mcintosh where Northwest Dairy Princess Jana Klecker is one of the family members.

Lifting weights is one of Jana Klecker's hobbies, but they don't usually come in such a furry package. Reigning Northwest Dairy Princess, Jana was moving this calf to a pen in the Klecker Dairy Farm barn.

A brief summary of dairy cow breeds

Following is a summary of each of the five most common dairy cow breeds as provided by the American Dairy Association of Minnesota. No summary was given for the Milking Shorthorn breed:

HOLSTEIN (Holstein-Freisian) cows are the black and white cows most frequently seen in Minnesota. Originating in the Netherlands and northern Germany, they are the largest dairy cows in size, weighing about 1,350 pounds. Their milk is about 3.6 per cent butterfat and 3.2 per cent protein. They give an average of 6.4 gallons or 55 pounds of milk per day. Occasionally, Holsteins are red and white, and these are also officially classified as Red and White Holsteins.

JERSEY cows are the second most popular breed in the state. They weigh about 900 pounds. They mature earlier than other breeds and are brown in color, ranging from light to dark and occasionally having white spots. Their milk is rich and creamy with 4.9 per cent butterfat and 3.8 per cent protein, and they give about 4.5 gallons or 39 pounds of milk per day. They came to Minnesota originally from the island of Jersey.

GUERNSEY cows are an orange-red breed often having white legs and white areas on the body. They weigh about 1,100 pounds. They are noted for their rich golden milk due to carotene or Vitamin A, as part of their diet. Their milk is about 4.7 per cent butterfat and 3.6 per cent protein. This breed is from the Isle of Guernsey in the English Channel. They give about 4.6 gallons or 39 pounds of milk per day.

BROWN SWISS vary in color from silver to dark brown. They are known for their strength and ruggedness and weigh about 1,300 pounds. Their milk averages about 4 per cent butterfat and 3.6 per cent protein, and they give about 5.3 gallons or 46 pounds of milk per day. They come from the Alps of Switzerland.

AYRSHIRE cows are a rusty-red and white. They weigh about 1,200 pounds. Their milk is 3.9 per cent butterfat. They originated in Scotland and were known as the "aristocrat of dairy breeds" due mainly to their large size. They give about five gallons or 43 pounds of milk per day.

The three-wheeler at the Kiecker Dairy Farm gets frequent use for a number of errands as well as recreation. Region I Dairy Princess Jana Kiecker and her brother Kevin enjoy a late afternoon ride.

Tossing hay bales is normal conditioning for Jana Kiecker at the family dairy farm. Royalty has no influence when there is work to be done, and this Northwest Dairy Princess is no stranger to strenuous farm work.

Field work is another one of the occasional farming duties for Jana Kiecker on her family's dairy farm east of Mcintosh. Jana was crowned Northwest Dairy Princess in Thief River Falls at the 1991 Northwest Dairy Day.

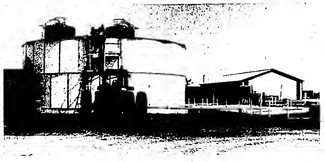
Milking parlor at the University of Minnesota Experiment Station's dairy barn will handle 10 cows at a time. Cows are individually identified by computer as they enter the parlor from adjacent loose housing, and their production is also measured by computer and the information transferred from the parlor to the nearby office. Milkers are equipped with automatic detachers which drop the milking units when each cow has been milked.

Calf pens in the dairy barn at the University of Minnesota's Northwest Experiment Station at Crookston are bedded with sunflower hulls and the barn is well lighted and ventilated.



Five months of manure storage is provided in two storage tanks at the University of Minnesota's Agricultural Experiment Station at Crookston. The large tank at left is 20 feet high and holds 175,000 gallons of liquid manure. The covered area in the foreground at right is 30x60 and eight feet deep. The manure is spread on neighboring crop fields.

Processors protect quality

Milk is transported to dairy processing plants in large, temperature-controlled trucks with vacuum tanks. Upon arrival at the plant, milk samples are taken again. The plant checks for added water, milkfat content, traces of animal medications, bacteria and other potential contaminants.

Before milk is pumped from a tanker into a milk plant silo, an onsite laboratory performs a rapid screening test, among other tests, to check for the presence of animal medications. If that test indicates positive for the presence of medications, another test is run to confirm the results. The entire tanker is rejected if traces are higher than regulatory standards or more stringent company requirements allow.

If the individual truckload tests positive, individual farm samples are tested to determine which farm is subject to penalties and further testing before future shipments of milk can be delivered to the plant.

During the processing stage, no procedure is more critically important to milk quality than pasteurization. During pasteurization, raw milk is heated to at least 161 degrees for a minimum of 15 seconds to destroy any harmful germs that may be present. Pasteurization is required by law for sale of fluid milk.

Retailers buy their milk from dairies that are certified by state and federal inspectors. The milk is shipped to retailers in accordance with FDA regulations, including keeping the milk at no warmer than 40 degrees. The milk is immediately refrigerated at the store—chilled in a case cooled from 34 to 40 degrees.

All dairy products are marked with a "sell-by" date, and although the products are considered to be safe for consumption up to one week after that date, retailers pull the expired products off the shelf.

Tilt table in the dairy barn at the Northwest Experiment Station in Crookston permits cows to be restrained, slowly tipped over on their sides and held in place while hooves are trimmed or other necessary work performed. They are then returned to an upright position and the restraints removed to allow them to walk away.

Sorghum-Sudangrass hybrids are useful forages

by Dr. George D. Marx
University of Minnesota,
Crookston

Research at Crookston and elsewhere in Minnesota has shown that the hybrid crosses of sudangrass with forage sorghum results in a satisfactory forage for livestock. Feeding trials with dairy animals at the Northwest Experiment Station indicate that animal performance on this hybrid forage, used as hay crop silage, is comparable or equal to conventional small grain forages such as oatlage and barlage. Triticale, another hybrid (cross between wheat and rye), is also of similar nutritional value in feeding trials.

However, the sorghum-sudangrass hybrids do not measure up to alfalfa in producing protein/acre, nutritive value (chemical analyses) nor in milk producing ability with early lactation high producing animals. Using this hybrid as a replacement for part of the alfalfa in the diet of milking cows is satisfactory if the other part of the ration is adequately supplemented using additional protein and calcium and less fiber in the grain portion of the diet. Sorghum-sudangrass forages are excellent for yearlings, late lactation and dry cows.

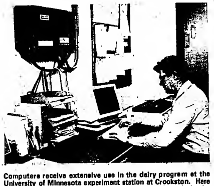
Occasionally, under conditions of moisture stress (drought), when plants are severely stunted or frost damage has occurred, there may be a chance of high prussic acid (HCN) levels in the plant. Levels over 750 ppm are toxic to livestock and should be diluted to acceptable levels. High nitrates may also occur under similar conditions and should be tested if questionable to determine if it is safe to feed. Generally, the toxicity of the hybrids is less of a problem than with the old type sudangrass.

Precautions for avoiding livestock problems primarily involve grazing management. Allow 18 to 24 inches of growth before grazing and do not allow hungry cattle to excessively graze material recovering from a drought or frost. Usually by the time forage is ready for silage or haymaking it is safe in prussic acid levels, particularly with the newer hybrids.

These hybrids are best suited for silage and – because of the heavy stems – are difficult to dry for hay. Multiple cuttings can be obtained and under normal conditions one can expect two to three crops per season. Ideal cutting height for maximum nutritional value is 36 to 40 inches tall. Protein decreases substantially and fiber increases as maturity advances beyond this stage, resulting in a lower quality forage.

Forage sorghum-sudan hybrids like warm weather. Once the soil warms up, and with a little moisture, the plants grow rapidly; however, this crop is more drought tolerant than traditionally grown forages such as corn and alfalfa. In general, these hybrids are good alternatives or can serve as an emergency crop if traditional forages are not available or when additional forage is needed. This is especially true in this area where several years of drought and winter injury have taken their toll on alfalfa.

At St. Dorothy's church in Dorothy, Sara Beyer plays the organ for mass, has been a lector and is a member of the youth group.



Computers receive extensive use in the dairy program at the University of Minnesota experiment station at Crookston. Here the herdsmen inputs information on individual cattle in the station's modern dairy barn. Production of individual cows is recorded automatically as they are milked in the nearby milking parlor.

Real seal more familiar with shoppers

According to a recent logo study conducted for the United Dairy Industry Association, consumers in the North Central region, which includes Minnesota, and the Western United States scored highest in their ability to recognize the REAL Seal.

Nationally, [illegible] per cent of the 2,000 consumers tested are familiar with the REAL Seal. A record-high 47 per cent of those consumers can identify that the seal stands for real dairy products.

The test, conducted every year since 1980 when United Dairy Industry Association acquired the trademark rights to the seal, is conducted by showing respondents playing cards with various company logos. The respondents remove from the deck those cards representing familiar items. They then must identify what each familiar logo stands for.

According to the test results, awareness of the seal is somewhat higher among women than men although the gap has narrowed over time as more and more men do the grocery shopping.

Scores tend to decrease with age, the study also found. Current association scores range from a high of 84 per cent among 18-24 year-olds to a low of 47 per cent among adults 65 and over. Identification scores range from 67 per cent among those 18-24 to 24 per cent among those 65 years and over.

Consumer familiarity and identification of the seal are greatest for those earning $30,000 or more but are similar in all other income groups.

Production losses with mastitis

by George D. Marx,
University of Minnesota,
Crookston

High somatic cell counts are directly equated to production losses. Somatic cells are an indication of mastitis, particularly subclinical mastitis. There are a number of special tests that can be used to detect subclinical mastitis. The most popular tests are the California Mastitus Test (CMT) and Wisconsin Mastitis Test (WMT).

The one we have used for years at the Northwest Experiment Station is the CMT, a cowside test using the familiar CMT paddle with four compartments (one for each quarter) using a reagent to mix with the milk to determine the subclinical mastitis status of the cow immediately before going to sample the next cow.

The accompanying table presents the production loss and this can be related to exact dollar loss depending on the price of milk.

Somatic Cell Count and Production Loss

CMT Score	Avg. Somatic Cell Count	% Production Loss/Quarter	lb/Quarter Per Day
Neative	100,000	0	0.0
Trace	300,000	6	1.0
1	900,000	19	2.4
2	2,700,000	30	3.8
3	8,100,000	42	5.3

Production loss from high somatic cell count is a problem for both the dairyman and processor. The dairy producer loses production, milk producing potential, discarded milk and treatment expense. The loss by the processor includes lower quality, lower yield of products and a less desirable product for the consumer overall.

Most dairymen to not realize the severe economic losses because they either are unaware of the problem of subclinical mastitis in their herd or do not realize that counts about 300,000 cells/milliliter are costing them considerable dollars in lost milk potential. Therefore, dairymen should be alert to the SCC reports from the processor and take corrective action when the SCC exceeds this target or an unacceptable level.

To help keep the SCC in check or to reduce high levels of somatic cells one should observe the following practices:

(1) Use approved milking procedures including proper stimulation for milk letdown, udder washing and drying, don't overmilk and use a teat dip.

(2) Maintain the milking equipment properly, use the manufacturer's suggested recommendations for operation and use routine equipment tests.

(3) Use a screening test to aid in detection of problem cows. Cowside tests can be conducted or milk plants have an electronic somatic cell counter.

(4) Usually chronic mastitic cows, late lactation low producing cows are problem cows that carry high SCC. Cull the cows that continually have chronic mastitis.

(5) Treat all infected cows that have clinical mastitis and also dry treat cows with approved drugs as recommended by your veterinarian. Be sure to observe milk withholding (discard) times and slaughter regulations.

RED LAKE CO. DAIRY PRINCESS

Sara Beyer of rural Red lake Falls, Red Lake County Dairy Princess, will represent her county along with her two attendants at the Region I Dairy Princess contest June 8 at Bemidji. She will also show cattle at Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls June 9.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

When Sara Beyer of rural Red Lake Falls competed in the Red Lake County Dairy Princess contest in Brooks recently, it wasn't a new experience for the family. Her sisters Debbie, Barb, Chris and Lori all had been in prior county and regional contests, and Barb was an alternate to the regional princess.

Sara is the youngest of 12 Beyer children. The 550-acre dairy farm is operated by Sara's mother Jean and Sara's brothers Curt, Neil and Chip. Neil is married to Polly Schmitz of Red Lake Falls and lives in nearby Dorothy while Curt and Chip are single and live on the farm. Jean's husband, Chester, died in 1976.

The dairy operation consists of about 75 head of registered and grade Holstein cows with a trend toward more registered animals. There are about 185 head of cattle on the farm, including replacement heifers, youngstack and dairy steers. The Beyers raise their own replacements for the milking herd.

On the latest DHIA test, the Beyer herd of 76 cows (with 86 per cent in milk) had an average production of 20,408 pounds of milk, 715 pounds of butterfat and 616 pounds of protein. Among the top animals were two in their fourth lactation, one of which had a 305-day record of 24,940 pounds of milk, 863 pounds of butterfat and 745 pounds of protein and the other a record of 25,085 pounds of milk, 884 pounds of fat and 758 pounds of protein.

Sara, 18, graduated May 22 from Lafayette high school in Red Lake Falls. She will attend St. Benedict college at St. Joseph in the fall to major in music.

At Lafayette Sara played trumpet and French horn in the school band and also served as piano accompanist, was a member of the show choir, president of the SADD chapter and local chapter of the National Honor Society, served on the student council several years and took part in school plays.

A member of the Global Studies program she has been host to a student from Spain for two months. She also participated in volleyball and basketball and graduated third scholastically in a class of 54 students.

A past treasurer, secretary and vice president of the Pembina Trail 4-H club in Red Lake county, she currently serves as club president. Her main 4-H projects have been in dairy and art.

For the past 10 years she has shown cattle at Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls and she has also shown at the Red Lake county fair, Red River Valley Winter Shows and Minnesota state fair.

She is a member of the youth choir at St. Dorothy's Catholic church where she also plays organ for mass, has been a lecter and a member of the youth group.

Sara is called on to help with the milking in the evening and on weekends and also assists with haying and harvest. She will also feed calves and do other chores, including caring for some of the youngstock which is kept at Neil's place at Dorothy.

The Beyers have had a milking parlor since 1959 but in the past several years have installed a milking system with automatic detochers on the milkers.

Cattle on the Beyer farm are fed haylage, corn silage, long hay and grain in the feed bunks and the cattle are also fed grain in the milking parlor. Corn and barley are grown on the farm for the feed mix and soybean meal and brewer's grain are also used in the feed ration.

All of the Beyer children have shown cattle at Northwest Dairy Day with the exception of the first daughter, Vicki, who died of cancer at the age of eight in 1962.

The other children include Greg, serving in the air force in Texas; Debbie Forness, living at Climax; Barb Arctz, living at Lanesboro; Curt, at home; Chris Beyer, living at St. Cloud; Neil, living at Dorothy; Chip, at home; Tim, living in Hopkins; Lori Thomas, living in Crookston; Robin Beyer, living in Dorothy; and Sara, at home.

Jean Beyer has 17—make that 18—grandchildren. Ted and Lori Thomas recently became the parents of a baby girl, Erin Marie.

Sara and her Red Lake county dairy princess attendants—Dixia Koskela and Jennifer Walter—will compete in the Region I princess contest Monday, June 8, in Bemidji.

One of Sara Beyer's pastimes is playing the organ and piano at the farm home just east of Dorothy in western Red Lake county.

Consumers can help milk quality

Consumers play a crucial, yet often overlooked, role in keeping dairy products safe and good tasting. All consumers should follow a few simple precautions such as the following.

- When shopping, examine containers for leaks or other damage. Also, check the "sell-by" dates.
- Pick up dairy products and other perishable foods just prior to checking out of the grocery store. Then take the products home immediately and refrigerate.
- Keep your refrigerator at 40 degrees or colder.
- Refrigerate milk and other similar dairy products in their original containers. After opening, close containers tightly.
- Do not pour leftover milk that has been standing at room temperature back into the original container.

Doni Loeslie poised for Minnesota pageant

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Doni Loeslie says the purpose of pageants is to help the contestants to develop themselves as individuals, but she doesn't take that purpose selfishly or personally.

"It's a two-way street," states Miss Thief River Falls 1991, who leaves Friday, June 12, for the Miss Minnesota Pageant in Austin. "You develop yourself by giving to others, and I believe that's what I have tried to do as Miss Thief River Falls and will try to continue to do in the future."

She said she can't remember ever not wanting to be in a pageant and that as a reigning community representative she never felt that she wasn't representing this community. "Whether you're making a public appearance in crown and banner or just going about your regular routine, you're never out of character," she said.

As a result of the goals she has set for herself and the responsibility she believes her role entails, she has been spending about six hours a day in state pageant preparation. That includes about two hours a day working on the dance she will use as her talent number—although she has performed the same dance for the past four years.

"Dance is an expression of yourself," she said, "and the dance will change as your outlook and attitudes change. I do a lot of video taping and studying the tape to see where I can make changes to improve the performance."

As the number 10 contestant among 26 entrants in the state pageant, she will be the first performer in the White group as the candidates are divided into Red, White and Blue groups for preliminary competition. All candidates will have personal interviews Tuesday, June 16, and the White group will compete in evening gown on Wednesday, June 17; talent on Thursday, June 18; and swimsuit on Friday, June 19. Ten finalists will compete in the state pageant Saturday, June 20, when the new Miss Minnesota will be selected.

If preparation is a key to success, Dani should have a lock on being successful. She began dancing at the age of seven and from

Proposed Pennington County Commissioner Districts

County districts change for next general election

Filing for positions on the county board open on July 7. Before the filing date opens, residents should be aware of changes in the districts for county commissioners.

Re-districting maps, which will be used in next November's elections, were approved this spring. As a result of the number of changes in the map, all of the positions on county board will be on the election ballot. Two of the positions, second and fourth district, however, are for two-year terms instead of four-year terms.

Following the last census, the boundaries for the city and county election districts were changed. The city eliminated one precinct from each of its five wards. Instead of three precincts per ward, there are now only two.

After the city approved its redistricting map, the county prepared its map for county commissioners. County commissioner districts which represented portions of the city of Thief River Falls had been based on the three precincts per ward that the city had used prior to the acceptance of the new map. Therefore, the county election district map required some significant changes.

The following changes have been approved by the Pennington County board of commissioners.

The first district in Pennington county includes: Cloverleaf, Goodridge, Reiner, Kratka, Highlanding, Star, Mayfield, Deer Park and Hickory townships. It also includes the city precinct of 1A.

The second district in Penning-

Koop to not run in '92

Albert Koop, third district commissioner in Pennington county, has decided not to run for re-election.

Albert Koop has held the position of Third District Commissioner for almost 13 years— ever since taking over Edgar Naplin's term January 1, 1979. Koop said Monday in a Times interview, that he "felt it was time to give up and let someone else take a crack at it."

Koop, who is now 77-years-old, said being a county commissioner has been getting harder and harder, especially with all of the regulations being passed down from the state. The difficulties of the job and health problems he has had in the past couple of years convinced him to let someone else take over.

Koop said he was making his announcement at this time so that it would give others an opportunity to think about filing for the position before the filing period opens on July 7.

During his years of service to the county, Koop said he has enjoyed working with the county board. The most troubling issue he

Ninth District Legion convention opens Friday

Approximately 300 Legionnaires and Auxiliary members will meet in Thief River Falls for the 1992 American Legion 9th District Convention, beginning Friday, June 11 and ending Saturday, June 12.

The district convention is split into the American Legion Posts' convention and the American Legion Auxiliary Units' convention.

Several events open to the public are scheduled for Friday and Saturday. These events include a Flag Disposal Rites ceremony, a memorial service and a parade.

The Legion will sponsor the Flag Disposal Rites ceremony on Friday at 4 p.m behind American Legion Post 117. The public may bring worn-out flags to the Legion Club Rooms before the ceremony and the flags will be included in the service, said Sharon Odegaard, Auxiliary Unit 117 sergeant at arms and secretary.

Saturday at 11 a.m., the Legion and Auxiliary will hold a joint memorial service in the Lincoln High School auditorium. The service includes music by the Free Spirit Trio of Karlstad and a memorial address by retired Lt. Col. Al Sollom.

The Legion convention will hold a parade 4 p.m. Saturday. The Legion Posts and Auxiliaries will carry their colors in the parade. The Lincoln High School marching band will also participate. The parade will move east from the Sports Arena on Highway 59, north on Horace Avenue and west on 4th Street, back to the Sports Arena.

After the parade, at 5 p.m., the Elks will sponsor a Flag Day ceremony in Elks Park. The Lincoln High School marching band will perform at the ceremony.

The Legion last held its 9th District convention in Thief River Falls in 1986. Attendance was approximately 400.

Last year, the Legion held the convention in Warren. The Legion selects cities for the convention on a rotating basis, Odegaard said, with Legionnaires volunteering their city and a consensus vote taken by district Legionnaires.

John Columbus, 9th District Commander, will preside over the convention. District President Jeanette Kava will preside over the Auxiliary meetings.

Legion convention registration opens at 6 p.m. Thursday at the Legion Club Rooms. The 9th District Executive Board will meet at the Legion Club Rooms 9 a.m. Friday.

Regular Legion convention meetings will begin at 1 p.m. Friday in the City Auditorium. Registration will occur again from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Columbus will call the convention to order.

Wayne Krantz, district sergeant at arms, will lead the Pledge of Allegiance. Marvin Johnson, district chaplain, will give the invocation. Columbus will state the preamble to the Constitution. Vernon Lee, district adjutant, will give the convention call.

Greetings will be given by Thief River Falls Mayor Bob Reeve, Post 117 Commander Joe Forberg and convention chairman Jerry Odegaard.

The following are area residents who chair committees and will give reports:

Resolutions Committee, Bob Reeve of Thief River Falls; Sons of the American Legion Committee, Floyd Fredricksan of Thief River Falls; Godfathers Committee, Bob Reeve.

After the reports are given, the convention will recess until 9 a.m. Saturday. Post 117 Color Guard will perform a flag disposal ceremony at 4 p.m. and there will be a Past Commanders and Presidents Dinner at 6 p.m.

Final convention registration will be open Saturday, June 13, from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. in the City Auditorium.

The Legionnaires will vote for National Convention delegates and for 1992-93 officers Saturday. Bob Reeve will give the Resolutions Committee report.

At 11 a.m. the convention will convene for the joint memorial service. The convention will hold lunch at noon in the Post 117 Club Rooms. The convention will reconvene at 1:15. Legionnaires will complete their reports and Reeve will lead the installation of 1992-93 officers.

Kids Kollectibles music group performs at library

Kids Kollectibles "Karacters"™ Bernie the Bear and Friends will perform musical stories at the Thief River Falls public library Wednesday, June 17, at 2 p.m. This program is presented free of charge and is also being held in conjunction with the registration day program for the public library's "All Star Kids" summer library program.

"Kids Kollectible Koncerts and Karacters" are produced by Playground Publishing, Inc., a children's publishing and production company which incorporates educational concepts, self-esteem and good old-fashioned fun into all its products and productions. The two-person concert is presented by veteran teachers, Gail Benson and Penny Andrist, who dress in appropriate costume for their concerts. Their repertoire includes original songs from rap to rock and roll to ballads. These songs teach not only letters of the alphabet and word associations, but also important concepts and facts. Their songs also include a great deal of audience participation and positive self-image building in children. As such, their appeal is to a broad age range.

Andrist and Benson, who both hold Masters degrees in education, met while working as remedial skills team teachers in a kindergarten resource room seven years ago. To help their students grasp the alphabet, they took each letter, developing a character around the letter and exciting contemporary music that character could use to demonstrate that letter. For example, Bernie the Bear sings songs with the letter B. The combination of character, music and movement proved to be a winning one which reached children formerly labelled hyperactive and uncooperative as well as those who were just having a difficult time in the beginning skills in reading.

In time, the two women had developed a vivid character with all the personality traits and habits with which children are familiar. They do so by using such ordinary events in a child's day as dirty socks, runny noses which prefer shirt sleeves to tissues and an aversion to bath water. Since all of these things are things to which children can relate, their audiences immediately take to them and learn reading and concept skills quickly without realizing they're doing anything except having a good time.

Four years ago, the two women decided it was too difficult to both teach and handle their ever-expanding concert and workshop career. So they quit their jobs in the public school system and formed Playground Publications, in which they promote their musical alphabet tapes, coloring books and children's cookbooks. For the past 2 1/2 years, they have travelled throughout the United States presenting workshops and training sessions to elementary school teachers, parents groups, preschool educational associations and day care providers while also presenting continuing education classes for the University of North Dakota. Their first love is, however, children. "How to help a child live up to his or her own individual potential -- that's what we're striving for," notes Andrist.

For more information on this concert, contact the Thief River Falls public library.

Dear Readers,
Occasionally we have family members take part in the funeral service. A favorite poem may be read, intimate feelings shared, or a brief eulogy given. It never ceases to be a very heartwarming part of the service and a personal declaration of love. Although most of us are not prepared for such participation, it can be arranged if desired.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home
Larry Belmont

Plans being made for 4-H

Barb Natvik and JoAnn Widing have been secured as managers for the 4-H food stand which will operate for the second year out of independent facilities at the Pennington county fair this year.

A separate building was constructed prior to the fair last year and the first year's operation went very well, according to Van Swanson, Pennington county 4-H club agent. Prior to construction of the building the 4-H operated the concession area in the balcony area of the Huck Olson Memorial Center.

Scheduling of workers is being arranged and club leaders are to list their volunteer workers with the county extension office by July 3. A work schedule for clubs has been sent with the June 4-H Newsletter. Members working in the stand must be 13 years of age and older. A malted milk stand will also be operated by the 4-H clubs where younger workers may participate.

Each family with members in the 4-H club program is asked to donate two fruit pies (no cream pies are accepted) for sale in the food stand. They should be brought to the stand the morning of the day the family members will be working there.

Persons with questions may contact either of the managers or Van Swanson or Deb Zak at the county extension office.

Dear Readers,
Occasionally we have family members take part in the funeral service. A favorite poem may be read, intimate feelings shared, or a brief eulogy given. It never ceases to be a very heartwarming part of the service and a personal declaration of love. Although most of us are not prepared for such participation, it can be arranged if desired.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home
Larry Belmont

Plans being made for 4-H

Barb Natvik and JoAnn Widing have been secured as managers for the 4-H food stand which will operate for the second year out of independent facilities at the Pennington county fair this year.

A separate building was constructed prior to the fair last year and the first year's operation went very well, according to Van Swanson, Pennington county 4-H club agent. Prior to construction of the building the 4-H operated the concession area in the balcony area of the Huck Olson Memorial Center.

Scheduling of workers is being arranged and club leaders are to list their volunteer workers with the county extension office by July 3. A work schedule for clubs has been sent with the June 4-H Newsletter. Members working in the stand must be 13 years of age and older. A malted milk stand will also be operated by the 4-H clubs where younger workers may participate.

Each family with members in the 4-H club program is asked to donate two fruit pies (no cream pies are accepted) for sale in the food stand. They should be brought to the stand the morning of the day the family members will be working there.

Fersons with questions may contact either of the managers or Van Swanson or Deb Zak at the county extension office.

35th Inventors Congress in Redwood Falls

Inventors will congregate at the 35th anniversary Minnesota Inventors Congress (MIC), June 12-14, at the Redwood Valley School in Redwood Falls. A variety of events for inventors and congress attendees will celebrate Inventors Week as proclaimed by Governor Carlson.

At a reception in her honor last Thursday evening at the Elks club rooms in Thief River Falls, Doni Loeslie modeled the wardrobe she will use as Miss Thief River Falls in the Miss Minnesota Pageant next week in Austin.

Queen Doni enters Miss Minnesota Pageant

sixth grade through a senior in Warren high school she devoted about 40 hours a week to dance, traveling five days a week to Grand Forks for lessons, rehearsals and performances. She danced with the Nancy Pasley School of Dance, the North Dakota Ballet company and the Judy Rae Dancers, now the North Dakota School of Performing Arts.

Other forms of pageant preparation include walking; cross-training with weights; riding a stationary bicycle with tensioned, moveable handlebars for arm, shoulder and back conditioning; reading and studying to keep up to date with current events and form opinions on major issues.

"That really takes the most time," she said of the studying. "I try to really concentrate when I watch television news and I try to get as much information as I can on current conditions in the country and the world."

Having completed her sophomore year at Concordia college in Moorhead, Doni is studying international relations and communications with an emphasis on organizational communications. She taught beginning ballet and jazz dance classes in Thief River Falls each Tuesday for about three months during the winter and spring.

She particularly remembers an extremely shy pre-school student who she had in a ballet class. She encouraged the girl to smile for her and emphasized that all students had to at least try to learn. Later the student's mother said that her daughter had gone from a shy, little girl who was sometimes brave to a brave little girl who was sometimes shy."

Although having her home at rural Warren and attending college in Moorhead, Doni said she had to turn down only one request to make a public appearance, "and that was for a parade scheduled the same day I had to leave for the Miss Minnesota Pageant," she said.

At a Girl Talk session March 14 in Austin she was able to meet all of the other candidates as they were entertained and provided information on what to expect at the state pageant. She found she will not be among strangers as she knew a number of the candidates, including Linda Smerek of Grygla, Miss Marshall County; Randy Potucek, a Warren high school graduate, who is Miss Warroad; Carla Beaurline, Miss Coon Rapids; and Jill Bender, Miss Rochester, among others.

Doni has competed in a number of other pageants, reigned as Miss Warren in 1987 and competed in the Miss Marshall County pageant in 1988. She said she earned scholarship money and valuable experience from being interviewed. She has also attended the Miss Minnesota pageant in person as a spectator since 1987 and is familiar with the procedures.

"I had two classmates in college who were going to have job interviews and they were in a panic because they didn't have any idea how to make out a resume' or have an interview," Doni said. "It made me feel good to be able to help them get ready for their interviews, based on the experience I have had with interviews myself."

The daughter of Donavon and Gloriane Loeslie of Warren, Doni is the youngest of five children. Her sisters are Lynn and Drue and her brothers are Dale and Kipp. Drue is married to Jeff Beaudry of Argyle and Kipp to Gerilyn Kuznia of Stephen. Lynn and Dale are also married and Doni has 12 nieces and nephews.

During spare time she likes to watch movies—especially old musicals—and she loves parks of all kinds. "Coming from a farm background, I think it is the open space and solitude of nature that I enjoy the most about parks," she said.

Anyone who wants to send a word of encouragement during the state pageant may address mail to Doni Loeslie, Miss Thief River Falls, c/o Miss Minnesota Pageant, P.O. Box 92, Austin, MN 55912. Mail will be picked up from the post office and distributed daily, according to pageant officials. Flowers may be sent to her at the Riverside Arena where the rehearsals and the preliminary and final pageants will be held.

The state pageant will not be televised this year, Doni said, but videotapes will be sold.

What are Doni's views of participating in the state pageant? As the actual participation nears the anticipation increases—"like waiting to watch someone open a gift you have given them at Christmas time," she said.

"But timing is everything and you have to be as well prepared as you can be when pageant time arrives. I want to represent Thief River Falls as well as I can and that means being fully prepared."

Doni says the only thing she insists on from her dance students is that they try. She expects no less of herself as she goes into the state competition this coming weekend.

For her personal 10-minute interview with the judges at the Miss Minnesota Pageant in Austin Tuesday, June 16, Doni Loeslie will wear this suit which she modeled at the reception in her honor last week at the Elks club rooms in Thief River Falls. She will participate in the state event as Miss Thief River Falls.

Speaking Of . . .

. . . Oh, to be a Kid Again

Oh, how I envy all of those children who have just been released from the musty, dusty halls of learning and are looking at nearly three months of freedom. I bet they don't know how lucky they are.

There is nothing worse than being a grown-up and sitting stuck inside on one of those sunny, balmy summer days when the clouds look like big puffs of cotton floating around on a bright blue sky, and the summer breezes are blowing just enough to make the leaves rustle and the grass ripple and leave a sweet smell in the air. Wouldn't you like to be a kid who just got out of school and have all summer to enjoy those days? I would.

I know if I could do it all over and be a kid again, I would never once say that I was bored during summer vacation. In fact, I can think of all sorts of things I would do during the summer if I were a kid again.

I would sit outside under a tree and read. When my eyes got tired I would close them, and listen to the leaves rustling and the birds singing, and maybe take a nap.

When I got thirsty I would get myself a glass of tart-sweet Kool-Aid with lots of ice in it and bring it out under the tree and sip it through a straw. Nothing tasted so good as the Kool-Aid there was when I was a kid.

I would play in the grass. I would roll around in it and get the fresh smell of it all over my clothes, so that I smelled like grass all day, never mind the stains. Grass stains were Mom's problem, when I was a kid.

I would eat popsicles at least once a day. These popsicles would taste like the ones the store had when I was a kid—not the hard icy ones they have now, but the ones that crumbled into juicy, cold, sweet grains after just a little sucking. I would alternate the flavors, cherry, orange, lime and raspberry.

I would go to the beach every day, and I would not get swimmer's itch or an earache, because the river water was clear and cool at the beach when I was a kid. And I didn't mind how I looked in a bathing suit when I was a kid, either, so when I got tired of being in the cool, clear water, I would spread out my towel on the warm sand and get tan. I wouldn't worry one bit about ultraviolet rays, because we didn't know about them when I was a kid.

When the sun got too hot, I would dig myself a hole in the sand and crawl right in. I would dig my fingers and toes into the cool part and feel cool all over. While I was cooling off, I might just make a sand castle, and it wouldn't fall apart, either.

I would ride my bike like the wind if I were a kid. I would never get tired legs or huff and puff when I rode my bike like the wind. I wouldn't look like I needed a larger bicycle seat if I were a kid.

I wouldn't watch television if I were a kid. We didn't have television until I was a teenager, and then there were no programs worth watching during the day.

I would go barefoot all day if I were a kid. I wouldn't mind the nicks and scratches I would get on my bare feet. I would just enjoy the feeling of the warm grass between my toes, and, sometimes, the squishy mud after a rain.

On summer days that it rained, I would stay inside and write a book. I would open the window wide so that I could smell the fresh smell that rain makes, and write. When I got writer's block, I would look out at the rain and the block would go away. By the end of the summer, I would have written a whole book.

faced during his years, he said, was the casino issue. "It was one of the more outstanding decisions to be made when the county board wasn't all together on the issue," he said.

During that troubling time, Koop stuck to what he thought was right. Throughout his years of service, Koop said he voted on what he thought was right for the entire county not just his district alone. As a result, some decisions were very hard to make.

Koop said he doesn't have any specific plans after he retires from public service. He retired from farming some time ago. All he has planned, he said, is to just sit back and enjoy retirement. Maybe, he said, he'll do a little traveling.

SWCD reminds farmers

Minnesota's new Wetland Conservation Act only applies when a landowner wants to drain or fill a wetland area. There is the perception that the act prohibits farming and grazing of wetlands that have been farmed and grazed for years. Actually, the only time the act might apply is if draining or filling wetlands is involved. Even then not all draining and filling is forbidden under the act.

For example, wetlands with a cropping history or those enrolled in the federal farm program are exempt from the act's provisions.

If a landowner/operator wants to drain or fill a non-exempt wetland, or isn't sure if a wetland is exempt or not, that is the time to check with the Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD).

A landowner violating the act can be required to restore the wetland or replace it elsewhere, in addition to paying up to a $700 fine.

The Marshall-Beltrami SWCD wants to remind farmers that a wetland may be exempt from the Wetland Conservation Act but still be regulated by the federal Army Corps of Engineers, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) or a local unit of government such as a county or watershed district.

The district now has a form that landowners or operators can use to notify all the involved agencies and governments.

Anyone who wants to work in a wetland should start at the SWCD office.

INSURANCE Update

by Dee Schmidigell

Any homeowner or renter who enjoys playing parlor games might ask all assembled players to write down a description of each of their personal possessions from memory. The enjoyment can be quickly taken out of this exercise when it becomes a compulsory part of taking an inventory after a burglary or a fire. Even if each possession could be properly recalled, it may be difficult or even impossible to produce a sales receipt. For these reasons, it's better to anticipate a loss by taking an inventory before it's needed. An inventory list should include a detailed description, serial numbers, purchase dates, initial cost, and replacement cost. Sales receipts should be included whenever available.

NORTHERN STATE AGENCY can provide you with an inventory form. At the office of NORTHERN STATE AGENCY we will discuss your policy and help you understand the scope of protection your coverage will provide. You will find our office conveniently located in the Northern State Bank building. To reach us call 681-4042. Office hours are available 8:30-4:30 Mon. - Fri.; 8:30-6:00 Thurs.

Hint: Perhaps the most efficient way to take an accurate inventory of one's possessions is with a video camera.

Engelman NCC coaching reign ends

by Sports Editor Mike Lundgren

Long-time Northland Community College men's basketball coach Chet Engelman will not be guiding the Pioneers in 1992-93, it was announced Friday by school officials.

Ironically, news that Engelman would not be retained as basketball coach comes after the Pioneers won their first-ever state tournament title in 1991-92 – his 22nd year at the two-year Thief River Falls school.

"Obviously I think Chet is an excellent coach – and the record shows it," said Sally Ihne, President of the Clearwater Community College Region that covers the campuses at Northland, Brainerd and Fergus Falls. "But we felt we needed some new direction in the program."

It was a decision that came from the Northland administration, which is headed by Provost Jim Haviland and Vice-Provost Sue Minnick.

"Ultimately I made the final decision," acknowledged Ihne. "It's unfortunate, because I consider Chet a good friend. But you cannot let personal feelings interfere with your professional duties, and I would not usually over-ride a decision made by the administration at each of the campuses if I felt it was an appropriate one."

Engelman and Haviland were not available for comment.

A Howard Lake native and University of Northern Colorado graduate, Engelman spent five years in California before arriving in Thief River Falls for the start of the 1970-71 season.

Northland struggled through a 3-19 season that first year under Engelman. But the school had its first winning season the following winter with a 13-12 record, and two years later won its first Northwest Division title – finishing with a state tournament debut third place trophy and a 20-5 record.

The 1973-74 basketball season also marked the first year of extensive use of out-of-state talent by Engelman. It was a team that featured David Dickey from Canton, OH; Joe Brown and Ralph Fitts, Inkster, MI; and Burnie Stephens, Jackson, MI. But it was a team that utilized local products, too. Tom Kays of Thief River Falls was one of the captains, and Bill Gusa of Middle River, along with David Kjos of Mahnomen, played key roles.

There were detractors when out-of-state players – most of them black – began filling rosters that were previously staffed almost entirely by local high school graduates. But Engelman maintained the talent flow from both sources to the point where state tournament berths were the norm rather then tho exception for Northland. The Northmen-turned-Pioneers made a name for themselves with their fast breaking, high-scoring offense that hit triple figures with astonishing regularity – often ranking among the national team scoring leaders.

The overall 334-193 Northland won-loss basketball mark for Engelman included 10 state tournament trophies – one title-winning effort, three runner-up finishes, three third place showings, and two consolation championships.

However, some insisted recruiting out-of-state players was an unnecessary measure for a small community college in northwestern Minnesota. And they felt their argument was re-enforced whenever names of Northland players appeared in police-related matters.

The Engelman coaching reign at Northland also included stints as head football and head baseball coach.

The official press release from Northland said Engelman will assume full-time teaching responsibilities with the psychology department this fall.

A search is currently underway for a new basketball coach – the second recent head coaching change at the school. Football coach Rick Nelson, who also serves as Northland Activities Director, was granted a one-year sabbatical for the 1992-93 school year. Gene Klinke was named as his successor in football, with Deb Jacobson taking on the duties of activities director.

Neither Nelson or Jacobson were involved in the decision-making process concerning the basketball coaching situation.

Jim Barry blasted his way out of the sand at the edge of the No. 9 green Friday during the Pepsi Pro-Am at the Thief River Golf Club. Barry was part of a championship team that also included Dennis Bakke, Gordy Peterson, Duane Lillevold and pro John Bowen.

Davis takes part in his fifth state meet

Joel Davis set a school record, but failed by 1/100th of a second to qualify for the finals of the 800 meters Friday in the first day prelims at the 1992 Class AA boys state high school track meet.

The Thief River Falls senior ran a 1:58.92, but wound up tenth in a field of 16 that qualified nine for the Saturday finals.

"Joel was in good shape until he he was cut off in the final 20 yards," explained Thief River Falls boys head track coach Tim Olson. "It was a good race, and he was satisfied with his time, but he was obviously disappointed in not making the finals."

Davis was part of a group of a half-dozen runners in the 1:58-1:59 range, pointed out Olson.

The combination Class AA, Class A boys and girls state meet was held at the National Sports Center in Blaine.

It was the final outing of an outstanding high school athletic career for Davis, who qualified for the state cross country and track meets as a junior, then made state appearances in cross country, wrestling and track as a senior.

Legion squad opens season

A quiet Thief River Falls first-game offense came alive in the second game Friday as Post 117 split a season-opening American Legion baseball doubleheader at West Fargo.

Thief River Palls dropped the opener 3-2, but won the nightcap 14-3.

"For the first time out, not too bad," said Thief River Palls coach Howard Dalager. "We played good defense (one error for the night), and our pitching was decent. Once these kids get going offensively, it seems like than can score at will."

Thief River Palls' home opener will be a 6 p.m. Wednesday doubleheader against Crookston at Irv Wilson Pield, with a rematch against West Pargo planned Thursday at tho fairgrounds diamond – a 5 p.m. twinbill.

West Fargo 3
Thief River Falls 2

A solid pitching effort by Thief River Falls' Rick Ostby went by the wayside as Thief River Falls dropped a 3-2 season opener.

Ostby gave up just five hits, struck out five and walked three in five innings of work. However, his teammates did not supply much in the way of offensive help.

Post 117 scored in the second inning on an error, a successful hit-and-run single with Ostby at the plate, and a sacrifice fly by Darin Wald, but didn't score again until the sixth on a walk, an error on a pick-off attempt and a single up the middle by Jeremy Olson.

Wald pitched the sixth inning in relief of Ostby.

Fall Turkey Hunt Applications

Wild turkey hunters interested in participating in the 1992 Minnesota fall hunt must submit their applications by Friday, June 26, according to Kevin Lines, Farmland Wildlife Program leader for the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

The 1992 fall hunt will consist of two five-day seasons: Wednesday, Oct. 14, through Sunday, Oct. 18, and Wednesday, Oct. 21, through Sunday, Oct. 25.

Turkey hunt cont. 5/29

"The mid-week opening was selected to help minimize possible interference between turkey hunters and other hunters who are afield in the fall," Lines said.

Applications for the 1992 fall wild turkey hunt are now available from county auditor's offices and most license agents. Applications are also available from the DNR License Bureau at 500 Lafayette Road in St. Paul, and from DNR Wildlife Section field offices. A $3 application fee must accompany each hunter's application.

To participate in the drawing, a person must be at least 16 years old or possess a firearms safety certificate prior to Oct. 14, 1992.

A total of 2,200 permits will be issued for hunting birds of either sex in wild turkey zones 1,2, 3 and 4 (the same as spring hunt zones) in southeastern Minnesota. There will be 400 permits available in Zone 1, 800 each in Zone 2 and Zone 3, and 200 in Zone 4. A fall harvest of 700 to 800 wild turkeys is expected.

Licenses are made available by a drawing based on a perference system. A hunter's preference level is determined by the number of years he or she has submitted valid but unsuccessful applications for the fall hunt. A special landowner preference drawing for up to 20 percent of the permits is also part of the system.

A valid fall turkey hunting license ($16 for residents, $56 for nonresidents) is required of all hunters.

"Applications should read the instructions carefully," Lines said, "because improperly completed applications will be disqualified without notice."

Applications for the 1992 fall wild turkey hunt must be postmarked by Friday, June 26.

For more information on the hunt, call the DNR Information Center toll free at 1-800-766-6000.

Eurasian Watermilfoil

Minnesota residents consider preventing the spread of Eurasian watermilfoil the most important responsibility of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, according to a recently completed survey.

DNR Marketing Coordinator Tom Baumann said the results proved interesting. "Four years ago Eurasian watermilfoil wasn't even an issue for most people. Today it's their number one concern"

This survey, a follow-up to one conducted in 1988, was designed to provide on-going information about residents' awareness of DNR responsibilities, satisfaction with DNR services, and opinions about potential DNR services. A random sample of 1,000 Minnesota residents was chosen to participate in the survey.

Information sought on Thieves

Anyone out there have any information on the old Thief River Falls Thieves baseball team they would like to share? The Minnesota Amateur Baseball Hall of Fame, located in St. Cloud, might be interested.

Glenn Carlson, formerly of Thief River Falls and now a St. Cloud area resident, is currently serving as secretary of the Minnesoto Amateur Baseball Hall of Fame organization. And he invites anyone with pictures, articles and records of the old Thieves and Northern Minny League to submit the information to the group.

"I'm sure some of this material must be available from sons, daughters or other family members of former players," writes Carlson. "It would be nice to have a file on the Thieves and the Northern Minny League in the Hall of Fame so future generations may stop and read about their fathers, grandfathers, etc. when they played baseball."

Anyone who has access to information they might like to share with the Hall of Fame should contact Carlson at 630 Jenisa Drive, St. Cloud, MN 56301; telephone 612-252-8166.

The Minnesota Amateur Baseball Hall of Fame was founded in 1963. For the first 24 years the organization was sponsored by St. Cloud Sports, Inc., and supported by the Minnesota Baseball Association.

The business of the organization is now controlled by an 18-person Board of Directors, all baseball enthusiasts, from different cities across Minnesota. Carlson has been the secretary of the group the life time of the organization, and was the organization founder. Russ Fechter of Red Wing is the current president.

Purpose of the Hall of Fame, according to its Articles of Incorporation, are to establish, administer and promote the development of amateur baseball, as well as the establishing, administering and maintaining a state baseball Hall of Fame museum to encourage the development of the sport and serve as a repository for historical liturature, records, photos, equipment, trophies, plaques and other educational materials.

Since its beginning, 163 amateur baseball patrons have been inducted into the Hall of Fame representing 114 Minnesota communities. These inductees have dedicated the greater part of their adult life to the success of amateur baseball.

Individuals are not voted into the Hall of Fame just because they played baseball and maybe hit over .300 during a lifetime career, pointed out Hall officials. These fetes are important in the consideration of a candidate, they acknowledge, but it's not only what the candidate has done for his own baseball career, but what he has done for the future of baseball after his personal playing career is over. Many fine amateur baseball players may never make the Hall of Fame because after they were finished as a player, they dropped their interest in amateur baseball. Some of the present members of the Hall of Famo were not outstanding players, or maybe never played at all, but they have dedicated their time and efforts in support of the state amateur baseball program.

Each year, the annual Hall of Fame banquet is held in St. Cloud after the completion of the amateur tournaments and around 500 men, women and children attend the banquet to honor four or five new members who are inducted. If any person, group, or organization is interested in supporting a local area candidate, they should contact the Minnesoto Amateur Baseball Hall of Fame, P.O. Box 7705, St. Cloud, MN 56302-7705 and the proper forms will be mailed.

Plans are now underway for a state-wide fund drive to create a proposed new Hall of Fame building. Consideration is being given to the leasing of a temporary building, which would be used for an office and warehouse during a drive for histories, records, pictures, artifacts, etc. from players, teams and leagues in Minnesota. These would be collected and prepared for the opening of the museum in the future. It is the hope of the Board of Directors to include the history and records of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars baseball programs in the museum.

It is also hoped that the history of professional baseball in Minnesota could be a part of the museum.

Summer Construction on city council agenda

Discussion about several construction projects set to begin this summer were items on the agenda at the city council meeting Monday evening. Action taken Monday also included a change to the ordinance for restaurant seating and a change in an ordinance listing the time for regular council meetings.

The regular meeting time for city council meetings will now be 5 p.m. At the last meeting of the city council, the city attorney was asked to draw up a change in the ordinance which states the time for regular council meetings.

At issue for councilmen was whether a 5 p.m. starting time allowed constituents an opportunity to bring their concerns before the city council. City Councilman John T. Anderson, believes that a 5 p.m. starting time, while not immediately accessible to constituents who work until 5 or 6 p.m., it will be open to constituents because most city council meetings are at least two hours long.

For years, the council meetings have started at 7:30 p.m. If a special meeting was needed, special provisions would have to be made in order to have a meeting time other than 7:30 p.m. on the second and fourth Tuesday of every month. As a result of the starting time, meetings typically ended at about 10 p.m. Monday night, the meeting ended at about 9:30 p.m.

The ordinance change was approved by the council, but not unanimously. The change was approved by a vote of 6-2. Aldermen Don Barron and Milt Burstad voted against the change.

■ Construction in Thief River Falls begins in earnest this week.

A busy schedule of construction in Thief River Falls has been planned for this summer. The most noticeable to residents will be the Main street Highway 32 project.

According to Ron Lindberg, city technical and engineering services director, the contractor is planning to begin marking detours by Thursday of this week. City councilmen and visitors were surprised to learn that the contractor plans to accomplish most of the project during this construction season. It was anticipated that only part of the project would be completed this summer and the rest finished next summer. The latest word from the contractor, is that all of the project except some detail work, such as trees and turf establishment, will be completed in this construction season.

The contractor is also expected to begin the Highway 32 Main street project at Zeh street and go in both directions. The contractors will still be held to the construction time table.

Monday night, the council also approved a lump sum payment of roughly $530,000 for the project. The council concurred with the acceptance and awarding of the project and authorized payment of $530,000 or what is requested.

■ Construction on the riverbank in Centennial park is expected to begin on June 22. Construction on the riverbank in Centennial park is expected to begin on June 22. The city council was informed that this project will take about three weeks to complete. The project involves stabilizing the riverbank with riprap.

■ The cost of the water treatment plant improvement project is now estimated at $5,369,905. Monday night, the council approved a change order for the water treatment plant project. The change order involved a number of small changes in the project that needed to be done. The formal acceptance of the change order is a housekeeping measure. The total cost of the change order was considered minor. While the order was being discussed, however, the total cost of the project was estimated at $5,369,905. The project is expected to be completed by mid January of 1993.

■ The 1992 sidewalk and street project begins on June 10. The city council learned Monday that the contractor for the 1992 sidewalk and street project is expected to begin with demolition and removal on June 10.

■ Plans and specifications for an airport overlay project was approved by the council. The airport overlay project includes a bituminous overlay, crack repair, signage and inspections. The total cost of the project is estimated at over $800,000. The FAA is expected, however, to pick up 90 per cent of the cost. The city was notified recently that the FAA has a limited budget. As a result, if the bids come in at or above what is expected the city might have to reject the bids and wait for the FAA's next budget request period.

■ Quotes for water and electricity for Strata Inc. were accepted by the city council Monday. The concrete plant wants to get up and running as soon as possible. Monday, the council accepted a quote of $10,995 from Soberaski Inc. of Hallock for water main installation even though there was a lower bid. Since those making bids were informed that the bids would be analyzed on the basis of cost, and length of construction and when the company could begin, City Attorney Paul Ihle did not see a problem in accepting the quote from Soberaski. The council also accepted a quote of $5,640.88 from Northern Waterworks for the installation of 8-inch water main to the Strata Corporation property, which is located near the former Toreq building.

■ The city will not charge customers for the installation of underground services from the transformer to the meter for residential customers anymore. Arlo Rude, director of utilities, explained Monday, the electric utilities department has implemented a new policy. The policy states that the electric utility will not charge customers for the installation of underground services from the transformer to the meter for residential customers. Cost will be by the electric utility.

■ A restaurant in Thief River Falls is now defined as having at least 40 seats for customers. The city council recently received a request to have an on-sale wine license for a restaurant called the China King. The restaurant will be located near Third and Horace in downtown Thief River Falls. Since the restaurant will only have seating for about 50, the ordinance which requires 75 for a liquor license had to be changed. The council members arbitrarily set it at 40, stating that if they wanted to change the ordinance later they could. The on-sale wine license was approved for the China King.

■ Purchase of new tables for the city council chambers was approved. The city council approved a proposal of Northern Woodwork to construct a new table for the council chambers. The new tables are expected to cost about $2,200.

In other business, the council: approved a quote of $11,887 from Century Fencing for 1,500 feet of fencing at the street department yard; hired Martin Moeglein for the position of water treatment plant chemist; approved a progression raise for Patrolman Craig Mattson; wrote off 12 uncollectible checks totaling $299.91 as bad debts expense; approved a progression raise for Geraldine Hugg; and instructed Don Stewart to proceed with coordinating the Interim Citizen's Advisory committee and set a meeting date.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

by Dr. Richard L. Lesher
president, U.S. Chamber

Despite the rising tide of voter frustration with Washington, and a growing consensus that the big government policies of the past were a mistake, many members of Congress still don't get it.

Two prime examples are Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Cal., who are determined to expand the regulatory powers of the Food and Drug Administration. I would be hard pressed to name anything our country needs less right now than the expansion of federal regulation. We are struggling to shake off one of the most stubborn recessions in memory, and to restore investor confidence in the nation's economic future. Everyone from the president on down to the workers on the shop floor knows that excessive federal regulation is second only to taxes as an impediment to prosperity.

Yet Kennedy and Waxman remain committed to their Big government agenda. Their "Federal Food, Drug, Cosmetic and Device Enforcement Amendments," would transform our sensible and reliable Food and Drug Administration into a regulatory ogre. Among other things, the proposed amendments would:

- Empower FDA to probe and copy, without warrant, any business records that the bureaucrats get a notion to look at. Any pretext would be sufficient, even for minor technical violations or perceived violations. This, in effect, would give FDA bureaucrats unlimited authority to go on "fishing expeditions" in sensitive corporate records.
- Empower FDA officers or inspectors on their own initiative to recall and embargo shipments of food, drugs, or medical-veterinary devices, even when there is no public health danger. This is a blatant invitation to mischief, particularly where perishable products are concerned. Also the lack of judicial review means the basic right of due process is tossed out the window.
- Subject businesses to steep fines, as high as $1 million, for potentially minor infractions that involve no health or safety violation. Again, the potential for abuse is almost unlimited.

The FDA already has some of the toughest enforcement powers among federal agencies. The agency can and does pursue both civil and criminal prosecutions of alleged violations of laws under its jurisdiction. Indeed, the FDA can force business to do its bidding by merely threatening to go public with its concerns about the safety of a product, with all the attendant bad publicity that results. The simple fact that food and drugs in the United States are the safest in the world is itself profound testimony to the effectiveness of the FDA, and the sufficiency of its powers.

There is no groundswell of public support for this bill because there is no problem that requires solving.

D.L. Tech College students place

Gary Morgenroth and Stacy Torblaa, students in the Truck/Diesel Technology program at Detroit Lakes Technical College, were successful as a team to place 4th in the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) state skill contest in Minneapolis.

The competition is set up and administered by members of industry. The students entered the diesel technology division competition and participated in ten stations. The competitions, which were timed, tested their skills in trouble shooting and demonstrated diagnostic abilities on equipment with the latest technology.

As a result of their placement, Detroit Lakes Technical College was awarded several pieces of equipment including a turnover stand, stackable hardware cabinet, 2 transmissions from Eaton Corporation, and a complete video library from Rockwell Corporation.

Torblaa also placed tenth in an individual competition and received personal prizes of clothing and tools.

Morgenroth is a graduate of Perham High School. He is the husband of Barb and has three children: Chris, Dan and Jennifer.

Torblaa is a graduate of Lincoln Senior High School in Thief River Falls. He is the son of Douglas and Diane Torblaa of Thief River Falls, MN.

Both students will be graduating from Detroit Lakes Technical College this spring.

For Adults

"The Lost Father" - by Mona Simpson: This novel is about a young woman who is obsessed with her search for her biological father who disappeared. The truth of the constant struggle to find a father and to locate and preserve a protector in a world with too many absences is confirmed as the reader follows Mayas Simpson's journey through her past, family, and friends.

"After Egypt: Isadora Duncan and Mary Cassatt" - by Millicent Dillon: This is a dual biography on the great modern dancer, Isadora Duncan, and the Impressionistic painter, Mary Cassatt. Their contrasting lives and art, as well as the legends that obscure them, are covered. With utmost sympathy and intelligence, the author fuses together the life stories of these very different women.

"Russka, the Novel of Russia" - by Edward Rutherford - The author of "Sarum: the Novel of England," turns to the country of Russia now. This historical novel covers 1800 years of Russian history—its people, politics, religion, and culture. Edward Rutherford turns the epic history of a great civilization into a human story of flesh and blood, boldness and action.

Employment outlook in MN begins to improve

An updated employment outlook for the state of Minnesota foresees professional and technical jobs growing fastest and providing the most openings through the year 1996, Commissioner R. Jane Brown of the Minnesota Department of Jobs and Training announced.

The new outlook updates previous forecasts made three years ago. "We anticipate a continuing shift in demand toward more white-collar occupations — in particular, professional, technical, sales, managerial, and service jobs," Brown said.

The number of jobs in Minnesota will increase by seven per cent between 1989 and 1996, from 2,342,160 to 3,504,760. This is slower than the increase in the 70s and 80s, the primary reasons being that there will be fewer young people entering the work force and female labor force participation may plateau.

One force behind occupational shifts is the continued growth foreseen in the services industry group, led by business, health, education, and social services. Service industries are expected to add over half of the state's new jobs and to continue being the fastest-growing sector. Nearly every other industry group will grow slower than average.

The occupations projected to grow fastest are generally those requiring the most education and training. But because medium-skilled jobs make up much of employment, the occupations expected to have the most new openings require various education levels: secondary, two-year, college, and graduate. People leaving the labor force for family responsibilities or retirement will also create many job openings. Large occupations with little or no growth may have openings for this reason, although competition could be stiff.

MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our mother, Mrs. Tillie Bratland, who passed away January 15, 1965

Death Is A Doorway,
On the wings of death
The soul takes flight
Into the land
Where there is no night
For those who believe
What the Saviour said
Will rise in glory
Though she may be dead
So death came to us
Just to open the door
To the kingdom of God
And life evermore

MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our mother, Mrs. Tillie Bratland, who passed away January 15, 1965.

Death Is A Doorway
On the wings of death
The soul takes flight
Into the land
Where there is no night
For those who believe
What the Saviour said
Will rise in glory
Though she may be dead
So death comes to us
Just to open the door
To the kingdom of God
And life evermore.
Sadly missed by her family.

NWRDC plans budget meeting

A public hearing will be held on the 1993 fiscal year budget of the Northwest Regional Development Commission. The hearing will take place June 23, 1992, ot 3 p.m., at the NWRDC office, 525 Brooks Avenue South, Thief River Falls.

Community Colleges raise tuition

Minnesota State Board for Community Colleges hos odopted a 1992-93 budget of $161 million including a 5.63 per cent increase in tuition and fees for next year. The tuition increase was smoller than expected, because the 1992 Legislature softened the impact of budget cuts on higher education.

Effective with fall quarter classes, students will pay a general fee of $37.50 per credit, or approximately $1,687.50 a year for full-time students. The current fee, which remains in effect through summer sessions, is $35.50 per credit hour.

The budget covers the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1992, and ending June 30, 1993.

When legislators and Governor Arne Carlson began grappling with a $569 million state revenue shortfall, there was talk of deep budget cuts and steep tuition increases for higher education. When the 1992 session ended last month, lawmakers were able to ease the cuts. Community colleges lost $3.5 million for the new fiscal year, or about 3.5 per cent of the funding provided by the Legislature.

Community colleges are funded oimost totally from legislative appropriations and student fees.

Community colleges enroll about 56,000 students in credit classes statewide, on 21 campuses. Thousands more take non-credit continuing education classes. Community colleges serve a diverse mix of students seeking credits that will transfer to four-year colleges and universities, or programs that will lead to the job market.

Chancellor Gerald W. Christenson said he was pleased that the board was able to hold the tuition level as low as possible.

Christenson urged community colleges to use part of the new budget allocation for library improvements, computer upgrades and other one-time expenditures and to avoid developing a spending pattern that cannot be sustained in the next biennium.

"We've all heard that the state's financial situation for the 1993-95 biennium will be worse, so colleges should avoid building any permanent cost increases into their budgets," he said.

Small-Business index reaches high

Economic prospects for the nation's small-business owners oppear to be the best they've been since early 1989, according to o survey by the nation's largest small-business organization.

The Index of Small-Business Optimism, monitored by the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB) since 1974, shows that all signs appear to be in place for the end of the recession.

"We're looking at a combination of thin inventory holdings, improving sales, falling interest rates and relatively stable prices," said Mike Hickey, state director of the NFIB/Minnesota. "While growth may not be rapid, we expect the pace of business to pick up soon."

The April survey of 7,202 small-business owners from across the nation showed o number of positive signs:

- Prices have stabilized. Both the number of small businesses reporting price increases in the last three months and those planning them in the next three months fell one per cent from March's already modest levels.
- Inventories are lower than they were a year ago when it appeared that small firms were ready to break out of the recession. Also, interest rates declined two and one-half percentage points in the intervening months.
- The number of small businesses with at least one job opening rose two per cent from March and four from January.
- Sixteen per cent of small-business owners believe now is a good time for business expansion. This is an increase of four per cent from last month and six from the beginning of 1992.

"We're not seeing the robust growth we saw at the end of the 1981-82 recession, but as employment and capital expenditures pick up we should see noticeable improvement," Hickey said.

State plans to combat welfare fraud

Minnesoto Department of Human Services (DHS) and Governor Arne Carlson have announced the implementation of three projects to combat welfare fraud:

- A new process to prosecute persons who commit welfare fraud;
- Giving county fraud investigators access to credit bureau information In order to detect welfare fraud;
- An agreement with the federal government enabling Minnesota low enforcement officials to use food stamps in "sting" operations to catch grocers and others who illegally buy and sell food stamps.

"Illegal activity will be detected and prosecuted sooner with these programs," said Natalie Haas Steffen, DHS Commissioner. "With these improvements, we will now have a very strong deterrent to welfare fraud in Minnesota."

Under the new administrative hearing process, a case involving an accusation of welfare fraud is heard by o DHS referee, rather than in o criminal court before a judge. If found guilty, an offender can be disqualified from the welfare program for six months to life, Instead of being sentenced to jail or probation.

This process will be faster and less expensive, according to John Petrabord, DHS assistant commissioner for Family Self-Sufficiency services. "County attorneys can still choose to prosecute the worst offenders — this just makes sure some penalty is imposed in every case of welfare fraud," Petraborg said. The new hearing process was authorized by the 1992 legislature, and will start July 1.

The 1992 legislature also provided funds to allow welfare fraud investigators electronic access to credit bureau information. Petraborg soid this will be o valuable tool for fraud investigators working in the successful Fraud Prevention Investigotion program which was recently expanded to cover Minnesota's 20 largest counties.

Commissioner Steffen also recently signed an agreement with the U.S. Department of Agriculture which will enable DHS to loon food stamps to local low enforcement officials for use in "sting" operotions. These operations are designed to catch food retailers and others who illegally buy food stamps from the recipients — usuolly for half of their foce value — and then turn them In to the federal government for redemption at full value. The Department of Agriculture is supportive of the project. "We're very pleased to be working with Minnesoto on this. We think it will make a difference," said Dovid Mikelson, director of the Food Stamp Program for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Midwest Region.

DHS estimates these projects will save $120,000 during the next 12 months, and $660,000 every year after that.

On April 19, 1992, Powerball replaced Lotto Minnesota as the multi-state multi-million dollar lotto game.

Also, a marketing strategy to introduce a new instant game every month, offer higher prize payouts, and value-added features such as second-chance drawings with the Daily 3 Spin, merchandise prizes with Lucky Lure have helped to boost sales. Lottery projects for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, are $300 million in sales. Contributions to beneficiary programs for the two-year period ending April 30, 1992, are $123.4 million, with the Environment and Natural Resources Trust Fund receiving $49.4 million in Lottery dollars. FREEDOM WILL PREVAIL
AS LONG AS OUR FLAG CAN FLY

When looking upward to the sky
We still can see our banner fly,
And fill us all with confidence,
Because of what it represents:
The freedom which we have enjoyed,
That no aggressor has destroyed.
It signifies our sacrifice
And willingness to pay the price,
That all throughout our history
Combined to keep our nation free.
Since laws of God have set the tone
Of those adapted for our own,
Through faith our flag has come to be
The symbol of our liberty;
So let's resolve to take a stand,
And keep it waving in our land.
- Gloria Nowak

The things that the flag stands for were created by the experiences of a great people.

PRAIRIE RAMBLING

by Gretchen Baito

In 1992 it hardly seems possible that steamboats once traveled between Thief River Falls and Red Lake. The fact is that at century's turn, a half dozen boats plied the Red Lake River, the only navigable stream in northwest Minnesota besides the Red.

Life on the Red Lake River was described by E.A. Evans, a writer for Northwest Magazine. Evans described his journey up the Red Lake River in the October 1898 issue.

Evans explained that the Alice Meehan was a steamboat used in the lumber trade between the town of Thief River Falls and Red Lake. The boat was owned by the Meehans of the Thief River Lumber Company. The Alice hauled freight and passengers each week, and occasionally an excursion party chartered the boat for a trip to the lakes.

The Alice boat had no regular departure time; rather, it left town as soon as it was loaded with freight. About twenty minutes before she cast off, the whistle was blown and any passengers hurried to what is now Elks Park and ran up the plank to the boat.

On a September day in 1898 E.A. Evans waited around town for the boat's leaving. About six o'clock one evening the whistle blew. Catching up his satchel, a heavy jacket, an umbrella and his sketching material, only stopping to eat a roll and drink a cup of tea, he hurried down to the steamer.

Several passengers were already on deck, and one more followed Evans into the boat just as the captain's order sounded off: "Pull up the plank and be off!"

Motion was hardly perceptible as the crew obeyed orders. The Alice also had to push a large barge heavily loaded with grain. Their slow progress was soon stopped because the long barge, in making the short turn of the river, had run into the opposite bank. The crew operated a long oar to bring it back.

Because the river repeats these bends every quarter mile or so, the boat was always striking the opposite bank. It was easy to forecast the time they were likely to spend in making a 100 mile trip against the current of the stream. They slowly made their way upriver.

Evans noted that it was where the Thief River unites with the Red Lake River that Chief Mon-si-Mo (Moose Dung) had built his house. He had a bridge over the Thief River and collected toll.

At Cumbo's lodge an agent of the Government came on board. His job was to look after the pine lands and see that only the dead and down trees were made into lumber.

After Thief River Falls faded from sight, they saw few signs of life. A birch bark canoe was at water's edge, a low log-hut was on the bank, and a little farther on the Viking, a returning steamboat, was taking on wood.

Soon they were seated at supper, with a dozen other passengers. Two sweet-faced nuns welcomed Evans with a smile. They were on their way to Red Lake to teach at the Catholic School. A young, well-dressed Indian greeted one of the gentlemen as "Professor."

After a hearty meal, Evans sought the deserted upper deck. For the next two hours he enjoyed the beauty of the stream as, in the intense, starry solitude of the slowly descending night-time the boat wound slowly from the dark shadows of one lonely lagoon into those of another. Reluctantly leaving his place when the boat stopped for the night, Evans went below to sleep.

The Alice had stopped because of the large stones lying in the current of the river. It was too dark to safely pass them.

The next was a glorious day, and all ascended to the deck. The openings in the trees along the banks were larger and more frequent. Along the shore grew a swamp-grass in which some wild rice was mixed. Indians gathered this grass for winter food, going in parties to Leech Lake where it grew abundantly.

On the banks appeared lonely Ojibwe graves, with little windows in one end. A recent Dakota grave had a white canvas stretched over the top of four stakes.

Evans wrote that there is little wonder that this country, with its beautiful lakes and rivers teeming with fish, and banks fringed with birch, willow, oak and maple, in which the Ojibwe delights, and where he always lived, was the scene of long battles. These were once the hunting-grounds of the Dakota.

Evans' reverie was interrupted by the cook, who came to announce dinner. After the long morning in the open air, this was welcome news. The cook apologized for his few supplies because he had not known he would have passengers. Nevertheless the cook loaded the table with snowy bread, tender steaks, hot potatoes, ham and eggs, corn bread, canned corn and tomatoes, warm pie, rice pudding, stewed plums, and cake. The passengers ate with the appetite of lumbermen, Evans said.

As the long afternoon drew to a close, they saw, nestled among magnificent oak trees on the left bank, a number of low log huts, to which the engineer drew their attention by a shrill whistle, announcing Oak Grove.

This last evening on deck was most pleasant. The passengers drew their chairs together and buttoned their jackets tighter, for the air was frosty. The "Dead and Down" man recited several of his impromptu speeches. The professor sang the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Long talk ensued with the gentle nuns and the professor about their schools in the wilderness. The nuns taught a school of eighty pupils, although they only had accommodations for fifty. The professor taught at the Agency School, a boarding school.

The splashing of the waters as they ploughed through them lulled them into silence, and they went below to sleep. The rolling motion of the boat awakened Evans when they entered the lake.

He arose at five to enjoy the Northern daybreak. Alone on deck, the morning advanced across the glimmering lake, and he could see the soft outlines of summer foliage ahead as well as a birch bark canoe turned on its side. They arrived at the Red Lake Agency and soon disembarked by boarding the barge and walking a plank to land.

Missy Hoffard was chosen as "Candystriper of the Month" for April at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls. Candystripers volunteer for one hour to one and one-half hours each week, said Laurie Fayette, junior volunteer coordinator. Hoffard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Hofferd.

It's officially summer vacation time. School is finished for another year, where has the time flown? Now is the time that families across our nation take some time to enjoy each other in the fine summertime weather.

What are your plans for vacationing this summer? Do you have any grand vacation plans? Are you planning any special trips? Are you traveling anywhere by train or plane? Are you spending time by a lake? Or, maybe you will be spending time in your own backyard simply passing some peaceful times with your family.

You who are adults, do you remember the summers of your youth? What do you remember about them? Do you remember the special trips you may have taken, or do you remember the simple daily out of door activities you participated in?

Summertime for kids is different than summertime for adults. We adults have to plan the fun times of summer. Kids just enjoy summer, playing.

Remember the games you used to play as a child during the summer? I remember playing hopscotch and jump rope and "house." My friends and I could extend the game of "house" into many days of the week. The rules were simple. We all got to choose which role in the family we wanted to play, and then, to the best of our ability, we played that role. We would not only pick the role we played, but also our pretend age. I was always 30. Oh to be 30 again!!!

The kids in our neighborhood enjoyed the summers. Many times we all got together to play kickball in our backyard. The trees in our grove were the bases. As we got older, we more often found ourselves playing games of badminton in our neighbor's yard.

Bike riding was an integral part of our summers. We had boundaries set by our parents beyond which we were not to go, but that didn't limit us from enjoying our "wheels." One poor neighbor must have tired of the various squeaks emitting from the neighborhood children's vehicles as he would regularly offer to oil our bikes. None of us had bikes with speeds. We were fortunate if we had brakes on the handles.

One game that was off limits to us was anything that had to do with guns. "Cowboys and Indians" could not be played by us as it involved pretending to shoot one another. Likewise, any TV show involving shooting was off limits.

Two new items recently have caught my attention. Both of them involve games children play. In Massachusetts, water squirt guns have become a high-powered delivery system of water. These super squirt guns have prompted the mayor of Boston to ask stores to remove them from sale because a water gun fight erupted into actual gun fire and a kid died.

Here in Thief River Falls, I noted an ad that advertised fun for the whole family—war games. I guess the idea is to take paint loaded guns and run around shooting paint at each other. Calling shooting of persons a game somehow paints a sad commentary of our society.

Across our nation as summer fun is being played out, our play has become no longer simple. When children die in "pretend" shootings, and when we can call war a game of fun for the whole family to enjoy we must pause and decide what kind of people do we want our children to become.

Stop a few moments and remember the games you used to play. Consider also the options available to your children. Direct them in the ways in which they should go. When they get old they will thank you for your direction.

How Do You Like Your Eggs?

Probably there has never been and will never be a more frivolous national vote than the one held to determine which version of an Elvis Presley personage should appear on a U.S. postage stamp. More than a million people voted their preference in a poll which was taken by mail (of course) in April.

By a margin of three-to-one, people voting in the poll chose the younger portrait of the swivel-hipped, sideburned, strummin' songster who was on the leading edge of what became the "rock and roll" music era. It was apparently the memory they wanted to cling to, rather than the older, heavier Presley who would have been 58 years old on Jan. 8, 1993, the date the stamp will be issued by the U.S. Postal Service. Maybe it's the way many of the voters want to remember themselves.

The Elvis stamp will be the first in a series of eight "Legends of American Music" stamps, with the other "legends" yet to be selected. Let's hope those later stamps arrive quietly at the local post office with considerably less fanfare and furor than was accorded to the first little sticker.

How the public was handed the Elvis stamp whether it wanted one or not was sort of how breakfast used to be back on the farm. It wasn't a question of whether you wanted eggs or not, it was "How do you want your eggs?"

Global Warming Panic Replaces Global Cooling

Columnist George F. Will, writing in the Washington Post, is unimpressed with the highly publicized "Earth Summit" gathering of nations in Rio. One of the focuses of that conference is the fear of global warming as a result of human activity supposedly harmful to the environment.

But Will points out that "many confidently—even eagerly—predicted catastrophes are late in arriving. There is a lengthening list of traumas to the planet that were supposed to have happened but haven't.

"So before we are stampeded into growth-inhibiting actions to combat global warming, we should recall that less than 20 years ago—not long in a planet's life—the politically correct panic concerned global cooling. Then there were 'many signs pointing to the possibility that the Earth may be heading for another ice age' (the New York Times, Aug. 14, 1975) heading 'toward extensive Northern Hemisphere glaciation' (Science magazine, Dec. 10, 1976), and facing 'continued global cooling of the Earth' (Global Ecology, 1971)."

Will points out that it was then said that "a new ice age must now stand alongside nuclear war as a likely source of wholesale death and misery" (International Wildlife, July 1975). Newsweek reported (April 28, 1975) that most meteorologists agreed that the cooling trend "will reduce agricultural productivity for the rest of the century." The Christian Science Monitor reported (Aug. 27, 1974) that armadillos had left Nebraska, retreating south, and heat-loving snails had retreated from central European forests, and "the North Atlantic is cooling down about as fast as an ocean can cool," glaciers "have begun to advance" and "growing seasons in England and Scandinavia are getting shorter."

One can understand the columnists refusal to be overly excited about the global warming furor. "....any time agents of 160 governments gather, remember: Some Third World governments (which are most of the world's governments) are 'kleptocracies.' They would rather redistribute the First World's wealth than abandon the statism that is the basis of their power. Statism also is the impediment to their people's prosperity and therefore a cause of environmental injury," he writes.

He notes that "growth is a prerequisite for environmental improvement. The pattern is that environmental damage increases until per capita income increases to a point where people enjoy a social surplus and feel they can ask government to trade some growth for environmental healing."

Greg Easterbrook of Newsweek, writing in Washington Monthly, offers his "Law of Doomsaying"—Predict catastrophe no later than 10 years hence but no sooner than five years away—soon enough to terrify but far enough off that people will forget if you are wrong. And Stephen Moore of the Cato Institute reports (in Public Interest) that, contrary to predictions that increased population and industrialism would produce scarcities, "by every objective measure natural resources became more, not less, plentiful in the 1980s)."

"Eco-pessimism persists in part because it serves a political program," Will is convinced. "Some environmentalism is the socialist dream—ascetic lives closely regulated by a vanguard of bossy visionaries—dressed up as compassion for the planet.

"Various reasons for gloominess come and go (dioxin and acid rain have recently been demoted as menaces) but the supply of gloominess is remarkably constant," Will writes. "A recent Science magazine editorial, 'The Attractiveness of Gloom,' satirically offered a new version of Murphy's Law: 'Things are worse than they can possibly be.' It quotes a fictional Dr. Noitall, who says his fellow gloom-mongers are handicapped by the fact that standards of living, and life expectancy, keep rising. However, he takes comfort from the fact that anxiety will remain high because 'expectations always increase more rapidly than productivity.'

"And he contentedly anticipates," Will concludes, "'the panic that will spread through the population when they read about the epidemic of deaths through natural causes.' You read about it first here."

He pointed out that the increased collections this year are better than the figures indicate, owing to the fact that tax levies were substantially less in the city of Thief River Falls and slightly lower in other sections of the county. A total of 200 more receipts were issued this year than in 1941."

—Hitler, we hear, holds Great Britain responsible for ending the career of Nazi Hangman Heydrich. That's quite a compliment to the English.

—Bears are killing a lot of sheep over around Grand Rapids and it sounds like an unbearable situation.

—In this war, unlike the last one, you didn't hear about men buying $20 silk shirts.

—Not all the lubricants needed to win the war come from the ground says a Duluth commentator. There's elbow grease, for instance.

—That must have been a rare spectacle at the recent Farmer-Labor conference in St. Paul when Elmer A. Benson and Hjalmer Petersen appeared on the same platform without exchanging acrimonious remarks.

—We won't feel quite at ease over the outcome of the war until this country gets control of the U-boat situation.

—If you have a dollar to spare, better turn it over to Ralph Luhmon, chairman of the local USO campaign for the benefit of the men in service.

—We can't get cuffs on the suit now, but a colleague is more worried about not being able to get suits on the cuff.

—Leon Henderson, price control administrator, asks for a staff of 80,000 to enforce the regulations. At that rate, there soon won't be anybody to check up on except government employees.

—In the language of war bond quotas, the treasury department tells us I.Q. stands for Independence Quota.

—That rasping noise you hear is the sound of candidates filing for office since the season opened yesterday.

It's a real pleasure to see the Strandquist Senior Citizens getting together again for their Thursday meetings. Due to the early paper last week, we didn't get their news in time, so today we have for two weeks. You can tell that once they get going, they are like the postman—neither rain, sleet, snow or hail can keep them away! On May 21, they met at the Center with 18 members and 14 guests present. A business meeting was first conducted and it was decided that Ivan Kimbrough would be taking blood pressures the first Thursday of every other month beginning in June, and games would be played the last Thursday of the month. It was Gladyce Johnson's birthday which was celebrated, and she was also the hostess for the day. Ida Bruce won the door prize in the drawing.

On May 28th, they met again with 19 members and seven guests. Games were played until everyone had won a prize. Annie Rud won the black-out game, and Gilman Stennes won the door prize. A number of petunias were planted on the east side of the building which will be enjoyed by many flower lovers. They also finished tying the rugs. Antoinene Kasprowicz was the hostess.

The extra Strandquist 1991 annuals "Warrior," have arrived at the school, and can be purchased from Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. until 1 p.m. Ellen Stromberg will be there those hours and will be glad to serve you. One killed, two injured in accident on Sunday

One man was killed and another is in critical condition at a Grand Forks hospital following a head-on collision south of Thief River Falls Sunday morning.

The name of a man killed in an accident four miles south of Thief River Falls Sunday is being withheld pending identification. He has been identified in an obituary, however, as Clifton Ray Stigen, 31, Thief River Falls.

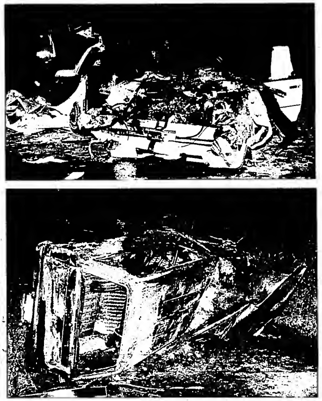
According to a Minnesota state patrol spokesperson in Thief River Falls, the state patrol received a report of an accident four miles south of Thief River Falls on Highway 59 at about 1 a.m. Following a reconstruction of the accident, officials of the state patrol believe a 1984 Buick four-door being driven by 17-year-old Aaron Kuznia of Warren was traveling north on Highway 59, when a 1985 GMC Blazer traveling south crossed over the centerline and the vehicles collided.

The Jimmy veered off the highway and into the east ditch where it caught on fire. The driver of that vehicle was pronounced dead upon arrival of emergency personnel, according to the state patrol.

The Kuznia vehicle came to rest facing south in the middle of the highway. Aaron Kuznia was taken to Northwest Medical Center where he was treated and released, according to Northwest Medical Center personnel.

A passenger in the Kuznia vehicle, 18-year-old Clifford Adrian also of Warren, is in critical condition. Adrian was taken to Northwest Medical Center and then transferred United Hospital in Grand Forks where he was listed in critical condition as of Tuesday morning.

The Minnesota state patrol is withholding the name of the man burned in the collision pending positive identification and an autopsy. Charges stemming from the accident are under investigation by the Minnesota state patrol.



Tragic accident. At about 1 a.m. Sunday morning, these two vehicles collided on Highway 59 south four miles south of Thief River Falls. According to the state patrol the driver of the 1985 GMC Blazer, which burned after the collision, was traveling south and crossed over the centerline. The vehicles collided head on. The driver of the Blazer (bottom photo) has not been positively identified. According to an obituary from Green's Funeral Home, however, the driver was identified as Clifton Ray Stigen. The driver of the other vehicle, a 1994 Buick four-door (top photo), was 17-year-old Aaron Kuznia of Warren. He was treated and released from Northwest Medical Center. His passenger, 18-year-old Clifford Adrien also of Warren, is listed in critical condition at United Hospital in Grand Forks, ND. Minnesota state patrol, Pennington county sheriff's department and the Thief River Falls fire department responded to the accident report. The emergency extraction equipment had to be used to get Adrien out of the vehicle.

Eight from TRF chosen for MN Blandin program

Eight delegates and four alternates from Thief River Falls have been chosen to participate in the Blandin Community Leadership Program.

Don Stewart of the local selection committee, a sub-committee of the Community Leadership Steering committee, announced the names of the delegates and alternates Monday evening. Chosen to participate in the leadership program in October are: Dave B. Carlson, Kathryn Henke, Heidi Hoks, Marty D. Johnson, Jean Larson, Jon Praska, Al H. Sollom, and Darla Twomey. Alternates are Anita K. Hendrickson, Edie Brandli, Jerrold R. Moyer, and Kenneth D. Murphy.

The Blandin Community Leadership program is designed for existing, new, returning and emerging community leaders who meet the following criteria:

- Represent the diversity of the community in terms of age, gender, occupation and such sectors as education, local government, human services and business (including agriculture, tourism, forestry, mining etc. . .);
- Will make a full-time commitment to the program's three sessions, i.e., the six-day retreat and the two day seminars. Where necessary, individuals are to arrange time away from work with their employers before application is made;
- Care about the community and are willing to be involved;
- Have no immediate plans to leave the community.

Last April, a town meeting was held to help generate interest in the program. The number of applications from the community had to equal at least twice the number of delegates and alternates allotted.

Stewart said the steering committee received a total of 38 applications. He said the steering committee was gratified by the response. It speaks well of the community, he said. However, choosing 12 names from the list of applications was very difficult, he added.

Fremstad asks for hearing on dismissal

Following a dismissal action taken by the School District 564 board of education at its May 27 meeting, James Richard Fremstad, 46, financial aid coordinator at the Thief River Falls Technical college, has requested a hearing on the dismissal.

Attorney Ann Goering, representing the school district in the action, said that the hearing had been requested but no date had been set at this time. It had also not been determined if the hearing would be public (an option of the person notified of the proposed termination) or held before an arbitrator mutually agreed upon by the contending parties.

Fremstad also declined comment on the situation, saying it is covered by Minnesota privacy laws.

Action taken by the board at its meeting stated only that the proposal for termination was on the statutory grounds of "immoral conduct, insubordination, conduct unbecoming a teacher which requires the immediate removal of the teacher from classroom and other duties, and willful neglect of duty."

The resolution, which was passed unanimously by the board on a roll call vote, also states that "the specific reasons for the pro-

Vigstol boys build a house for their mom

This is the house that Neil and Russell and Lee and Richard and Dan and Steve and Eldon and Ray and David built

By Mark Olson
Staff Writer

"There once was a woman who lived in a shoe; she had so many children she didn't know what to do."

If they were Effie Vigstol's children, they'd build her a house. And they are. The past week, eight of Effie's 11 children have been building her a six-room, one-story, full-basement house in Plummer.

In four days, the sons constructed the frame of the house, installed the outside wall boards and shingled the roof.

The new house replaces the 22-year-old country house also built by the family. "They've had a lot of experience since then," Effie said. Effie plans on moving out of the old house August 1.

The planning for the new house began two years ago and May 10, Mother's Day, they staked out the ground.

Moving into town was the general idea behind a new house, Effie said. "There was nothing available [in Plummer]. That's why we built."

Several of her sons built their own houses, some with help from other siblings.

The carpentry background helps, Effie said. "They are all told to do something and they know what to do. They're self motivators."

Effie said there have been "no problems" with the construction. "Just getting along," joked Dan, one of Effie's sons. "She was three and one-half minutes late with lunch one day. That was the biggest problem," added Ray, another son.

Effie brings her sons morning and afternoon meals. They go to the country house for lunch.

Some of the sons have taken on different responsibilities. Neil is in charge of layout, Eldon is the main planner and Russell drew up the blueprints.

When it comes to the actual construction, Ray said, "whoever isn't working when a job is open, gets that job."

Neighbors walk and drive in front of the house to observe the construction. "The whole town is watching," Effie said. Ray quoted a neighbor, "We only get one house [to watch being built here] in 25

Two years in planning, this house is designed and built by eight of Effie Vigstol's sons. The house has six rooms on the ground level, a basement and a garage. The ground was staked out May 10, Mothers' Day, and Vigstol plans to move into the house August 1.

Eldon (left) and Ray Vigstol relax for a few minutes during a day of house-building. After four days of working 6:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., Ray commented, "This isn't a union job!"

Dear Readers,
Prearrangement of funeral service is especially sensible where there are no close family members to properly assume the funeral responsibilities. The concerned person may select his clergyman and funeral director in advance, decide details of the burial and service, and place the expense funds in a trust for that purpose.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

. . . Rules for Fathers

Sunday is Father's Day. It is a good thing that there is a special day set aside for fathers, because a father's lot in life is not as easy as you may think.

No, being a father is not easy. Fathers have certain duties and responsibilities that mothers do not have. Actually, they have certain Rules they must follow.

Fathers must be able to put things together. Mothers do not have to do this. When the children get a new swing set, all packaged neatly in a large box, who do they ask to put it together? Do they expect mother to do it? No, they ask their father.

When mother buys a new bookcase, all packaged neatly in a large box, who does she ask to put it together? Does she do it? No, she asks father.

Fathers must be able to fix things. A father must be a combination of carpenter, plumber, electrician, gardener and many other things. When the leg falls off the table, or the sink is stopped up, or the lamp doesn't work, or the garden has bugs, who is the person everyone asks to fix the problem? Not mother. Father is the one who is called upon.

You may wonder where all of these Rules for Fathers came from. Well, the fact is, the Rules come attached to a baby's toe when it comes home from the hospital. Some of the Rules are for mothers, and some are for fathers.

The Rules for Father say that first he must know how to play games and read bedtime stories. He must also know how to change diapers and make airplane noises when spooning food into the baby. He must be able to hum "Rock-A-Bye, Baby" when giving the baby a bottle. The Rules also say that father must immediately learn to say "Koochy-Koo" and how to play Pat-A-Cake.

The Rules also say that fathers must know how to handle such things as spiders and snakes and other crawly-creepies without flinching. They must also know how to play base-, foot-, basket-, volley- and every other kind of ball, and all other sports, as well. If father cannot play the sports, he must, at least, know the rules for these sports.

Fathers must also be able to sit at a tiny table and sip Kool Aid from a tiny cup and eat graham crackers from a tiny plate, with a tiny spoon, accompanied by a variety of dressed-up dolls and stuffed animals. The Rules say that fathers may never look bored while doing this.

Fathers must know how to play television games, but not too well.

Fathers must know how to catch fish, and how to bait fish hooks with squiggly worms and slippery minnows. Fathers must also know how to clean the fish, once they are caught.

Fathers must learn how to choose children's clothing that matches. This is a very difficult thing for fathers to do. Some fathers never learn to do it.

Fathers must also do things that are very difficult, like discipline their children. Fathers must know how to frown and be very firm when their children misbehave, and, once in a while, no matter how difficult it is, they must punish their children. However, while the father is doing this, and afterward, and at other times, there is one thing a father must never, ever do...

...He must never, every cry.

And that is the hardest part of being a father.

(But it isn't one of the Rules.)

Happy Father's Day.

Traffic barricades are up for a reason

Residents and visitors to the community of Thief River Falls are asked to pay attention to the barricades. It is a violation of Minnesota law to go around barricades set up to protect motorists and construction workers.

The police department has been issuing warning tickets in Thief River Falls for avoiding or going around the barricades set up for the Highway 32 main street project. Police Chief Proschheiser said his department will continue to issue warnings for about a week.

Chief Proschheiser said residents and visitors to the city should bear in mind that the barricades will be there all summer and are set up for the protection of motorists and construction workers. The only vehicles allowed to go around the barricades are emergency vehicles, construction vehicles and construction employees.

With the number of heavy equipment vehicles in the area because of construction, visitors and residents also have to be aware of the safety hazard they pose.

Residents and visitors should be patient and follow all detour signs in the city of Thief River Falls.

Lower river to aid bank stabilization

River reservoir behind the power plant dam in Thief River Falls will be lowered slightly and maintained approximately eight inches lower than normal to facilitate a bank stabilization project at Centennial Park near the Eighth street bridge.

The level is expected to be reduced by June 22 and held at that level until approximately July 8.

The project involves streambank stabilization and erosion control. Rock riprap and a gabion retaining wall will be installed along a 600-foot section of bank. It is a cooperative effort of the City of Thief River Falls, Pennington County Soil and Water conservation District and the Red Lake Watershed District.

Hedeen construction of Thief River Falls is the contractor for the project.

Wetlands group hears plea for ag lands

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Making an emphatic plea for a broad interpretation of agricultural lands under the Minnesota Wetland Conservation Act of 1991, Rep. Steve Dille of Dassel addressed the Wetlands Heritage Advisory committee at its meeting Thursday, June 11, at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls.

The advisory committee, comprised of the Minnesota Commissioners of Natural Resources and Agriculture and seven citizen representatives from throughout the state, was appointed by the Governor and makes its recommendations to the Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources (BWSR).

Commissioner of Agriculture Elton Redalen attended the meeting. Norm Moody, local government liaison for the Department of Natural Resources, represented the DNR commissioner's office.

Citizen members of the committee include Joan Miska, Redwood Falls, who chairs the committee; Norma Hanson, Goodridge; Paul Brutlag, Elbow Lake; Jon Engfer, Minneapolis; David Moran, Prior Lake; Jerry Nordick, Rothsay; and Jerald Amburg, Moorhead.

Rep. Dille, a six-year I-R legislator who is a member of the House Agriculture committee and devoted a good deal of time to the wetlands legislation, said he drove 250 miles to attend the meeting and would drive home the same day.

"I drove those 250 miles each way to urge you to recommend the most general possible terms in the description of agricultural lands," he said. "I think there needs to be room for flexibility and for the process to work. I know that entails some risk, but I think it is risk that needs to be taken."

Rep. Dille said the wetlands bill was enacted to produce change, but that there are two ways to bring about change. One is through education and incentives over a period of time and the other is by immediate imposition of regulations which makes a lot of people very angry.

"The Wetland Conservation Act of 1991 was landmark legislation," Rep. Dille said, quoting from a letter he had written to other members of the House of Representatives April 14 of this year. "It was the product of hundreds of meetings and input from thousands of people representing many points of view.

"The compromise package that passed included 23 exemptions that the agricultural and forestry industries of this state worked hard to include in the bill. With these exemptions, they could support the bill. Now the rule-makers are taking over and radically restricting the scope of these exemptions are clearly violating legislative intent. The most serious areas of disagreement are as follows:

"(1) The definition of agricultural land suggested by the Board of Water and Soil Resources (BWSR) is very narrow. It essentially says that agricultural land is only crop land that has been farmed six out of the last 10 years prior to Jan. 1, 1991. Those representing the agricultural community had a broader definition in mind. The definition was not in the bill, but most believed it would include all the land located in agricultural areas of the state outside of an urban area.

"(2) The replacement requirements for drained wetlands as identified in a leaflet recently published by BWSR states, 'the replacement ratio for crop land is 1:1 and on non-crop land there must be two replacement acres for every one acre drained or filled.' The authors of the bill and others who worked on this legislation believe the replacement requirements were 1:1 on agricultural land, which included most of the land in rural Minnesota, but in an urban setting, the replacement ratio would be 1:2.

"(3) The rule-makers are trying to define wetlands in a tillable field to mean only wetlands when more than 50 per cent of its boundary touches the tillable area. This is another attempt to further weaken the exemptions. One affect would be to exclude Type 1 wetlands and Type 2 wetlands less than two acres in size from the exemption if less than 50 per cent of its boundary touches the tillable land, even if it is in the field that is cropped. This type of rule clearly violates legislative intent," he said.

Rep. Dille's letter, which was signed by a number of Representatives including Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls, proposed amending the Wetlands Conservation Act to define agricultural land and agricultural use.

According to the proposed amendment, "agricultural land" would mean "land which is in agricultural use and which has been identified as agricultural land by a local unit of government....or which is composed of predominantly Class I, II, III or IV soils as identified in the land capability classification system of the United States Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service and the county soil survey, if completed."

"Agricultural use" would mean "use of land for the production of livestock, dairy animals, dairy products, poultry and poultry products, furbearing animals, horticultural and nursery stock.....fruit of all kinds, vegetables, forage, grains and bees. Wetlands, pasture and woodlands accompanying land in agricultural use shall be considered to be in agricultural use."

Rep. Dille stressed the need for a similar interpretation by the Wetlands Heritage Advisory committee.

Joan Miska, who chairs the advisory committee, thanked Rep. Dille for his presentation and noted that Rep. Marcus Marsh of Sauk Rapids had also been invited to attend. Rep. Marsh was a chief sponsor of the wetlands legislation and has views which are much more restrictive than Rep. Dille favors.

An interested group of local government officials, representatives of agencies dealing with wetlands and other interested persons was in attendance at the meeting. Committee members and Greg Larson, wetlands section administrator for BWSR, responded to several questions regarding specific interpretations of the law. Addressed specifically were such "created" wetlands as gravel pits and how they are treated under the law, and how ditch maintenance is defined.

Committee members and others had participated in a morning tour of area wetlands to view various types and situations pointed out by local officials. The committee set its next meeting for 9 a.m. July 9 in St. Paul.

While Joan Miska looks on, Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture Elton Redalen asks a question during a meeting of the Wetlands Heritage Advisory committee Thursday at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls. Miska, Redwood Falls, chairs the committee which makes recommendations to the Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources.

Impressions . . .

Beth Johnson

Sunday was Children's Day. Did many of you celebrate it? As I went in search for a card for my sons for their special day, I realized that either Children's Day was a figment of my imagination, or all of the cards had already been purchased by all the parents in our community. But, as I found no advertisements advertising gifts for me to purchase for this special day, I had almost decided that Children's Day was a nice imagination on my part.

But, in doing a bit of research, I did confirm that sure enough, the 2nd Sunday in June is Children's Day. In many Christian churches this special day is celebrated. Our home church in Connecticut reaffirmed my belief that Children's Day did exist as I read the announcement telling of the special events that they were planning for this past Sunday especially to honor the children among them.

We need to spend a day celebrating the children among us. We celebrate Mothers and Fathers and Mother-in-laws and Grandparents, but, we also need to celebrate Children.

We were all once children. Can you remember back to the days of your childhood? Are there some days that you wish you could escape the responsibilities and problems of adulthood and return to the innocent days of childhood? Did you feel cherished as a child?

We need to celebrate the children around us. We need to celebrate the joy they give us—even when they are naughty. We need to celebrate the fresh ways in which they look at the world. We need to celebrate the ways in which they make us feel loved and needed. We need to celebrate the smiles and tears they cause us. We need to celebrate the responsibility they are. We need to celebrate the tenderness they show.

Consider the children around you. Each one of them is special in his or her own way. Each of them delight and frustrate. Each of them are individuals just waiting to place their mark on this world.

Consider how you treat the children around you. Do you treat each of them as special individuals, or do you expect them to always respond in like ways? Do you treat them kindly only when they are delightful? Or, do you also show them kindnesses when they are at their most frustrating undelightful times?

As you consider how you treat the children around you, stop and examine your responsibility to them. You, the adult in a child's life, are responsible for the rearing of that child. You will be the one who can positively, or negatively, affect how that child may make his or her mark in this world. You are the person responsible to see that there is direction for the child. You are responsible to see that there is a semblance of security for the child or children around you.

Security does not need to take the form of money—or even food and shelter. Security in a child's life comes from knowing that there is someone who is trying to love and cherish him. Cherishing a child will result in joy for both you and the child.

As our family once again celebrated Children's Day, I was saddened by the knowledge that not many were taking the time to set aside a day to celebrate the children in their families. Our children are our most precious treasures. Without them our world could not even begin to exist.

If we all daily honored the children with us we would not need a day to set aside to simply honor them. But, we all know that children are more often victims. A day to honor them reminds us that children, our most precious treasure, need to be cherished by all of us.

What a wonderful nation our nation would be if we cherished our children. Starting with our own families, let's cherish the children.

years. It isn't fair to do it in one day."

Changes were made in the original blueprints. "The blueprints went back and forth several times before we got them to my liking," Effie said. The original plans were too big, Effie said, and other changes, such as an additional closet, were made.

Other features Effie requested were windows facing west for sunsets and east for sunrises. Effie said she would plant trees for shade.

She would have to make few adjustments moving into town, Effie said. "I live here half the time anyway. I have lots of friends close by."

Effie spends her time reading, sewing and acting as The Times' Plummer correspondent. She recently placed second in a regional seniors spelling bee.

"I'll be glad [when the house is finished], but it's really fun having everyone around."

The sons came from all over the state and nation. Neil, a framing contractor, is from Omaha, NE; Russell, a custom builder, is from Harlingen, TX; Lee, a farmer and trucker, is from Minot, ND; Richard and Dan are carpenters from Cedar; Steve, a carpenter, is from St. Francis; Eldan, a farmer and carpenter, is from Plummer and Ray, a bus mechanic, is from Thief River Falls.

David, an engineer, is in Lakeville and plans to help with the construction later. Effie's two daughters, Ann Anderson from Santa Anne, CA, and Mary Beth Miller from Delta Junction, AK, are unable to help because of distance.

"From a family perspective," Ray said, "the parents were hard working. They passed that on to us. What we learned from them is much more than what we're giving back." For himself, Ray said, the work is "good therapy... cheap therapy."

USDA holds CRP sign-up

The USDA Soil Conservation Service (SCS) reminds farmers facing conservation compliance deadlines that the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) could be a method of staying in compliance, saving soil and making a profit. The twelfth CRP sign-up will be June 15-26 at local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices.

The first 11 sign-ups resulted in the acceptance of 1.8 million Minnesota acres into the program. Under the CRP, farmers receive annual rental payments in exchange for agreeing to put highly erodible land into permanent trees or grass cover for 10 to 15 years.

Landowners wishing to enroll land into CRP bid the rental rate they require to take their land out of crop production. Those bids are either accepted or rejected by USDA based upon the environmental benefits anticipated per dollar of cost.

Gary Nordstrom, SCS state conservationist said the CRP is a good option for farmers who must have applied soil conservation systems by 1995 in order to remain eligible for USDA programs.

Landowners with interest or questions on CRP may call their local SCS or ASCS office in their county. They are listed under U.S. Government Offices in the telephone directory.

International Falls wins Class A portion of tournament...

TRF is AA Eagles champ

Unbeaten International Falls was a clear-cut winner in Class A, but a tie-breaker was put into effect before Thief River Falls was named the Class AA champion in the 1992 Thief River Falls Eagles Invitational American Legion baseball tournament played Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Irv Wilson Field.

A 3-0 Class A-winning International Falls tournament showing included wins over Roseau 6-1, Red Lake Falls 10-2 and the Thief River Falls Bombers 16-4. Red Lake Falls wound up 2-1, Roseau 1-2 and the Bombers were 0-3.

It was a little more complicated in Class AA, where Thief River Falls, Bemidji and Crookston all went 2-1, and Red Lake was 0-3.

With Thief River Falls beating Crookston 13-4, Bemidji beating Thief River Falls 7-4 and Crookston beating Bemidji 9-7, the first place tie was broken by the fewest number of runs allowed during the tournament. Thief River Falls won out by giving up only 11 runs, Bemidji surrendered 13 and Crookston was tagged with 22.

Thief River Falls' title was assured when Red Lake failed to return for Sunday's final day of the tournament. Saturday, Bemidji shut out Red Lake 8-0 and Crookston won by a 12-2 margin. The forfeit goes into the books as a 7-0 victory, protecting Thief River Falls' two-run tie-breaking edge over Bemidji.

"The tournament went really well," reported Howard Dalager, coach of the Thief River Falls Post 117 team. "We were a little disappointed in our performance Friday night against Bemidji, but the kids showed up early Saturday morning ready to play baseball, and they did a real nice job."

Individual awards were also presented at the completion of the tournament. In Class AA, the honors went to Thief River Falls' Jason Svir, most valuable; Crookston's Jeremy Peterson, top pitcher; and Bemidji's John Somrock, top defensive player. In Class A, the awards went to International Falls' Billy Bahr, most valuable; International Falls' Jared Baron, top pitcher; and Red Lake Falls' Shane Zutz, top defensive player.

Rogalla, Bernstein lead 1992 Prowler baseball stats

Junior third baseman Carter Rogalla hit .500 this spring to lead Thief River Falls during the 1992 high school baseball season.

Rogalla finished with 24 hits in 48 at-bats and also led the Prowlers with four home runs and 21 runs-batted-in.

Junior second baseman Nathan Knutson wasn't far behind Rogalla in the hit parade, finishing with 23 hits in 50 at-bats – a .460 average – including a team-leading eight doubles.

Rebels' statistics are posted

There were few surprises for the Middle River/Marshall County Central baseball team during the 1992 high school season, according to Rebels head coach Jerald Hagen.

A state tournament entry the previous spring, Middle River/Marshall County Central fell to 7-10 this year, losing an 8-1 decision to Fertile-Beltrami in first round Section 8A Sub-Section 3 tournament play.

"It was about where I figured we'd be," acknowledged Hagen, who moved up from an assistant to head coach this season. "I thought we'd be okay offensively, but we needed some pitching and we needed to play some defense if we were going to be successful. Our pitching and defense did come through at times, but by the same token, we had some games where we had some trouble in those areas."

Troy Myhrer turned in the most innings on the Rebels' pitching staff, going 1-2 with a 4.57 earned run average in 26 innings. He struck out 16 and walked 19. Jeremy Tallum worked 23.3 innings, finishing with a 3-1 record and a 6.90 ERA. He struck out 14 and walked 23.

Offensively, eight Rebels who played extensively hit .300 or better. Tallum led the way with a .444 batting average (20/45), while Chad Bjorgaard hit .373 (19/51), John Sparby .370 (17/46), Myhrer .347 (17/49), Jason Simmons .346 (9/26), Rick Wappula .319 (15/47), Jamie Lorenson .319 (15/47), and David Blazek .314 (16/51).

Tallum led the team with 19 RBI; Blazek and Bjorgaard shared team-high honors with three home runs each, while Bjorgaard and Myhrer both had five doubles.

"We had some good hitters; we had some kids with good bat control," pointed out Hagen.

Actually, the Rebels resembled two different teams on offense, according to Hagen. "When we got the first guy on base, we usually did pretty well," he explained. "But sometimes is took three-four innings to get that runner on. When that happened, we had trouble." That's what happened in the post-season match-up with Fertile-Beltrami, a disappointing finish for the Rebels, who had just three base hits and committed five errors that afternoon.

Tallum, Blazek and Lorenson were all given All-Section 8 Sub-Section 3 honors this spring, while Bjorgaard, Myhrer and Sparby were on the honorable mention list.

"It was a great group of kids to work with," said Hagen. "There were 10-11 kids who could start and who could play well for us."

TRF baseball statistics

Thief River Falls finished the year hitting .315 as a team. Record-wise the Prowlers wound up 12-7, reaching the North Sub-Section 8AA semifinals before losing to eventual champion Fergus Falls 10-0.

"Overall, I thought our season pretty much went the way I expected," said Thief River Falls head coach Tracey Wensloff. "At the beginning of the year I said I thought we'd hit for average, but probably not for power, and that's the way it went (the Prowlers hit only seven home runs in 19 games). Defensively we did okay, and pitching-wise, we had the two kids (Bernstein/Wald) who did a real nice job for us on the mound."

Bernstein led the pitching staff with a 5-1 won-loss mark and an eye-catching .056 earned run average – giving up just three earned runs in 37 innings of work. He struck out 27 and walked 11.

Wald went 4-1 with a 3.71 ERA, striking out 25 and walking 12 in 34 innings.

Third pitcher on the staff was Jeremy Olson with a 2-2 record, while Rick Ostby (1-0) and Haugen (0-1) both appeared in one game each.

"Mitch was outstanding, and Darin did a nice nice job," said Wensloff. "They both set the tone for the rest of the team. They went out and threw strikes. Unfortunately, the way the weather and the schedule worked out, the other kids didn't get the chance to throw as much as we would have liked."

The 12-7 overall mark includes a pair of losses at the Warroad Invitational when the Prowlers used a split squad approach to play at two different sites. The team went intact to Warroad for the tournament opener Friday, May, 1, and beat International Falls 6-2. The next day most of the varsity starters went to Detroit Lakes to face a Minot – North Dakota's lone large-school Class A baseball team – while the junior varsity filled most of the spots for the return trip to Warroad. The Prowlers beat Minot 12-3, but they lost to Fertile-Beltrami 10-2 and Warroad 11-10 in the Warroad Invitational.

Thief River Falls was an impressive 5-0 winner over Moorhead in first-round North Sub-Section 8AA tournament play, but a five-game winning streak ended with the lopsided loss to Fergus Falls the next day.

"We came a long way this year," said Wensloff. "I was happy with the season, except for the way it ended. You never want to end a year with a game where you did not play as well as you could. And that's what happened against Fergus Falls."

Bernstein, Wald and shortstop Barry Dowers were the only seniors on the 1992 season. Other letter winners were juniors Josh Balmer, Wade Evenson, Jason Svir, Shane Zutz, Haugen, Knutson, Olson, Ostby, and Rogalla, plus student managers Leslie Ammerman and Kristi Lindberg.

State fish, wildlife agencies awarded funds for projects

Secretary of the Interior Manuel Lujan announced that $353.4 million will be made available to state conservation agencies this year to help finance fish and wildlife restoration programs. This distribution of federal aid funding by the Department of Interior U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service constitutes the final apportionment for Fiscal Year 1992.

"These revenues will be used for projects ranging from land acquisition for wildlife to construction projects for public hunting and fishing areas, Lujan said.

Revenues are generated from excise taxes paid by the hunting, fishing and boating public. They are collected by sporting goods manufacturers and credited to the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration Fund (Pittman-Robertson) and the Sport Fish Restoration Account of the Aquatic Resources Trust Fund (Dingell-Johnson/Wallop-Breaux). The funds are then appropriated to the Fish and Wildlife Service to be distributed to the states as grants.

Minnesota received $4,338,364 in wildlife restoration funds, and $7,470,107 in sport fish restoration funds.

Distribution of sport fish restoration funds is based on the land and water area and the number of fishing license holders in each state. Wildlife restoration funds are made available based on land area and the number of hunting license holders in each state. Distribution of hunter education funds is based on the relative population of each state.

State funding must pay at least 25 percent of the cost for each project approved under the two programs.

Skaters not to skate in TRF business district

Skating of any kind is not allowed in the downtown business district in Thief River Falls.

Police Chief Ken Froschheiser told reporters Tuesday that his department has received complaints about skaters in the downtown business district. Last year, the city passed an ordinance prohibiting the use of skates, in-line skates and skate boards in the downtown district.

The downtown business district is defined as that area bounded by the south curb line of Fourth street to the north curb line of First street and from the west curb line of Atlantic avenue to the east curb line of Knight avenue.

Safety is the primary reason for the ordinance. Because of traffic and pedestrians, skating in the downtown district would be safety concern to shoppers and skaters. Chief Froschheiser said an example would be of a pedestrian coming out of a merchant's door to be hit by someone on in-line skates.

The influx of motor traffic and traffic movements also poses a serious hazard to skaters. Motorists are making so many more turning movements than in other areas, that the downtown district is a dangerous area for skaters.

Property damage caused by skating is also a concern. In the past some skaters have used steps and ramps to do their skating on. Such use can cause damage to the property.

When skating in other areas of the community, Chief Froschheiser recommends that skaters use the road and go with traffic not against it. Skating two or three abreast is not a serious problem, but he asks skaters to try to avoid putting motorists in the difficult position of having to cross the center line.

When skating it is always advisable to wear safety equipment. One part of the city ordinance deals with wearing reflective material, especially at night. Wearing helmets, knee pads and other equipment can help protect the skater from injury.

Basically, Chief Froschheiser said, the city uses the warning system. After three warning tickets are issued the skates can be impounded for up to 30 days and a court fine is possible.

No injuries in Moose and car accident

Driver of a vehicle involved in a collision with a moose was not injured. The car he was driving, however, was considered a total loss.

Minnesota state patrol received a report of a car and moose accident on Highway 32 one mile north of Middle River on Saturday. According to the report, a car driven by Thomas Eggerud of Thief River Falls was traveling south on Highway 32 one mile north of Middle River when it collided with a moose. Eggerud's 1973 camaro was considered a total loss.

WAGNER-PEYSER ACT PUBLIC NOTICE
PROGRAM YEAR 1992

As provided by Part 652 of the Wagner-Peyser Act, 29 USC, 49 et. seq., the Minnesota Department of Jobs and Training announces the following sub-state allocations of funds received pursuant to the Act.

District	Allocation	District	Allocation
District IA (West Metro)	$2,433,461	District III (Northwest)	$1,431,004
District IB (East Metro)	2,338,283	District IV (Central)	1,649,497
District II (Northeast)	812,743	District V (South)	1,573,126

Such allocations are for the period July 1, 1992, through June 30, 1993, also known as Program Year 1992 (PY1992).

Wagner-Peyser funding is used for public employment service activity. Approximately 72 percent of the above funds were allocated based on each sub-state district's relative share of the state civilian labor force (weight 2/3) and unemployed (weight 1/3) in Calendar Year 1991. Approximately 18 percent of the funds were allocated to the districts according to each district's relative share of the total number of placement transactions made by the Minnesota Job Service from 7/1/89 through 12/31/91. Approximately 10 percent of the above funds were allocated to the districts based upon the quotients resulting when the district's share of state's unemployed is divided by the district's share of state's civilian labor force.

Component plans were developed for Service Delivery Areas within the state in conjunction with the Private Industry Councils and Chief Elected Officials representing such areas for this purpose.

Written comments regarding the allocations or the planning process will receive full review and consideration and should be addressed to the attention of Dean Sullivan, Job Service and Unemployment Insurance Operations, Minnesota Department of Jobs and Training, 390 North Robert Street, St. Paul, MN 55101.

MINNESOTA POLLUTION CONTROL AGENCY
PUBLIC NOTICE ON PROPOSED AIR EMISSION FACILITY PERMIT

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that the Commissioner of the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency proposes to issue Air Emission Facility Permit No. 365D-92-OT-1 to Great Lakes Gas Transmission Partnership Limited (mailing address: One Woodward Avenue, Suite 1600, Detroit, Michigan) for its Compressor Station #2 located in Newfolden, Marshall County, Minnesota.

The draft permit applies to the entire existing facility and authorizes the continued operation of 2 natural gas fired turbines which drive compressors. The draft permit contains no operational limits on the turbines since they are existing emission sources, although the facility has never been permitted. Therefore, the existing sources potentially, as well as actually, emit over 500 tons per year of carbon monoxide. Consequently, the proposed permit must be public noticed per Minnesota rules. The facility is located in an attainment area for all pollutants emitted. The duration of the proposed permit will be the normal 5 years. A summary of the facility's emissions is as follows:

Emission Rates (tons/yr)

Pollutant	Existing Emissions	Change in Emissions
PM	0.5	0.0
PM-10	0.5	0.0
SO_2	0.7	0.0
NO_X	386.3	0.0
VOC	161.9	0.0

The Permittee did not submit an air quality impact analysis which would show predicted ambient air impacts due to the continued operation of the facility, since this is not required for permitting an existing operation. The facility is 12 miles west of the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge which at present is designated a Class I area. A Class I area is a pristine area (National parks, wilderness areas, memorial parks and international parks). Therefore, any future modification to this facility resulting in a significant increase in NO_X (40 tons per year or more) will require federal Prevention of Significant Deterioration (PSD) review and best available control technology (BACT) analysis. PSD review also requires dispersion modeling of emissions to predict ambient air impact.

The preliminary determination to issue the permit is tentative. There are three formal procedures for public participation in the Agency's consideration of the permit application. These procedures are set forth in Minn. Rules pts. 7001.0100 to 7001.0130. First, interested persons may submit written comments on the proposed permit. Second, interested persons may request the Agency to hold a public information meeting. Third, interested persons may request the Agency to hold a contested case hearing, which is conducted by the Office of Administrative Hearings pursuant to the Administrative Procedures Act.

Interested persons who submit comments or requests to the Agency shall set forth:

1. a statement of the person's interest in the permit application or the draft permit;

2. a statement of the action the person wishes the Agency to take, including specific references to the section of the draft permit that the person believes should be changed, and

3. the reasons supporting the person's position, stated with sufficient specificity as to allow the Division Manager of the Air Quality Division to investigate the merits of the person's positions.

The public comment period commences June 16, 1992, and terminates July 16, 1992. Comments and requests should be mailed to:

Jerome M. Uefert
Air Quality Division
Minnesota Pollution Control Agency
520 Lafayette Road North
St. Paul, Minnesota 55155

All written comments and requests for public information meetings or contested case hearings received during the public comment period will be considered by the Division Manager of the Air Quality Division. The Division Manager will issue a final determination in a timely manner after the expiration of the public comment period.

A copy of the draft permit will be mailed to any interested person upon the Agency's receipt of a written request. Additional materials relating to the issuance of this permit are available for inspection at the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, Air Quality Division, 520 Lafayette Road North, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55155, phone (612) 296-7607 and at the Agency's Regional Office located in Lake Avenue Plaza, 714 Lake Avenue, Suite 220, Detroit Lakes, Minnesota 56501, phone (218) 847-1516 between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

FAITH SHOWS YOUR FATHER HAVING THE RIGHT ANSWERS

Your father had to be a sage
To help you through your childhood stage,
And all the wisdom he'd impart
Convinced you he was pretty smart.
He'd tell of his experience,
While building up your confidence
That whether you'd succeed or fall,
Your common sense would still prevail.
Then later, without thinking twice,
You chose to spurn his good advice,
Because of pressure from your peers,
But then, as you advanced in years,
You learned that in his whole life through,
Your father did his best for you.
So faith will tell you, come what may,
To honor him on Father's Day.
- Gloria Nowak

Blood runs low during summer

Blood supplies are in short supply due to summer, according to Rhonda Ellefson, United Blood Services community relations representative.

Low summer blood supplies are the result of fewer donors due to vacations, fishing, camping and other summer activities, listed Ellefson.

Other reasons for lack of donors includes students' schedules. "High schools and colleges are an important source of blood donors during the school year. During the summer months we hold no school blood drives and young people become preoccupied with their busy activities," Ellefson said.

The reluctance of businesses to sponsor blood drives during the time when they might be short-staffed due to employee vacations also results in fewer donors, Ellefson said.

"We understand their point of view. Unfortunately, patients continue to need blood right through the summer regardless of vacations or school holidays," Ellefson said.

The next United Blood Services blood drive is Monday, June 15 at the Grygla Community Center from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The following people may be contacted for an appointment: Ione Aune, 294-6323; Loren Lusignan, 294-6294 or 6155; Mildred Klamar, 459-3436; Ralph Rundell, 294-6177.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson attended the graduation exercises at Heritage school on Sunday, and the reception for Caroline Anderson. Later they visited with Lloyd Nelson of Kennedy. Mrs. Rose Nelson had passed away that morning.

I was looking through some of my father's old papers and found a book dated 1902, A Diary and Time Saver. The address was Ole Thompson, Fir, MN, and several pages at the beginning and ending are filled with things considered well worth knowing. The thing which fascinated me the most was the description of Characters of Marriageable Ladies of the Day.

1- A girl born in January will be a prudent housewife, given to melancholy but good tempered.

2- If in February, an affectionate wife and tender mother.

3- If in March, a chatterbox, given to quarrelling.

4- If in April, inconstant, not intelligent, but good looking.

5- If in May, handsome and happy.

6- If in June, impetuous, will marry early and be frivolous.

7- If in July, passably handsome, but with a sulky temper.

8- If in August, amiable and practical, and will marry rich.

9- If in September, discreet, affable, and much liked.

10- If in October, pretty, coquettish, and be unhappy.

11- If in November, liberal and of a mild disposition.

12- If in December, well proportioned, fond of novelty and extravagant.

I wonder if my father ever put much stock in all the information he had available or that as soon as he set eyes on that cute little Swede, only a few weeks in America, he set his heart on having her for a wife? Later I wonder if he checked on it when eight daughters came along, all in different months. I read where only 1/3 of women 20 to 25 years of age were married, so I'm glad that we now have two or three chances?

The June meeting was held on the first Wednesday of the month as regularly scheduled. All reports were read and approved, and several thank you notes were read. We ask that everyone always, please put their name on a pan or serving dish. The club cannot be responsible for forgotten dishes, although we will do what we can to help. Hilda reported that she had sold 15 tickets for raising money for the Senior Federation. A check will be mailed to them. Thanks to Hilda for taking care of this. The Times' Editorial Opinion

The Times
Thief River Falls, Minnesota

John P. Mattson, publisher

David Hill, associate editor

Editorial opinion published on this page, whether locally written or re-printed from other sources is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. A Father's Day Reflection

Rev. Val Peter, executive director of the noted home for troubled boys and girls at Boys Town, NE, invites the public to reflect on the situation involving a former resident of Boys Town who came into his office one day.

"He was 30 years old," Rev. Peter writes. "He told me he was just notified that his father died and left him about a million dollars. He had never seen his father. His father abandoned him when he was a boy and his mother left him at boys Town when he was very young."

"I couldn't even tell you what he looked like," the man told Rev. Peter. "I came to Boys Town in the fifth grade and graduated from high school here. In all the years, I never got a birthday present from my dad. I never got a Christmas present. I never got one letter."

And then he added, "I would rather have had just one postcard or letter from my dad than this million dollars. It would have been much more important to me then, and still would be."

"Let's reflect on that this month," Rev. Peter said, "the month when we celebrate Father's Day. What is it that children want from their fathers—and mothers? What they want, more than anything else, is a sign that you love them, that you accept them and that you believe in them.

"There are lots of kids whose dads have showered them with money but given them no love or affection. If a man could say, 'I would rather have had one letter, or even a postcard, from my dad when I was a boy than this million dollars,' it ought to inspire every dad who is reading this—and rooms, too—to do something good for your children."

Rev. Peter says that his own father worked seven days a week in the Depression days when he was a young boy, but that he took Saturday afternoons off to be with his family. "I don't remember much what we did, but that Dad spent time with us," he writes. "I know in my heart it was his way of saying he loved us. That....is one of the most important things in my life. It's an important thing in your children's lives, too."

Father's Day perhaps should not be so much a day of recognizing fathers for being fathers as a day of fathers reflecting on their responsibilities as fathers. Fathers who abuse, abandon or neglect their children are inflicting untold cruelty to their own offspring. We can't understand that kind of person. But in a very real sense being ignored or set aside by a parent may be as painful to a child as being beaten by one.

The growing tendency in our society to treat fatherhood as an accident of promiscuous gratification and to ignore the results is a sign of sickness in attitude and a weakening of the moral fiber which has marked our nation as being a cut above base instincts of other cultures.

In our reflection a person isn't man enough to father a child unless he is enough of a man to love, protect, nurture, provide for and educate that child. And it will take a lot of convincing before that opinion can be expected to change.

Check Your Social Security Earnings Records

Following opinion was written by Martha A. McSteen, president of the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare, and is printed here in the public interest:

Have you ever checked your Social Security earnings record? If not, you may want to make a note to do so. It could mean more money in your pocket down the road.

Few people know that between 1978 and 1984 more than $58 billion in wages were not credited to the Social Security records of an estimated nine million working Americans and beneficiaries. Additional errors between 1984 and 1988 raised the total to about $68 billion.

These errors are important because how much workers earn and how long they work are key factors in determining the amount of social Security benefits they receive. Inaccurate records mean a possible loss of benefits.

The findings came from a General Accounting Office report that prompted the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare to sue the Social Security Administration and the Internal Revenue Service to correct those records and implement proper procedures to make sure they don't recur.

Finally, after a four-year battle, the fight is over. The lawsuit has been settled. The Social Security Administration and IRS have agreed to implement procedures that will go a long way toward ensuring accurate and timely crediting of employee wages.

Equally important, the government also agreed to make it easier for present and past workers to correct incorrect records and apply for any retroactive payments. For example, the agency also will accept a claim if the government has a record of a person's earnings in the year immediately before or after the year in question, and the claimed earnings are consistent with the worker's earnings history.

Currently, correcting an earnings error can be difficult because it requires all kinds of paperwork and records that may be difficult or impossible to obtain.

I strongly urge all working Americans and Social Security beneficiaries to call or visit their Social Security office every few years to request a personal earnings and benefits estimate statement and check their earnings record. A little effort now could save you a lot of unnecessary headaches in the future.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

On Dairy Day I was helping my daughter strap her children into the car. To free my hands for this, I laid my purse on top of the car. when everyone was in, we drove away without a thought for the purse.

This is a letter of appreciation for the two fine boys who, shortly after I came home, arrived at my door with my purse.

It's just great to know that we have such honest and helpful youngsters in our community. I would like to know their names, which I failed to get that day. I do hope that they see this commendation for them and for their parents.

To paraphrase Paul Harvey, "Boys, lead on!"

Sincerely,
Iola Rokke

To The Editor:

Several weeks ago our church experimented with the marketing approach of a telephone survey by computer. We called (actually, our computer called) almost 1,000 numbers in the Thief River Falls area.

The Minneapolis-based church then recorded your responses and passed that information on to us, along with the compliments we needed to hear. Since a lot of you folks were part of the experiment, perhaps the results will be interesting to you.

In all, 339 hung up, 266 were not at home (seven rings allowed), 231 were intercepted by switchboards, 52 answering machines, 46 busy signals, 25 line disconnects (no party with that number) and 35 positive responses!

The calling time was approximately eight hours and our church lines were interrupted for the same period. Not one party was belligerent or obnoxious toward our effort to get to know the community better. Our helper said we had a very pleasant response from the area, compared to what he had experienced in other cities. Congratulations, TRF!

What did our church learn? Well, first of all, we apologize for any inconveniences we may have caused some. Second, we are thankful for the open-minded, kind responses from some of you. And third, we found the telephone survey very helpful in analyzing gospel receptivity -from an impromptu perspective.

In other words, serious personal messages regarding life and death subjects are usually only received by those with a personal appetite for truth based on a need in their own lives.

So, in the future, if your ear is open for a second opinion concerning heavy spiritual matters, and you need help, don't wait for a computer call from "heaven." It is unlikely that you will get one! Instead, use your computer to call us, and we will respond positively, helpfully and as kindly as we know how.

Sincerely,
Michael L. Forsberg

"The next gathering of veterans to be entertained in Thief River Falls will probably be a noisier affair than the one held here last week-end. By that time the youngsters now in service will be back home again with lots of cause to celebrate their safe return. They are going to be more numerous too than the veterans of World War No. 1, and more energetic. There are going to be many interesting things to look forward to when the present war ends."

"TO MY PATRONS: The SPECTATOR, which from its inception to the present, has been published as a Republican paper, for reasons to be stated in our next issue, has severed its connection with that party and will hereafter be found in the ranks of the People's party. In our issue of June 15th, we stated our objections to the Republican nominees for president and vice president; and as soon as the season of conventions and political gatherings is over and we are again allowed to give our attention to business, we will furnish you the reasons why we could no longer remain with the old party, and why we were induced to cast our lot with the new. The SPECTATOR in the future will maintain the principles of the People's party and will fight its battles as vigorously as it has fought those of the party it has left."

Ayrshire breed champion at the 43rd annual Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls was this registered senior yearling shown by eight-year-old Adam Gast, son of Steve and Vicki Gast of Argyle. Adam was in his second year of showing at Northwest Dairy Day. Although his yearling was the only entry in the Ayrshire breed this year, judges determined it was of good enough quality to merit a championship award.

This two-year-old registered Jersey cow exhibited by Karla Wallace of Middle River won the Jersey breed championship at Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls Tuesday. It was later selected as the best-uddered cow of the show and reserve champion purebred. The daughter of Elsie Wallace, Karla also showed the grand champion grade animal of the show with a five-year-old Holstein. Reserve champion Jersey was shown by Kayleen Paulson, daughter of Wesley and Bonnie Paulson of Greenbush.

IRS offers help with tax problems

The Internal Revenue Service's Problem Resolution Office (PRO) offers assistance to those who have tested their skills against the IRS computer and lost, or run amuck in a sea of paper.

Last year, PROs across the country assisted more than 400,000 Americans with tax problems ranging from misapplied payments and lost refunds, to scrambled social security numbers, garbled surnames, address changes and Taxpayer Assistance Orders.

If someone has problems with the IRS and hasn't been able to solve them through normal channels, they may call the IRS toll-free at 1-800-829-1040 and ask for the Problem Resolution Office.

Tele-Tax, an automated system of prerecorded tax information can also provide more details on the Problem Resolution Office. Call 1-800-829-4477, a 24-hour line, and request tape number 104.

There are 1.2 million people in America who are partially or completely paralyzed.

Mosquito spraying set for next week

Summer residents who live in Narthwest Minnesota know they will have one coastant companion — the mosquito. Wish as we might, Mosquitoes are a fact of life in Northwest Minnesota.

With the recent heavy rains, the little monsters — sometimes called Minnesata's State Bird — will become an ever-increasing problem.

According to Thief River Falls City Forester John Johnson, residents of Thief River Falls have been relatively lucky this spring. Because of cooler than normal temperatures and a lack of standing water mosquitoes haven't been much of a problem.

All the rain the area received in the past week, however, will probably put an end to that. Johnson is preparing for the inevitable infestation. He said his department may spray as early as next week depending upon the number of complaints and mosquito activity.

Thief River Falls hasn't invested in any scientific method to determine how many mosquitoes are out there. Johnson said he just goes outside and sees how many of the little monsters land on him. He said he also relies heavily on residents who call to complain. "We usually receive more complaints in the spring," he said. "Probably because they aren't used to mosquitoes after a long winter."

So if the mosquitoes have got you running for cover, let the city know.

Fighting mosquitoes is less than scientific, but given the right conditions it can be effective.

The city of Thief River Falls uses Dursban, an organo phospate similar to malathion to fight the pests. Equipment such as what Thief River Falls has and uses

Ash trees in TRF not hit by disease

Concern over Dutch Elm Disease is being replaced by concerns about a disease that affects Ash trees.

Very little is known about Ash Yellows, said Thief River Falls City Forester John Johnson. Recent stories about the disease have caused some local concern; although, Johnson said, he has not observed any of the symptoms in ash trees in Thief River Falls.

There's a difference of opinion whether Ash Yellows will be a large problem or not. Johnson said he has had residents ask whether all the ash trees are going to die.

The problem has not been identified in Thief River Falls. It has been identified in southern Minnesota and Iowa. Symptoms include seeing a general decline in the health of the tree, a loss of vigor, new sprouts on the trunk, yellowing leaves, and a mass of small branches that grow together and look like a nest. The key to a field diagnosis is identifying the mass of branches that look like a nest, Johnson said.

A positive identification can be made, but it is complicated and requires a special laboratory. There is no such lab in Minnesota, Johnson said.

While he has not identified the disease in Thief River Falls, Johnson has observed that some of the trees were slow in leafing out this spring. Insects could be causing part of the problem. A number of trees are infested with the ash plant bug. The ash plant bug can be controlled by using two (2) teaspoons of Sevin per gallon of water, Johnson said.

Johnson said he wants to reassure residents that there is no need to get upset about Ash Yellows right now. Even if it is identified in the community, it won't decimate the city's forest. One method of preventing the loss of a city's forest

Offer to assist farmers with FmHA packets

To assist farmers with loan servicing packets sent by the Farmers Home Administratian (FmHA) to delinquent borrowers at the end of May, several meetings have been scheduled in northwestern Minnesota, including one on Tuesday, July 7, at 7 p.m. in the Northland Community college cafeteria in Thief River Falls.

FmHA borrowers who received the packets have 60 days to respond or will lose many of the loan servicing options presently available to them, according to Howard Person, Pennington county extensian agent.

"Because the packets are quite extensive and can be difficult to fill out," Person said, "the meetings havo been scheduled to help farmers wishing to have assistance."

Conducting the meetings will be Jan Boll, Minnesota farm advocate, and Kevin Duffy, attorney who specializes in the practice of farm law. Support is provided by the Area Ag Information Center in Thief River Falls, the University of Minnesota extension service and area adult farm management instructors.

Farmers who have received packets and wish assistance are encouraged to attend one of the meetings or call the Area Ag Information Center at 681-6236, the Pennington county extension office at 681-2116, other local extension office or the area farm management staff person for additional assistance. There is no cost nor registration fee.

Magazine presents award to Zehlians

Local Chapter of the Zehlians welcomed Dan Kaercher, editor of Midwest Living, a magazine published in Des Moines, IA, by Meredith Corp., to Thief River Falls and in exchange he presented the Zehlians with a check for $1,000.

It wasn't quite as easy as welcoming the editor to the community. Kaercher was in Thief River Falls Manday to present an award to the group for its Follow the Rivers project.

Gretchen Beito, a representative of the Zehlians, a branch of the General Federoted Women's Club, explained that last year Ina and George Mostue of Thief River Falls suggested that the club enter the Thief River Falls Follow the River's project in the Hometown Pride contest advertised in Midwest Living. A little later, Joan Strong and Annette Bergan had the same suggestion. All seemed to think that the Follow the Rivers project had an excellent opportunity to win. They were right!

The Zehlians were notified that the 7.3 mile lang hiking path had been selected to receive one of the beautification awards, supported in part by True Value Hardware.

There are five categories in the Hometawn Pride Awards contest — people helping people, beautification, historic preservation, economic development and environment — and each is divided by population. Midwest Living, a magazine mostly about pride in the Midwest, holds the contest every two years.

Since the magazine began five years ago with a circulation of 400,000 it now has a circulation of 750,000. Kaercher said there were over 600 entries in the contest.

Midwest Living editors estimate that the pool of entries represented approximately 200,000 volunteer hours, which calculates to 8,333 days — or 23 years — of community service in 1991.

It took three days to process all of the entries, Kaercher said. The project in Thief River Falls, however, really stood out, he said.

Monday Kaercher presented the club president, Jan Peterson, with a plaque and a check for $1,000.

Peterson and Beito gave credit for the successful project to many residents and organizatians in the community. At the award ceremony Monday were many members of the city council, Rep. Wally Sparby, city staff, and many members of the Zehlians. Several organizations have contributed funds and/or in-kind services: American Legion, Elks, Rotary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Eagles, Lions, Galden K's, and Silverton 4-H.

Gretchen Urnes Beito

Gretchen Urnes Beito named to Extension advisory committee

Gretchen Urnes Beito of Thief River Falls is a three-year member of the Minnesota Extension Citizens' advisory committee, according to Patrick Borich, dean and director of extension. The advisory committee provides informational counsel about extension programs to Borich and informs public decision-makers about the impact of these programs on Minnesota citizens statewide.

Gretchen is an author (Coya Come Home and Women of Thief River Falls at the Turn of the Century) and columnist ("Prairie Rambling") for the Thief River Falls Times. She has served as president of the boards of Discovery Place child care center, Northwest Region library, Thief River Falls branch of the American Association of University Women and Mrs. Jaycees. She is project chairman for General Federation of Women's club Zehlians "Follow the River" walkway. Gretchen and her husband, Gene, president of Northern State Bank, have three grown children, a son, David and daughters, Kathryn and Laura.

Membership on the committee began with a trip to Washington D.C. in early March to participate in the 16th annual extension lay leaders' seminar. New committee members joined other advisory groups from across the nation to discuss opportunities for extension programs and building support from regional and national perspectives. Members also met with their senators and congressmen.

Committee members later participated in the April committee meeting in St. Paul and also visited their legislators at the state capitol.

Advisory committee members provide counsel to the director about extension programs and support. Organized in 1976, the committee is a volunteer group representing citizens from all walks of life across Minnesota. New members are selected yearly from minnesota extension districts and serve either two or three-year terms. The committee meets twice a year to discuss extension program objectives and priorities.

Tours replace Crops and Soils Day

A series of four mini-tours will replace the traditional Crops and Soils Day originally scheduled for July 15 at the Northwest Experiment Station at Crookston.

Their first tour in the series will be held on 9 a.m., Thursday, July 2. The tour will begin on the Station Agronomy Farm located one mile north of the intersection of Highway 2 and 75. Included in this tour will be small grain and sugarbeet weed control and sugarbeet insecticide research. Speakers will include Drs. Beverly Durgan, Alan Dexter and Albin "Andy" Anderson.

The remaining tours, yet to be scheduled, will focus on: small grain varieties, fertility and disease control; horticultural crops for northwestern Minnesota; and fall row crops and tillage.

The major reason for the change in format is to allow more in-depth discussion of the topic at hand and to show the various research projects in a more timely fashion, which is not possible in a single field day.

The Cenex Foundation also presents Cooperative Studies Scholarships to 78 students at designated universities throughout the Midwest and Pacific Northwest.

MPR names new general manager

Lois Hanson, Minnesota Public Radio's (MPR) station manager for KCCM 91.1 FM in Fargo-Moorhead, has been promoted to the new position of general manager for MPR stations KCCM 91.1 FM and KCCD 90.3 FM in Fargo-Moorhead, and stations KQMN 91.5 and KNTN 102.7 in Thief River Falls.

In her new position, Hanson will manage general operations at the stations, including hiring and supervising local staff, overseeing station development and promotion initiatives, and exploring local programming options. She will also be responsible for maintaining the quality of local programs.

Lois Hanson has been with MPR since 1979 when she joined KCCM 91.1 FM as the director of development, promotion and membership. In 1983, she was promoted to assistant manager and she became KCCM's station manager in 1986. She also initiated — and continues to develop — the Young Artists Solo Competition, a program sponsored jointly by KCCM and the Symphony Women's Association.

"Lois has demonstrated an ability to work well with people, both on an individual and a community level," said Dennis Hamilton, vice president of network stations. "She will take what she has applied in her role as manager of KCCM into a new role, allowing more people to benefit from her talent and expertise."

Lois Hanson said, "The staff and I look forward to our increased commitment. It is a privilege watching the broadcast service of Minnesota Public Radio grow, providing expanded news and information and classical music programming to this part of the state."

Pooling helps revolving loan funds

Businesses in small rural communities can benefit from revolving loan funds, but pooling of funds among communities might make them even more effective, according to Tom Stinson, economist with the University of Minnesota's department of agricultural and applied economics.

Success of a revolving loan fund depends on a large, diversified loan portfolio," Stinson says, "but many such funds in non-metro cities have too few loans to provide diversification.

"Revolving loan funds must extend beyond municipal boundaries if they are to attain the size and stability necessary to achieve their promise," Stinson says.

"Such fund pooling requires overcoming attitudinal and political barriers, but could have enormous potential impact on the future quality of life for those living in non-metro Minnesota," he adds.

Funded by the Northwest Area Foundation, his study found that nearly 70 per cent of the 157 public and non-profit economic development rural loan funds were maintained by local governments outside the state's metropolitan areas.

The Department of Trade and Economic Development's Minnesota Economic Recovery Fund was the largest initial capital source for revolving loan funds in rural areas. Most funds received their initial capital indirectly, through a pass-through of a state or federally-funded economic development loan or grant destined for a local firm.

For revolving loan fund loans, all payments of principal and interest are made to the local fund to provide funding for future loans. Revolving funds must generate new revenue sources to be self-renewing finance sources for local economic development, Stinson says.

"Either debt service payments must be sufficient to provide capital for future loans, or the fund must attract additional sources of financing," Stinson said. "Most revolving funds in non-metro cities have been unable to do either," he said.

Copies of the report are available in the spring 1992 issue of "Minnesota Agricultural Economist," published by the University of Minnesota extension service. Free single copies are available from Waite Library, 232 Classroom Office Building, 1994 Buford Avenue, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, MN 55108-6040.

Federation to study care

The state of Minnesota has contracted with the Minnesota Senior Federation to study the effectiveness of a state program to provide home care for the frail elderly as an alternative to placement in nursing homes. Two counties in Northwest Minnesota are involved in the study. They are Marshall and Lake of the Woods.

According to Al Sollom, President of the Minnesota Senior Federation, Northwest Region (headquartered in Thief River Falls), the study will be conducted by Northwest Region Federation members.

Results of the study will be reported to the Minnesota Department of Human Services on a scheduled basis with the final report being made on April 1, 1993.

The study will include interviews with nursing home residents and their families, as well as with seniors who live in the community and receive home care as an alternative to nursing home placement.

The Federation will conduct public education activities about locally available long term care alternatives and how to gain access to them. These activities will include public forums which are expected to feature speakers from the public health and social service departments of the counties involved. The Federation will also conduct speaking presentations in such places as senior centers, nutrition sites, churches, senior housing units, and other places where seniors congregate. The Federation will submit articles to area newspapers, senior publications and newsletters promoting the Alternative Care program.

Meetings will be sought with the county boards of the two counties to discuss the study and its results and to promote the utilization of Alternative Care funds in providing care to the frail elderly. Sollom emphasized that the Federation wishes to work together with the boards of Marshall and Lake of the Woods counties in promoting the program for the benefit of seniors in the area.

Magazine gives award check to TRF Zehlians

Beito concluded that the project is a result of the involvment of many organizations and many people including 17 local organizations, the State, County, City and volunteers.

While progress has been made on the 7.3 mile long project, more work needs to be done before it is really completed. That's why the award presentation was held in Hartz park behind the Armory.

Margaret Saetre, chairman of the bridge project planned for Hartz park, unveiled a drawing of a proposed bridge. Saetre explained that the next phase of the project is a pedestrian bridge at the park. Having eliminated many designs for being too expensive or ineffective, she decided to ask the engineering department at the University of Minnesota to come up with some designs. Saetre was pleased to learn a short time later that a group of students would attempt the project. She recently received seven different designs.

Monday, she unveiled the designed that pleased the Zehlians the most. Before the project design is accepted, however, they must get a cost estimate and the approval of the city council.

Mosquito spraying to start next week eliminates any potential harm from the chemical to humans or their pets, Johnson said. Because of the type of sprayer used, it is almost impossible to have any paint damage to vehicles because of the chemical. It does, however, have the same affect on honey bees as it does on mosquitoes.

Before the city is allowed to spray for mosquitoes, it has to submit a plan to the State Department of Agriculture to get authorization to spray for mosquitoes. The plan must state what equipment is used, chemical, when spraying tokes place and how the public is notified. If it meets requirements of the state department of agriculture, the plan is approved. The plan for spraying in Thiof River Palls has already been approved.

To work, the chemical has to come in contact with mosquitoes, which is why it's not a good idea to spray if there's a chance of rain. Application, Johnson said, takes place one-half hour after sunset or between 9:30 aad 10 p.m. City crews are able to cover half of the town in one evening and it takes until about 3 or 4 a.m. to get the job done.

Weather is an important factor in spraying for mosquitoes. Rain has an affect and so does wind. If the wind is 10 miles per hour or moro the process is not effective. The temperature should also be between 55 and 60 degrees.

Local ash trees not affected by disease has been to plant or re-plant with a variety of trees and that's what Thief River Falls has done.

While Ash Yellows has taken all the headlines, Dutch Elm Disease is still a problem. Johnson said he was able to identify the symptoms of the disease in many trees last week. Starting this week, residents will see red lines around trees that need to be removed.

When a tree needs to be removed, Johnson said he notifies the property owner and tells them how much timo they have to remove the tree.

Johnson has been busy with a number of projects this spring, including Arbor day and a planting project in Red Robe park. The tree planting program in Red Robe Park has been completed. Earlier this spring, the city decided to plant o number of trees in the park.

Johnson has also been busy working on the plans for planting and re-planting trees along the Highway 32 Main street project.

Small trees found on Main street that need to be removed will bo planted on Third street (Highway 59). If the tree is owned by the property-owner and is small enough to be replanted, property owners will be contacted and asked where they want the tree to go.

Removal of trees along the north end of the Highway 32 Main street project will not take place until the north end of the detour system is in place.

As always, Johnson said, residents can contoct him for more information.

Steve Feliman goes to Alaska

Steve Fellman of Thief River Palls has been selected to serve as a resource assistant volunteer with the Student Conservation Association (SCA) in the Anchorage, AK, district from June 1 through August 15.

The experience is co-sponsored by the Alaska Bureau of Land Management. Fellman will be one of more than 1,100 college students and other adults who will be taking part in SCA's 1992 program.

A junior at St. Cloud State university and alumnus of the 1990 program, Fellman will spend his summer in a field camp located on a remote floodplain along the Kuskokwim river in southwestern Alaska. He will be measuring lake parameters such as depth and surface area, collecting water samples by small boat and canoe to determine chemical properties, and documenting waterfowl use of water bodies sampled. He will also be jointly responsible for camp maintenance.

SCA is a nonprofit educational organization based in New Hampshire that has provided expense-paid field experiences in natural resources management and conservation for high school and college students and other adults since 1957.

AURI lab in Crookston sets opening

Grand opening of the new laboratory and pilot plant of the Agricultural Utilization and Resource Institute (AURI) in Crookston will be held Wednesday, July 16, from 2 to 7 p.m. at the Owen Hall Annex, University of Minnesota—Crookston.

Self-guided tours will be held throughout the day and product samples will be given away. The pilot plant gives entrepreneurs and small business owners a place to make and test new products made from farm commodities. The laboratory provides chemical analysis and quality control for projects.

"With this facility, our clients won't have the expense of setting up a laboratory or buying equipment to test a product," stated Dick Stone, AURI manager of engineering and processing. "If a company or entrepreneur has an idea, the process for making the finished product can be determined in our plant."

The laboratory and pilot plant will help small companies look for ways to commercialize agriculturally-sourced products using existing knowledge from universities and established industries.

"Our facility is the step between basic research and a commercial product," Stone says. "We call it technology transfer." Research not being done elsewhere can be done at the AURI facility and findings will be applied to commercial opportunities.

Funding for the remodeled facility came from AURI operating funds, and the facility is staffed by Stone; Dr. Charan Wadhawan, cereal scientist; and Dr. Edward Wene, fermentation scientist.

"We are pleased to have our pilot plant and laboratory up and running," states AURI executive director Richard Nelson. "It is another step toward the AURI goal of assisting ecooomic growtb aod development in rural Minnesota."

AURI is a non-profit, public corporation created by the State of Minnesota to strengthen its economy through the development of new and value-added uses for Minnesota farm products.

The Kiddie Parade will start out at the Greenbush Nursing Home at 10:30 a.m. Participants in the parade should line up previous to this time.

Lutheran All-State Choir here

Approximately 60 high school singers who comprise the Minnesota All-State Lutheran Choir will perform Thursday, June 25, at 7:30 p.m. at Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. The concert is free and open to the public.

Chosen from applicants from all around Minnesota, these young people have been rehearsing at Mount Carmel Lutheran Camp near Alexandria prior to embarking on their present tour.

Considered unique to the concert is audience participation. Each concert is concluded with the choir seated within the audience and everyone taking part in the singing of hymns. Only a portion of the concert is sung in the traditional choir formation. Placing itself in other formations throughout the sanctuary, the choir makes an effort to involve the audience in the worship service of music.

The choir will perform a variety of music from the classics to gospel.

Boarding home to hold 22nd family picnic

Twenty-second annual family friendship picnic will be held Sunday, June 28, from 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Johnson's Boarding Home on the Red Lake river east of Thief River Falls. All friends and relatives of the residents and staff are invited to attend.

Johnson's Riverside Boarding Home, Inc., also does business as River Oaks Residence and Maplewood Residence.

SDA students participate in parade

Several youngsters from Thief River Falls participated in a parade held in Southern Minnesota last Sunday.

Members of the Adventurer's club, a local branch of an international program for children sponsored by the Seventh-day Adventist church, designed their float as a hot air balloon which was transported along the parade route on an electric golf cart. Named "Adventurers, Arise!" by one of the club members, the float represented the club's activities and curriculum which focus on development and service in four areas: My God, My Self, My Family and My World.

Members of the local club, organized less than a year ago, chose as their name "The Thief River Falls Northern Lights". A vivid blue banner with neon yellow lettering boldly announced the club's home base as members carried it along the parade route. Several hundred people gathered on the campus of Maplewood Academy in Hutchinson to watch the parade and to cheer on the 13 participating clubs.

At the conclusion of the parade activities, club participants and leaders answered the question, "Was this a worthwhile activity?" with a unanimous "Yes". Observed one leader, "This parade did for our kids what a good dose of wet weather does for mosquitoes. It made them very enthusiastic!".

Impressions . . .

Beth Johnson

As we are all aware, Father's Day was this past Sunday. But, true to form, we Johnson's had to be somewhat different. We decided that this year we would be celebrating Father's Day on Monday, not Sunday.

No, we didn't decide to change the day of celebration for any reason other than the fact that one of the reasons my husband celebrates Father's Day was returning from a week of camp on Monday. Father's Day just seemed kind of dumb to be celebrating when in just a few hours all of us could be together to honor the father in our household.

Because we decided to hold off our celebrating a few hours, I took some time to reflect upon this person who is the father of my sons. Truly he is a father for these young men to emulate.

This Dad, like many other Dads, started being a Dad in those first few moments after the birth of his child. Mothers can probably only guess at the pride these Dads feel when they see those helpless babies. From that first moment on, Dad becomes the protector of his young child.

But, this Dad not only protected his children, he also took his fair turn at helping with the raising of his children. He rocked and fed and burped and loved these boys of his. He sang and read and built towers and mended cuts and bruises.

This Dad built sandboxes and skating rinks. This Dad put together his fair share of "some assembly required" toys. This Dad held the bike after the training wheels were removed. This Dad, like many other Dads, taught his sons how to catch a ball, and how to throw one too. This Dad showed his sons how to bat that ball. This Dad is not afraid to be beat by his sons on the tennis court.

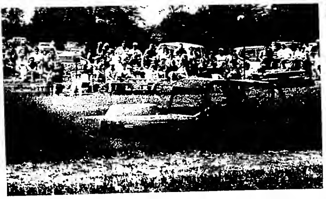
This Dad, like many other Dads, drove many miles to ball games and then sat for hours in the heat and cold and rain watching his sons play ball. This Dad, like many other Dads, sat through concerts that were melodious, and some that were melodious only to a parent's loving ear. This Dad, like many other Dads, sat through plays and games and contests of all kinds. He was always ready to cheer his sons on and to encourage them to try once more when the event was finished.

Dads are special creatures. They are expected by us to be able to fix anything—hearts, minds, toys, windows, engines, loves. They not only are expected to be able to fix anything, but they are expected to be the supplier of much. We expect them to supply our food and our housing. We expect them to supply all the encouragement we need. We expect them to supply the unexpected. We expect them to supply the security our lives need.

This Dad of my sons has done wonderfully. He has supplied his family with the things we have needed. He has surprised us by supplying us with the things we could only dream of. He has not only supplied our needs materially, but he had been the spiritual force in our family. A Dad who only supplies the material needs of his family truly supplies them with nothing.

This Dad of my sons has been the person who has shown them a spiritual direction which if they will emulate they will find peace and joy in spite of life's difficulties. In listening to him and in the listening he does, these boys of ours have been given a peek into how great they can become.

Dads, you are important to your family. As your children have honored you this past Father's Day, so honor them in your life. Give to them the best that you are. They can then be freed to become the best that they can be.



Trucks and jeeps plowed through 200 feet of mud two to three feet deep last Saturday in St. Hilaire's Mud Run. There were four categories in the competition: stock, super stock, modified and open class. The open class category sported the fastest vehicles, with first place tied between Todd Hites of Roseau and Dale Trichil of Twin Valley. They completed the course in 3.16 seconds. Robert Gunther of Gonvick won the stock class with a time of 11.58. Jerry Wernar of Milnor, N.D. won the super stock competition with a time of 8.51 and Mark Anderson of Pillager won the modified competition with a time of 4.41.

Speaking Of . . .

Sharon LaCoursiere

. . . My New Car

Yes, I bought a new car. I needed something bigger than my little bug so I can feel safe when I drive to visit my children and grandchildren.

My little bug was a good little car, but it was just that—a little car. It was very basic.

It was not, however, as basic as the first car I bought for myself. That one was also a little car. It had a manual transmission, a glove compartment (with no door), an ash tray (with no lighter), and not much else.

When I bought my second little bug of a car, it seemed like such a luxury. Even though it also had a manual transmission, it had a door on the glove compartment, a lighter beside the ash tray, and, wonder of wonders, two more ash trays for back seat riders.

My new car is different. It has lots of "things." In fact, it has so many "things" that I am wondering how I will ever learn about all of them.

Actually, I didn't set out to buy a car with so many "things" on it. I just wanted air conditioning. None of my other cars had air conditioning. You know how it is. Sometimes, at my age, a lady needs air conditioning. Sometimes even in the middle of winter a lady my age needs air conditioning. Anyway, all I wanted was air conditioning.

To make a long story short, I ended up with many more "things" on this car than I wanted or needed because I was offered a pretty good deal on the price. All of these fancy dofingies were part of the deal. I couldn't pass up a deal, could I?

The problem I am having is that I don't know what all of the knobs and buttons on the car are for. It takes time to figure out which knobs and buttons turn on which things, and then I have to remember which button or knob turned on which thing so that I can turn it off again.

There are certain things anyone needs to know in order to drive a car properly. A person should know how to turn the car on, how to shift into drive and reverse, how to turn on the heat, the lights, and the windshield wipers.

I just don't have time to learn about all of these things before I need to use them. Then when I need the necessary things, I find my car is so cluttered with knobs and buttons that control other things, the fancy things, that I can't find the ones I need.

For instance, I went to a graduation party the night my new car was delivered. When I went to the party, it was light outside and I did not need my lights. When I left the party, it was dark outside, and I did not know how to turn on my lights.

Fifteen minutes and much ado later (such as turning off and on the windshield wipers, windshield cleaner, motor, trouble light and, probably, rear defrost), I had the car running and the lights on and was proceeding toward home. (Nevermind that the windshield was streaked with wiper fluid and I had to roll down the windows to get a breath of cool air because the heater was blowing hot air on that hot night.)

As I drove warmly along, I realized I had no idea how to turn on the bright lights for highway driving. I also had enough sense to realize that it would not be wise to start pushing and pulling buttons to try to figure out how to turn on the bright lights (or turn off the heater) at that time, because I might just turn everything off. I drove with my dim lights and heater on all the way home. I was not happy with my new car at that time.

(More on my new car next week.)

Area drop-off for pesticide containers set

Pesticide containers will be picked up at the St. Hilaire fertilizer plant in St. Hilaire on June 29.

Pennington county will again be conducting a one-day empty pesticide container collection on June 29 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the St. Hilaire fertilizer plant in St. Hilaire.

To be accepted, the containers must be triple rinsed and free from any visible chemical material. If a chemical has stained a container, it will be accepted as long as the stain won't rub off and there is no residue on the container.

The collected containers will later be picked up by United Agri-Products, shredded and eventually recycled back into new pesticide containers. At pick up, United Agri-Products will re-inspect the containers and if contaminated, will not accept them. Contaminated containers will be returned to the person who brought them in. Please make sure containers are properly rinsed and cleaned, inside and out.

If St. Hilaire is not a handy site to bring containers, there will also be collections at the following locations and times: June 22 and 23 at the fair grounds in Warren; June 24 at Cenex in Grygla; June 29 at Cenex in Red Lake Falls; and June 30 at the elevator in Oklee.

INSURANCE Update

by Carol Nelson

Any policyholder who suffers a loss is required under the terms of the policy to notify the insurance company as soon as the accident or loss occurs. Many policyholders hold off on this responsibility and, in so doing, endanger their right of recovery. If confusion surrounds the policyholder due to his or her unfamiliarity with reporting procedures, the confusion can be cleared up by calling their insurance agent. A policyholder should not fail to report an accident because no damage was incurred, or because he or she doesn't feel that they were at fault. Under such presumed circumstances, the policyholder may still be on the receiving end of a liability suit, which is likely to require the involvement of the insurance company. The insurance company can do a better job of protecting the policyholder if they are aware of their responsibility from the beginning.

As a policyholder it is important to keep insurance coverages updated and report any problems as they arise. At NORTHERN STATE AGENCY, we will discuss your policy and help you understand the scope of protection your coverage will provide. We can tailor your policy to meet your specific needs. Look for us in the Northern State Bank building. Office hours are 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri.; 8:30-6:00 Thurs.

Discovery Place to present "Dust Bunnies" play

The story is about Charlie, a young boy, who is told to clean his room and throws all the toys, clothes and other things under the bed. Unfortunately his things come out the other side as living characters who want to have "rights." When he thinks he hears his mother coming, Charlie leaps under the bed himself and becomes a "toy," a robot with a remote control device which the live toys use to "play" with him and make him do all the things he had done with them.

Performing in the cast will be Philip Hoks, son of Jim and Heidi Hoks, as Charlie; Brent Grahn, son of Denal and Lynn Grahn as Robert; Katie Walseth, daughter of Wally and Mary Walseth, as Mom; Aulaire Schmitz, daughter of Ted and Cheryl Schmitz as Jenny; Tiffany Sorenson, daughter of Dave and Christy Sorenson, as the Teddy Bear; Derek Walseth, son of Ross and Karen Walseth, as the Sandwich; Lindsey Swanson, daughter of Rob and Kim Swanson as the Basketball; Cory Voecks, son of Terry and Cheryl Voecks, as the Robot; Paige Panek, daughter of Steve and Kathy Panek, as the Record; Jeff Zbacnik, son of Jeff and Patty Zbacnik as the Sweatshirt; and Ben Johnson, son of Keith Johnson and Lynae Johnson, as the Book.

"Let's make him march all day! No, let's make him turn around and around! No, let's make him throw up!" Charlie's toys fight over the remote control when Charlie, the Robot, is their toy for a change in a scene from "Dust Bunnies" which will be performed Thursday, June 25 at 7 p.m. at the Northland community college theatre by children from Discovery Place child care center. Shown here (left to right) are Ben Johnson, Cory Voacke, Jeff Zbacnik (top) and Tiffany Sorenson.

Men's TRF triathlon record falls for second year in a row

Cool sunny weather Saturday permitted a new men's course record during the 8th annual Thief River Falls Pepsi-Cola Triathlon.

Steve Kramer of Burnsville completed the 500 yard swim, 12 mile bike and three mile run in 54 mintues and 44 second, 52 seconds faster than the course record set last year. This was the third year in a row that the men's course record has fallen.

The woman's division was won by a Canadian with Debbie Motz-Sandor of Winnipeg finishing in 1 hour 10 mintues and 8 seconds beating Michelle Puetz formerly of Thief River Falls by three and one-half mintues.

In winning the men's race Kramer turned in the fastest split times in the bike and run. The fastest swim spit was from defending men's champion Jim Sandor of Winnipeg. Puetz had the fastest women's swim time with Motz-Sandor turning in the fastest bike and run times.

Again this year there was a relay triathlon. No men's or women's teams were entered, however. The fastest mixed relay team was the winning team of Peterson, Kajewski and Andol of Thief River Falls with a time of 1:07.11.

The race was sponsored by the Pepsi-Cola bottling company of Thief River Falls, Hugo's of Thief River Falls and the Falls Clinic division of Dakota Clinic Ltd. Race director Jim Langland indicated the importance of such sponsors because of the high cost of liability insurance for such events. He expressed thanks to Rod Sletten of Pepsi, Gary Anderson of Hugo's and Jan Nyflot of the Falls Clinic for their support.

SCHOOL BOARD MINUTES

Strandquist School Site - 9:00 a.m.

Notes: Additional discussion concerning sharing of Supt. between Administrative restructuring Committee members of I.S.D. #441 and I.S.D. #2358 and administration.

Members present: Donna Fosholm, Mark Carlson, Doreen Amundson, Judy Bogestad, Kent Hanson, Principal Jim Hodny, Principal Ron Paggen, Principal Ron Rud. Visitor present: George Liepis.

Karlstad Board:

The Karlstad Board is in total agreement as to their willingness of sharing Supt. Schwalbe's time with the Newfolden district. They would be willing to sell 2/5 of his time. Present salary is $50,000.00 ($1,000. for National Convention) excluding ITV directorship, elementary principal and Community Ed Directory. The Board is still negotiating with Supt. Schwalbe for next year. 2/5 time would amount to around $25,000 (this includes TRA and S.S.) The number of days or time Supt. would spend on site could be worked out later.

Other topics discussed: The sharing of transportation costs and Supt. could report to both boards on Supt. meetings etc. Both boards need to create an evaluation form of Supt. for this position. Karlstad would like a copy of the evaluation form Newfolden has used in the past.

Supt. Schwalbe was unable to attend the meeting because of illness. He had stated to committee members he would feel comfortable with a 2/5 time position. However, Schwalbe did have some concerns about his duties such as monitoring of new building, new equipment, room assignments, moving into new building, transportation needs of district and end of year reports due by July 1st.

Newfolden committee members would be checking on any required reports which are due by June 30th - July 1st.

Newfolden Board:

We are interested in 1/4 - 1/3 of Schwalbe's time in the area of fiscal management. Hodny and Paggen (Newfolden Principals) would be busy organizing the two elementary schools and moving into the new High School building. They would be concerned with the general operation of the district. Schwalbe's time would probably be only for 1 year.

Newfolden's Board has had at least one special and one regular board meeting a month. (This can vary from month to month) The Board may not require Schwalbe's attendance at each meeting. This can be decided at a future date.

The feeling of the Newfolden board is that they wish to share Schwalbe's time not another individual. If he should accept another contract at another district the board would have to reconsider the agreement.

Newfolden would like this agreement in place on or before July 1, 1992.

All members present agreed Newfolden's board will have to define what will be expected of each individual administrator. Some guidelines will have to be put in writing so the administration will be able to determine their individual roles. A job description will have to be written defining the services of duties required of each individual administrator.

Both committees agreed the next step would be a meeting between administrators and board representatives to determine job description and/or guidelines of both Newfolden Principals and Mr. Schwalbe. This meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, June 9 at 9:00 a.m.

Additional items:

Newfolden is wondering if Karlstad would be interested in cooping in Spring Sports (Track and Baseball) MCC would not be able to field a team in baseball for next year.

Casey spent his career as a Warrior baseball assistant with Lowell Scearcy as head coach.

"Casey always exemplified the three qualities you look for in an assistant coach—he was loyal, he was willing to put in the time," said Scearcy.

"Casey was respected by the (Central Lakes) conference baseball coaches. The first year he wasn't with us, everywhere we played the coaches' reactions were the same. 'Where's Casey?' 'How's he doing?' 'Say hi to Casey for me.'

"The kids who came through the program during Casey's years owe him a lot, as I do, and we all wish him well in his retirement. When I think of people who have meant a lot to Brainerd baseball I think of, among others, Kermit Aase, Gay Zelinske and 'Bud' Schmidt. I would certainly number Casey among those men. People like Casey are not easily replaced."

The 1966 football season which the Warriors completed 7-2 is one he cherishes. "That was the best football team I was ever associated with," Casey said. "That year was my first as a varsity assistant to Dick Lagergren. At one point he ordered me to call the plays the rest of the season and we won the next six games."

In baseball, Casey's favorite recollections are of the Warriors' state tournament trips in 1961 and 1969.

Minnesota Chamber Foundation has announced changes to its flagship program, Excellence in Education. The revised program is geared toward excellence, continuous improvement and life-long learning for Minnesota kindergarten through 12th grade teachers.

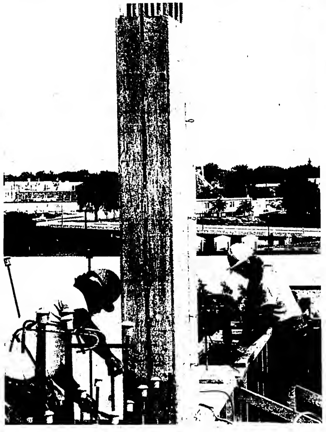
The Foundation's Excellence in Education program was established 10 years ago. During that time 102 Minnesota teachers were recognized at public testimonial and award ceremonies.

Program revisions will expand the impact of the program by increasing the number of teachers who receive Excellence in Education awards. The 15 teachers selected annually beginning in 1993 will be recognized at a special ceremony hosted by the Minnesota Chamber Foundation. Each award recipient will receive an unrestricted $1,000 stipend and a special gift. The recognition and ceremony will coincide with the annual state-wide teacher conferences in October 1993.

Selected teachers will present their favorite teaching strategy prior to the awards ceremony at a Best Practices Symposium — Reaching New Heights." The symposium and awards ceremony will be open to all teacher conference attendees. By showcasing the best practice strategies through the professional development symposium, a wider range of educators will benefit from these teachers of excellence.

Nomination forms will be mailed to school districts in February 1993. As in the past, teachers may be nominated by parents, administrators, school board and community members. Through program revisions, teachers will be permitted to nominate themselves as well as other teachers.

The Minnesota Chamber Foundation's mission is to strengthen the relationship between business and education. Minnesota businesses, by supporting the Foundation's program, recognize the link between economic competitiveness and a well-educated workforce.



Workers continued construction of the Thief River Falls water treatment plant Thursday afternoon. Water Department Superintendent Allan Lamm said substantial completion of the project is expected in February of 1993, ahead of the scheduled contract completion date of August 1993. Installing equipment for water treatment basins pose the biggest threat of delays, Lamm said. The basin equipment must be installed before the roof can be built.

Bank doubles home loans during 1992

Norwest Bank in Thief River Falls more than doubled its home loans in the first five months of 1992 over the comparable period in 1991, according to Roger Reuter, president.

In January through May this year the bank provided 45 homeowners with $2,096,000 which was 126 per cent greater than during January through May in 1991. This allowed many homeowners to purchase homes, reduce their payments and/or the mortgage term and save thousands of dollars in interest.

Most of the loans were for refinancing, but 45 per cent involved purchases, Reuter said. The refinance boom was caused by rates being the lowest in 20 years.

The three Norwest offices in northwestern Minnesota originated 169 loans totaling $9,637,000. As of June 5, adjustable rate mortgages were quoted as low as five and three-eighths per cent with no points.

Quilters guild features state park quilt

The Thief River Falls Quilters Guild will feature the Minnesota State Park Centennial Quilt dubbed "The Quilt of the Century," at its Pennington County Fair booth on Saturday and Sunday, July 11-12. The quilt is a travelling exhibit throughout the state of Minnesota to commemorate the 100th year of Minnesota State Parks.

What started a year ago as a "nice little" project, today measures 11 by 12 feet, the result of thousands of pieces of fabric and a similarly large number of hours donated by hundreds of volunteers. The State Park Centennial Quilt tells the story of Minnesota parks through 65 colorful blocks.

The DNR Division of Parks and Recreation recruited Bonnie Ellis to design and coordinate the quilt project. She decided to involve as many people as possible. The manager and staff of each park selected the image they felt best represented their park.

Ellis translated those images into designs that could be completed in fabric. Next she found fabrics that fit the designs — fabric that looked like tree bark, quiet water, rapids, snow, cloud filled skies. She then sent the fabrics and quilting block designs to volunteers throughout the state.

One area resident, Chris Weir-Koetter, a manager at Old Mill State Park, created the Old Mill block for the quilt.

The blocks were returned to Ellis who sewed them together to form the quilt top. She called on volunteers again. They organized quilting bees from Park Rapids to Rochester to quilt the top, batting and backing together.

At the final quilting bee, in the Capitol Rotunda, Minnesota Quilters Association members "coached" nearly 200 people, including senators and representatives, as they put the finishing touches on the quilt.

On April 20, the quilt was presented to the state at the 100th anniversary celebration of Itasca State Park. Before the ceremony began, Ellis added one last Minnesota symbol — a mosquito.

The quilt will be on display Aug. 22-Sept. 2 in the DNR building at the Minnesota State Fair. For a full itinerary call or write a DNR information center.

"The Quilt of the Century" is 11 by 12 feet and contains 65 blocks, each representing a Minnesota state park. The quilt, a result of hundreds of volunteers throughout the state, will be displayed at the Thief River Falls Quilters Guild Pennington County Fair booth.

Local residents win conservation contest

Four locals were chosen as winners in the Area 1 poster and essay contest sponsored by the Area 1 Minnesota Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts.

Karla Fredrickson, daughter of Floyd and Karen Fredrickson of Thief River Falls, won first place in the senior division of the essay contest.

In the Elementary Conservation Essay Contest, Keith Nelson, son of Wayne and Pauline Nelson of Grygla, was chosen as second place winner.

In the Individual Poster Contest, Matt Koehmstedt, son of Francis and Donna Koehmstedt of Thief River Falls, and Lorrie Linder, daughter of Jerry and Kathy Linder of Gatzke, were chosen as two of the winners.

The title of the contest was "Wetlands — More than meets the eye." These entries will advance to state competition held this fall.

Kelly and Connie Lundeen complete leadership program

Kelly and Connie Lundeen of Trail are summer graduates of the 1992 Red River Valley Emerging Leadership Program.

The Lundeens were one of 16 couples involved in this year's program, which was sponsored through the University of Minnesota, according to Dr. Jared M. Smalley, Area Extension agent at the Crookston campus.

They were members of the eighth class of Red River Valley leaders to graduate from the program, which was founded in 1985.

Each year the King Agassiz selected from Pennington County and his spouse have the opportunity to participate in the Emerging Leadership Program. The five-part series this year included the following:

January session was held in Thief River Falls where the group was formed. They worked on building communication skills, and reviewed the Red River Valley Heritage.

February session in Crookston honored rural leadership. They studied community structure and relationships and participated in the King Agassiz coronation events at the Red River Valley winter shows.

March session took place in Minneapolis/St. Paul, where they attended educational sessions on the Twin Cities campuses of the University of Minnesota, visited the State Capitol, and interacted with agri-leaders and state officials.

At the April session at the University of Minnesota Crookston campus, the group learned about conflict management and participated in graduation of the class.

June class tour in Fargo-Moorhead expanded their horizons about national and international issues and they learned about economic trends that are impacting the counties in the Red River Valley. The final session concluded with an all-class picnic.

Educational content for the Red River Valley Emerging Leadership Program is jointly developed by staff of the Minnesota Extension Service and faculty of the University of Minnesota, Crookston.

Co-chairpersons for the 1992 program were Harlow and Peggy Grove of Climax. For more information contact the District Extension Office, Selvig Hall, University of Minnesota, Crookston, MN 56716.

Area graduates of the 1992 program included the following couples: Ken and Bonnie Oraskovich of Clearbrook, James and Mary

FAITH SHOWS YOUR FATHER HAVING THE RIGHT ANSWERS

Your father had to be a sage
To help you through your childhood stage,
And all the wisdom he'd impart
Convinced you he was pretty smart.
He'd tell of his experience,
While building up your confidence
That whether you'd succeed or fail,
Your common sense would still prevail.
Then later, without thinking twice,
You chose to spurn his good advice,
Because of pressure from your peers,
But then, as you advanced in years,
You learned that in his whole life through,
Your father did his best for you.
So faith will tell you, come what may,
To honor him on Father's Day.
- Gloria Nowak

man who expects
good a man as he meant to be.

New Home

The Vigstol brothers gathered early Saturday to frame a house in town for their mother. Eight of the nine were here and the house took shape in a hurry since six of them are skilled carpenters. Coming from a distance were Neil of Omaha, Lee of Minot, Russell of Harlingen, TX, Richard, Dan and Steve of the Cities, also Eldon and Ray who are locals. Now five days later as I write it is almost enclosed and is a beautiful addition to our small town. Now the visitors have all left for their respective homes, happy to have had the time to work together, and satisfied with the good start they made on my new home. David, who was not able to come at the present time, will get his hand in at a later date. Channel 11 honored the family with an interview and a segment on the late news, and the Times will have a story. Needless to say, I'm mighty proud of my hard-working family.

The following column appeared in the Brainerd Dispatch. Casey taught several years in Plummer, and was a respected coach here.

Casey Stengel

by Mike Bialka

As a youngster I thought Brainerd High School was fortunate that Casey Stengel was a member of its teaching and coaching staffs.

Not until we met did I realize he wasn't the former New York Yankees and Mets manager. But the positive influence that Arnold "Casey" Stengel had on Brainerd High School students was as great as the impact Charles Dillon "Casey" Stengel had on major league baseball.

Arnold "Casey" Stengel has been a counselor and coach for 34 years, the last 29 in Brainerd. After stops at such Minnesota metropolis' as Sacred Heart, Plummer and Herman, Casey moved to Brainerd in 1963.

He served as a Warrior football assistant for 10 years (1964-73) and as a Warrior baseball assistant for 12 years (1979-90).

The high school level wasn't the only place Casey had an impact. He served as a Bronco League baseball officer and as the coach of Bronco, Pony and VFW teams. From 1973-79 a span during which he didn't coach, Casey officiated basketball, football and baseball.

At age 57, Casey has decided it's time to retire. Thursday was his last day with students but he will continue as an official capacity until July.

"In terms of teaching, coaching and counseling I don't know how anybody could have had a higher level of satisfaction, good associations and sense of direction in something very purposeful," said Casey. "To say I've had a good career is an understatement. I'm very grateful for that.

"Brainerd's been good to me and my family. We've had more good opportunities available and realized than any family could possibly have."

Casey has many fond Warrior athletic memories but two in particular stand out.

There are aspects of counseling and coaching that Casey said he will miss and some he won't. One of his most invigorating challenges has been planning academic programs for students who wish to excel.

"I also found challenge working in crisis situations more than I had ever done when I took counselor training," Casey said. "I've experienced some satisfaction being of assistance, and maybe even being good at, intervening in a tough situation.

"But I don't think I will miss (coaching and counseling) much. I'm a brilliant coach Friday night in row 17. I enjoy that a lot. I know I can continue to be involved in other peoples' lives in significant ways, just no 12 to 14 hours a day."

Casey and his wife, Doris, indefinitely plan to maintain Brainerd as their home base. They plan to remain actively involved in church, school, and community-related activities.

Casey would like to join a bowling league, something he hasn't done since 1958, and try golf. He plans to continue hunting and fishing and visit his grandchildren more frequently. Casey also aspires to learn how to read music, play a musical instrument and maybe even do some writing.

Casey is one of the most Christian people I've met. Searcy often said that Casey could find something good about virtually every athlete with whom he was associated.

I'm indebted to Casey for his help when I was a student and for the last few years when he graciously helped arrange phone interviews for Warrior Athlete of the Week stories.

In my book, Brainerd's Casey Stengel, like the famous manager, is a Hall of Famer.

"When we whipped Moorhead to go to state the first time that was a highlight," he said. "In (1980 and 1981) what did we lose, three games?

"One of the biggest moments—I can't imagine a bigger one—was (Todd) Vanek's grand slam (that won the 1989 subsection championship). Vanek was one of the guys I was as close to as any of the kids."

No Net Loss....Or Is It No Net Gain On Wetlands?

We rather like large tracts of wetlands. There is an appeal to us in marshland and its components, including the vegetation and especially the wildlife which depend upon this type of environment for survival. Wetlands can be extremely productive areas from a natural perspective.

We don't share a whole lot of the same affection for smaller wetlands, those which are scattered low spots basically too small to provide habitat for wildlife except insects and protection for specific plant species. For the most part these areas have little real worth to anyone or any thing and generally could be accurately described as wasteland or eyesores.

Persons who espouse a "no net loss" theory for wetlands aren't fussy about what the wetlands are or where they are located. They have decided that wetlands are good and are so important they must be protected in their natural state without regard to location or ownership.

Concern for wetlands depletion was the reason bills were introduced in the Minnesota legislature, extensively debated and resulted in the passage of the Wetlands Conservation Act of 1991. There is no question that hundreds of thousands of acres of what were once wetlands under today's standards have been converted to other uses over the years. For the most part they will probably never be wetlands again.

The inference of those touting "no net loss" wetlands legislation is that wetlands conversion has been some terrible travesty. Not so. Converted wetlands have contributed in large extent to agricultural and other development which has made our standard of living—indeed, our ability to live and earn a living at all—possible. They have comprised much of the land which came under private ownership through homestead claims or later purchases.

Certainly wetlands have value in a number of ways, perhaps the most important of which is water retention and flow retardation which reduces flooding and helps maintain the water table. But they are not valuable in every size and circumstance to the exclusion of all other potential uses.

Northwestern Minnesota has been blessed or cursed, depending on the individual point of view, with an extensive acreage of wetlands. Most of the remaining large tracts of this acreage in some semblance of its natural state is in public ownership and should remain that way. It is a valuable resource as it is and there is no compelling reason to effect any immediate change.

But we have a philosophical difference with those who insist on legislating the maintenance of wetlands on private property. In our viewpoint mandating the use of private property for what is perceived legislatively as the public good constitutes a taking of that property and should at the very least be adequately compensated. We think the right of ownership of property provides the freedom to use that property as best suits the owner, with the exception of that use causing harm or damage to adjacent property owners or others.

It is our opinion that if wetlands have public value wherever they are located, then the public is responsible for the cost of whatever that value may be. It would seem that anyone with a sense of what is fair and right would come to that same conclusion.

Ken Murphy, a Pennington county commissioner, recently wrote an opinion piece which was published in "Minnesota Counties," a publication of the Minnesota Association of Counties. In the article he makes a number of points relating to wetlands legislation and private lands. One of these is the necessity for a workable procedure for conflict resolution on a regional basis where land use is similar.

But one of the major points he makes is this: "We must be very careful when we start talking about 'no net loss' in wetlands. What we really are talking about is 'no net gain.' My math may not be very good, but when I hear one-for-one, two-for-one and three-for one-replacement, we're talking about wetland growth."

Small, fragmented, isolated, often dry wetlands have no practical value despite their inclusion in total wetland acreage. They are like having 100 yards of fishing line with 50 yards in six-inch sections. It makes more sense to us to have money and effort concentrated on public lease or ownership of significant tracts of wetlands than to pursue a preservationist program for all parcels which does nothing but anger and inconvenience property owners for little if any public benefit.

And if the public indeed does actually stand to benefit, the public should pay in accordance with value received.

Fair Time Approaching— Are You Ready?

Unbelievable as it seems, the annual Pennington County Fair is just over two weeks away. Usually we have a few weeks of summer weather before that annual event arrives, but the lateness of the season probably emphasizes the rapidity of the arrival of county fair time.

Are you ready for the fair? Do you have your projects ready for exhibit? You are planning to enter some phase of the competition, aren't you? It makes it more fun to visit the fair when you are a part of the activity that makes up the annual event.

Premium lists which contain a listing of the various departments of competition and the specific entries which may be made in each department are available at banks and grocery stores throughout the trade area. They're free, so pick one up and see what is available for entry where your interests lie.

We have noted before how much work and effort by many people go into presentation of the county fair each year. That contribution is invaluable and certainly necessary. But it is the participation by exhibitors that makes the fair great, and everyone can be a part of that. Entry day is Thursday, July 9. Get your exhibits ready.

North Country Food Bank serves over 174 non-profit agencies, including several in the Thief River Falls area. Our products save these agencies tens of thousands of dollars. This service is partially funded by the United Way.

In view of the negative things in the press concerning the National United Way, I hope your readers understand the tremendous value the local United Way provides. Volunteers carefully screen applicant agencies to determine how much, if any, they should receive.

In a time when the community depends so heavily on the services of the non-profit sector, the United Way is there to raise an impressive amount of money and distribute it in a very careful and reasoned way. Thank you for your help through the United Way.

Strandquist Senior Citizens

The Strandquist Senior Citizens met at the Center on Thursday with 16 members and seven guests present. The guests were from Isanti, Iron Mountain, Kennedy and Karlstad. The afternoon was spent visiting and preparing material for pillows. Lunch was served by Evelyn Kline, who was the hostess, and Adeline Stennes won the door prize. It is good to have this type of meeting available in the community where folks can keep in touch with each other. So, take advantage of it. See you there!

Morris and Marcelyn Lindstrom were to the Cities last weekend for Tim Lindstrom's graduation party. Tim is the son of Will and Diane Lindstrom of Minneapolis. While in the Cities, Morris and Marcelyn were the guests of David and Sharon Lindstrom of Anoka, and also visited Marcelyn's 92 year old aunt, Myrtle Peterson in Minneapolis. Coming home they visited Jeff Lindstrom and family in Akeley, and daughter, Diane Hoff and family in Bemidji.

Roberta Turnwell of St. Paul, stopped for a visit with Grandpa and Grandma Kleinvachter on Saturday evening. She had been visiting her grandma, Bertha Turnwall.

Last week, Philip and Yvonne Boen accompanied by Michelle Boen of Grand Forks, and Krista Proulx of Crookston attended the baptismal ceremony of Jacob Neil Larson, son of Mark and Nancy Larson on Sunday morning. In the afternoon they enjoyed the high school graduation reception for Craig Boen, son of Chester and Angie Boen of Olivia. In the evening they returned to Minneapolis and visited Brent and Carla Boen in Robbinsdale. They returned home on Monday.

Pastor and Mrs. Knapp and family visited Frank and Judy Kleinvachter on Sunday afternoon. Jean Kleinvachter and Kristin, Alan Sott, Ellen Stromberg and Frank Grochowski visited in the evening.

Rev. and Mrs. Roley of Warren visited Earl and Ebba Sihlberg on Tuesday. On Saturday, Alvin Erickson of Hoyt Lakes, and Oscar Hageland visited them. Other visitors there this week have been Donavan and Kelly Donarski and family, who brought dinner for them, Jaimie and Donaldson, Donna Donarski, and Connie Storeby and daughters from Stephen. It has been hard to get in contact with Ebba these last weeks, as she has spent most of her time in the garden checking up on the potato bugs, who have been waiting for the potato vines to show their little heads. She is determined to spoil their feast, even if she has to resort to murder. Perhaps we should notify Jessica Fletcher!

Working in conjunction with the Office of Civilian Defense, assisted by the Minnesota Works Project administration, books, pamphlets, maps and materials dealing with all phases of the war effort will be made available. Among other projects considered, a complete directory will be compiled of all Pennington county men in the nation's armed forces. To be of real value for current reference as well as for historical records this must be accurate and as complete as possible."

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

St. Hilaire, Polk County, Minnesota
June 29, 1892

From Newspaper Files of One Hundred Years Ago

"It has been the custom of the Republican and Democratic papers in this part of the country for several months past to publish articles and interviews to the effect that the Alliance or People's party was losing strength. A person would be led to believe, if he believed the articles, that the voters were leaving the People's party like rats from a sinking ship, and that in all parts of the country the people were flocking back to the old parties. The SPECTATOR, to solve the question as far as this vicinity is concerned has been interviewing the citizens of St. Hilaire the past week about politics. We find that the people who voted the Alliance ticket two years ago, will to a man vote the People's party ticket this fall. As to the Democratic party, we find that they are all well pleased with their party nomination for president although many state that they may not carry party lines much farther. Something is decidedly wrong, however, with the Republicans. St. Hilaire had quite a number of Republican voters two years ago but they don't seem to materialize to any alarming extent this season."

THESE DRUGS DON'T COME IN CHILDPROOF BOTTLES.

Cocaine, marijuana, speed, crack and other common teenage drugs are passed around in plastic bags, small vials or just hand to hand.

They don't come in complicated containers when they're sold to children for quick use.

The side effects of these drugs aren't written on bottles, and your children won't learn the dangers from friends. Their friends may be those who try to sell drugs to them.

You can't childproof a bottle when it comes to street drugs. But you can drug-proof your children by talking to them before someone else does.

Involved in the Thief River Falls Stampede will be the Pennington County Fair board, Thief River Falls chamber of commerce and the City of Thief River Falls. Top bucking stock and top competitors from the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association are promised for the event and $12,000 in added prize money will make the show on a par with the largest rodeos in Minnesota. All authentic rodeo events will be included in the show.

Electric rate increase proposed for TRF

Thief River Falls utility committee has proposed an electric rate increase that would raise an estimated $165,000. If adopted by the city council at its next meeting, the rate increase could go into effect for the August electric billing.

This is the last of the planned rate increases due to the blending of the cost of the WAPA and Northern Municipal Power Agency purchased power, according to Arlo Rude, city utilities director.

Residential rates will increase about .020 per kilowatt hour. Commercial users will see little or no increase, according to information provided to the council Tuesday.

As is the custom, Rude also showed how the increase will affect members of the city council. Mayor Bob Reeve, for example, uses a high of 6,000 kilowatts per hour and a low of 590 for the year. The dollar increase for the high was estimated at $2 and at $1.18 for the low.

In addition to paying for the blending of the cost of the WAPA and Northern Municipal Power Agency purchased power, it will help pay for the sales tax that the utilities department now has to pay on materials they purchase, the Northland sub station, and some will go into reserves. Over the past four years, rates have increased slowly because it was believed that it would be easier on the customer to accept smaller increases rather than one large jump in electric rates.

While a rate increase was proposed, the utilities committee also recommended that a rebate to electric heat users be approved. A total of $53,947.80 will be passed on to customers.

This rebate is the $.005 per kilowatt hour for the six heating months. The residential customers receive this for all kilowatt hours over 1,000. All commercial customers receive a rebate for all kilowatt hours since this usage is metered separately.

Pennington County Solid Waste Officer Howard Person presented an update on the solid waste/water quality grant. Person presented a quick breakdown of grant projects.

■ Person said he now has a screening kit for his office which he has used extensively since last year's screening clinic. To date, he said, he has screened 90 rural wells and the city water a couple of times. A second screening clinic will probably be held this fall.

■ Person is planning to work on a joint project to purchase surface water testing equipment, which will be used mostly at conservation education days.

■ An effort to hold a garbage bag promotion and contest has been delayed by the need to get recycling bins open at the county facility. This has been accomplished but hours need to be expanded to make drop off more convenient for county residents.

■ Person announced that by the first of the year the city will be billing for garbage collection on a volume based fee system. The plan for this project has not been completed, but it is believed that residents will get so many bags per year and having used those up, will have to purchase additional bags at a set price per bag. Bags that are not identified with the TRF logo will not be picked up. Person suggested that the city and county coordinate a fall promotion on recycling, solid waste advertising and a cooperative effort between the county facility and the city to help people understand what is happening and why before it actually happens.

■ Person expects a newspaper bedding pilot project to begin in September. Dairy farmers who

Local veterans tell of WW II in Europe and SW Pacific

At about this time fifty years ago, Roy Jensen of Thief River Falls was stationed in Adelaide, Australia, working on building a military camp. The camp was never completed, and a month later he was sent, with the 43rd Engineers, to Townsville and on August 7, 1942 in Milne Bay, New Guinea to build an airstrip.

Roy Jensen

Roy, who had grown up in Highlanding and attended the District 47 rural school, had expected to be drafted ~~in 1941~~, and decided to volunteer a few months early. After training in Camp Robinson, AR, he was sent overseas in January 1942, leaving from New York harbor, then passing through the Panama Canal and on to Melbourne, Australia. He says he was on the ship for 37 days and lost 37 pounds, because he was so seasick.

At Milne Bay, the army required the men to count all the plantation-owned coconut trees they destroyed while building things so the owners could be reimbursed. There were no docks to land on shore, so the men used a flattop barge he had built for unloading their gear and climbed down rope ladders, then used ropes and a pulley system to move the barge back and forth to the shore. They set up their own sawmill to cut lumber for a bridge they built there and used empty 55-gallon drums for culverts. Everything was made from scratch.

There was no electricity, so gasoline engines of some of the machinery allowed the men light to work at night. A dragline was turned into a pile driver as well.

Just after the men landed at Milne Bay they were attacked by Japanese troops, trying to take to bay area. The 46th Engineers suddenly found themselves in a battle situation, as well as trying to keep roads to the front open and the airstrip in operational condition.

The airstrip was constructed of flat steel pieces, 18 inches by eight feet. When all the pieces were laid out, they formed an airstrip 1000 by 350 feet which allowed P38s to take off side by side.

While in training at Camp Robinson in Arkansas, Roy Jensen of Thief River Falls learned to build a barge to transport gear across water.

Student housing project makes slow progress

Proposed student housing project is making slow progress in Thief River Falls. As time passes, however, the issue is getting critical.

Tuesday, a financial feasibility study for the proposed student housing project was presented to representatives of the city during a city finance committee meeting.

"As a result of the discussion today, the nature of the project has changed somewhat," said Don Stewart, community development director.

Originally, the project was envisioned to have 32 units and serve 128 students. The total project cost was estimated at $1.8 million, but the financial analysis presented Tuesday, estimated that revenue from the project (rent) could only support a $1.67 million project. "There's a gap there that has to be addressed," Stewart said.

In the end, reducing the cost of the project could be the result of a joint arrangement between the city, county and school board. In any event, the city plans to keep open channels of communication.

Several issues were discussed at the meeting, including management of the facility, maintaining occupancy, executing an agreement with the developer, and private investment. The city believes that it is important to include the two colleges in the management. Proper

Subcommittees get look at new school proposal

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Members of subcommittees working the Facilities Project Steering committee for School District 564 got a look at the composite project Monday evening at a meeting held in the physical education gymnasium at Lincoln high school.

Keyed by a new elementary school projected to cost about $10.2 million, the total $17 to $18 million project also includes about $2.5 million for expansion and remodeling at Franklin middle school and the present Mark Twain elementary school; $3 million for renovation at Lincoln high school; $300,000 for renovation at Washington elementary school which would become the district's administrative center; and up to $2 million in fees and related bond issue expenses.

The break-down in proposed costs was given by Bill Huttinga, project manager, who emphasized that the figures are very preliminary but provide an idea of the scope of the total project.

Myron Knutson, financial consultant, provided another key part of the project when he briefly reviewed application of the state's new debt equalization law which provides state participation in bonding for school districts with low property tax bases. Knutson said that under the state equalization formula, about 71 per cent of the project cost would be paid by the State of Minnesota and 29 per cent by local tax levy.

Project architect Griff Davenport showed preliminary drawings of what is being contemplated as a result of studies and recommendations compiled by local citizens

Initial drawing of the proposed new elementary school for School District 564 was shown by project architect Griff Davenport Monday evening at a meeting of the Facilities Project Steering Committee and all of its subcommittee members in the physical education gymnasium at Lincoln high school. The site consists of a total of 55 acres and is located east of Pennington Avenue (airport road) and south of Abundant Life church. Estimated at $10.2 million, the elementary school would be 131,000 square feet in size and include all of the district's education programs through fifth grade. It is part of a proposed total project of approximately $18 million, more than two-thirds of which would be paid with state debt equalization funding and less than a third with local tax revenue. Configuration of the school building and location on the site is subject to change pending further study and discussion with input from local faculty and others. A bond issue election is set for September 15.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride chose a cream and dusty rose two-piece street length dress with three-quarter length sleeves. The groom's mother wore a green two-piece street length dress with white accented V-neck collar. Each wore a corsage of pink roses and babies' breath. The fathers of the couple wore black pinstripe tuxedos with black vests and bow ties. Their boutonnieres were pink roses.

Discrimination in housing is illegal

It is against the law for anyone to treat another person differently in rental or other housing situations because of that person's welfare status, race, religion, sex, family status, age, national origin, creed, disability and marital status.

People can be treated differently by landlords because of their own behavior. For example: people who damage property, people who don't pay rent and people who use or deal drugs on the premises, can all be legally evicted or denied rental.

Persons who feel discriminated against, should file a complaint with their local Civil Rights Department, local legal services office, Minnesota Department of Human Rights, (612) 296-5663, Bremer Tower, St. Paul, MN 55101, or U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development at 1-800-669-9777.

The Civil Air Patrol (CAP) used the concrete water control structure on the Elm Lake wildlife management area as one of the targets for the "Blue Cap," or practice search mission last Thursday evening. The teams located three targets and two Emergency Locator Transmitters (ELTs). The air teams locate ELTs by tuning their radio to the ELT's signal and performing a 360 degree turn, tilting the plane at a 45 degree angle. When the signal fades, the ELT is 90 degrees from the direction of the raised wing. All aircraft must carry an ELT.

Wild Rose to perform at Hallock Fair

Wild Rose, the all-female country quintet whose musical prowess earned a 1991 Grammy nomination, will be appearing at the Kittson County Fair in Hallock on Saturday, July 11, at 8 p.m. Tickets are $6 and are available at the gate.

The group's first album, "Breaking New Ground," garnered an Academy of Country Music Top Vocal Group nomination and their second, "Straight and Narrow," earned a Grammy nomination for Country Instrumental Performance.

Their third effort, "Listen to Your Heart," reflects a style that blends touches of bluegrass, rock and jazz into a traditional country sound.

Bandleader Wanda Vick, a respected session player and veteran of country/bluegrass bands, graduated with a music degree from Nashville's Belmont College. Nancy Given-Prout earned a commercial music degree from the University of South Carolina while playing in jazz and rock bands.

Singer Pamela Gadd's bluegrass and folk background led her to the New Coon Creek Girls, which claims as another alumnus Wild Rose's Pam Perry, who also played with the Carter Family. Kathy Mac's country playing found her opening for the likes of Marty Robbins, and she has experience in rock as well.

Dale Olmstead charts his air team's route before the Northwest Minnesota Civil Air Patrol's (CAP) first practice mission last Thursday evening. CAP operated the mission from the Thief River Falls Regional Airport and the ground team maintained communications with the aircraft from the Fire, Crash, Rescue Building. The air teams located predetermined targets. The next nearest CAP, of Minnesota's 26 CAPs, is located in Bemidji.

The Minnesota National Guard has prepared a draft environmental assessment for Operation Viking Force, the Guard's reorganization plan.

This environmental assessment looks at the various options the National Guard has for restructuring. The environmental assessment will determine the environmental effects of the proposed action. If such impacts are judged to be insignificant, a finding of No Significant Impact will be issued, and the Minnesota Army National Guard may proceed with the proposed action.

If the environmental impacts are found to be significant, an environmental impact statement must be prepared before the Guard proceeds.

Copies of the draft environmental assessment are available for review at all Minnesota Army National Guard armories from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. A copy is also available at the Guard's Headquarters on the fourth floor of the Veterans Service Building at 20 W. 12th Street in St. Paul.

Area river clean-up project underway

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Riverbanks throughout several northwestern Minnesota counties will be much cleaner at the end of the summer than they were in the spring as a result of activities by the Minnesota Conservation Corps (MCC) in this area.

Funded through the youth programs office of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, MCC is at work cleaning up dump sites and removing abandoned appliances and other debris along rivers and streams in the Red Lake Watershed district.

Four crews started work June 1 under the direction of Mark Robbins, project coordinator for the DNR in Red Lake Falls. Three of the crews have six members and the other has three. Two work out of Red Lake Falls, one out of Thief River Falls and one out of Crookston. They are authorized to continue operating until late October.

Members of the Thief River Falls crew are headed by Dale Nelson as crew supervisor with Aaron Janisch as assistant crew supervisor. Other crew members are Aaron Oberg, Troy Myhrer, Todd Hornseth and Noreen Phelps.

One crew operating out of Red Lake Falls is headed by Jamie Johnson as crew supervisor with Tom Delorme as assistant supervisor and includes Wade Cardinal, Chad Peterson, Kurt Reynolds and Jason Malwitz.

The other crew is headed by James Lefor as supervisor and includes Jason Dennis and Brett Piersol. This crew has the largest truck and is available to help the other crews when needed with large and hard to handle items.

"We have worked mostly with farmers and they have been just great," Dale Nelson said. "Several of them have brought tractors with loaders to help put heavy items on the truck. They have also permitted the easiest access to the clean-up sites in most cases, but we have also tried to avoid driving on crops or causing any damage."

Much of the clean-up work involves long-standing dump sites where materials have been discarded over a period of many years. The crews pull or dig out these materials and separate them for recycling as much as possible. The crews work with solid waste authorities in each of the counties to safely and legally dispose of all the debris.

To qualify for clean-up by the MCC crews, all of the sites must be located within 300 feet of a drainage way, primarily a river or stream. The Red Lake Watershed district includes all or large portions of Polk, Red Lake, Pennington, Marshall, Clearwater, Koochiching and Beltrami counties.

Each crew is equipped with a couple of trucks to haul the trash, plus chainsaws, shovels, wirecutters and a variety of other hand tools. Most of the work is accomplished with muscle power and sweat, although Robbins said he is trying to find sources of heavy equipment that could be used on some of the bigger clean-up jobs.

Nelson said the crew members are all trained and certified in first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and have also had a defensive driving course, instruction in chain saw and hand tool safety and are required to have two hours of training per month on safety related issues, such as lifting and back safety.

"It may seem a little strange, but our crew goes through stretching exercises every morning before we start loading up debris," Nelson said. "So far things have been going very well with no accidents or injuries."

All crew members wear hard hats, safety glasses, gloves and boots. They also wear jeans and a minimum of at least a T-shirt for injury protection. Warm-up suits and tennis shoes are not acceptable attire. This week the crew started on four 10-hour days instead of the normal eight-hour, five-day schedule. This will help with rain days as the crew can work on what would normally be the off day and instead take the rain day off," Nelson said.

"Our goal is to clean up these waste sites along the rivers and streams to restore better water quality and aesthetic beauty," Robbins said. "The great thing about the project is that the removal of the debris is free of charge."

He means free of charge to the property owner on whose land the waste sites are located. There is overall taxpayer cost since the crew members are paid a wage and covered by workmen's compensation insurance. But most of the workers say the satisfaction they get from tackling a dump site and looking back at a clean site when they leave is a greater motivator than the paycheck.

"I'm really proud of my crew," Nelson said. "They take the job seriously and they really work hard to do a good job. We have cleaned up nine sites since June 1 and left every one of them with a feeling of real-satisfaction."

What has the crew encountered in its efforts? Everything from car bodies to major appliances to farm machinery to glass jars and bottles to various sized pieces or fragments of all of the above and more.

"The thing I really like about this program is that it's free," Nelson said. "We provide a service for the farmer and the environment when we clean up one of these sites and it doesn't cost the farmer a dime," Nelson noted. "There aren't any penalties assessed and all we're interested in is keeping the debris out of our rivers. Landowners are becoming more and more conscious of pollution and most seem to appreciate the project when it is offered to them."

Robbins and Nelson said they continue to search for sites along rivers and streams that would qualify for the clean-up effort and are seeking input from the general public about possible clean-up sites.

Minnesota Conservation Corps crews are at work cleaning up dump sites along waterways in the Red Lake Watershed district this summer. The district includes all or part of the counties of Pennington, Marshall, Red Lake, Polk, Clearwater, Koochiching and Beltrami. The crew above is working out of Thief River Falls and is headed by crew supervisor Dale Nelson. Two crews also operate out of Red Lake Falls and one out of Crookston. Heading the project for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is Mark Robbins of Red Lake Falls. People who know of sites needing clean-up may call Robbins at 253-2130.

Dump sites such as the one shown above along the Red Lake river are being cleaned up this summer by crews of the Minnesota Conservation Corps (MCC). The crew working out of Thief River Falls includes Dale Nelson, crew supervisor; Aaron Janisch, assistant supervisor; Aaron Oberg, Troy Myhrer, Todd Hornseth and Noreen Phelps.

. . . My New Car II

I still haven't learned how to tune the radio on my new car. I asked the kids to do it for me and they did. Now there is some very strange music coming out of my radio. It isn't my easy-listening type of music, at all. I think they have tuned every station to hard rock music. I plan to learn how to tune it myself really soon, before my ears get ruined, or, worse yet, before I start to like it.

Speaking of my radio, I was so happy to have a little clock in my car. But I have noticed I never know what time it is anyway. Sometimes the clock spot says the time, and sometimes it tells me which radio station is on. It is all very confusing and I went out an bought a watch.

The automatic shift was quite easy to learn. Once I got over searching for the clutch with my left foot every time I started and stopped, I got along fine. It did look funny though, my left foot waving in the air every time I came to a stop.

I started using my left foot for the brake, to give it something to do, you know. However, this was not such a good idea.

You see, this new car has a fuel injected engine, whatever that means. I was warned that I should not pump the gas pedal. I always pumped the gas pedal with my other cars. I was used to pumping the gas pedal. It was a habit.

Well, sure enough, with my left foot on the brake, there I was using my right foot to pump away at the gas pedal every time I started the car. Let me tell you, cars with fuel injection engines can get flooded by doing this, and then they don't start at all.

Now I have learned to use my right foot for everything down there on the floor. My left foot sits uselessly on the floor mat, twitching spasmodically, while the right one is working. But at least the car starts nicely now.

My new car has side mirrors that I can move from inside the car. This is nice. I used to have to roll down the window to tilt the side mirror. Sometimes I was looking at the side of the car, or at the sky, or at myself. Now when I am looking at one of those places, I just push the button and, eventually, I can see what I want to see.

One of the side mirrors has a warning on it that objects appear further away than they really are, so I'm afraid of looking in that one. I have enough trouble judging distance as it is, without my side mirror lying to me about it.

I have cruise control, too. This is quite exciting, especially when I press "resume." It is even more exciting when I press "resume" when I am going around a curve. I think I may be a hazard to other drivers when I use my cruise control, especially when I press "resume."

The automatic shift lever is nice. It is on the floor, just like my straight stick was. I still grab for it at every stop sign. I have a terrible fear that I will forget myself and try to shift into first gear some day and end up with my brand new transmission in the middle of the road.

My new car also has something called a rear window defrost. I haven't had a chance to use that yet, although the way the weather has been, I may be able to try it any day now. I'm looking forward to it, because everyone says I will love it. We'll see.

Other than the problems I have mentioned, I am enjoying my new car immensely. The best part of it is the smell. There is nothing quite so good as the smell of a new car.

My other car lost its new car smell and began smelling odd after I spilled a malt in it, even though I cleaned it repeatedly. I am going to try very hard not to spill a malt in this one.

Impressions . . .

by
Beth Johnson

This coming Saturday is the Fourth of July. I am reminded of other celebrations of this holiday.

Each Fourth of July I remember another Fourth now about 19 years ago. We were in our first parish. We had lived there about one month. We were invited to share a picnic lunch with some of our parishioners at the small park at the end of the road.

This park was the only park in this small farming community. It had the basics of a park—picnic tables, trees, a picnic shelter. It also had a lake. The lake was actually no bigger than a large puddle. It was murky. It was deemed not a great place to swim. In fact, no one ever went to this lake to swim.

On this particular Fourth of July, however, one person decided to teach another person how to swim. The person who was the instructor drowned. Of the persons on the shore of this pseudo-lake there were only 2 who could swim. In fact, one of these was pregnant and could not attempt a rescue. In spite of the strong effort of the one remaining swimmer, and because of the lack of immediate rescue equipment of any kind, this Fourth of July became a tragic Fourth.

Instead of frolicking and laughing and joking and eating all kinds of food at a picnic, the people of that small community watched helplessly as a young person drowned.

Now, I don't want to make you think morbid thoughts this Fourth of July. But, we do all need to be reminded of the dangers we needlessly face each time we forget the safety rules of the activities in which we are involved. During the Fourth of July many of us will be having celebrations. We do need to be reminded to make these celebrations safe times of fun and relaxation.

In the Fourth of July of my story, if the young person who drowned had thoughts about the safe rules of swimming; the tragedy probably could have been avoided. Using the buddy system could have prevented tragedy. Appropriate dress, not heavy jeans, would have prevented the tragedy also. If the park had bothered to keep basic safety equipment available, even the non-swimmers could have reached the drowning person with a safety ring. Simply taking a look at the situation and accessing the probable danger would have been a good place for the tragedy to become an avoidable tragedy.

Think of the situations you or your family will be in this Fourth. Of course we can't avoid all of the accidents that will happen, but we can help avoid needless accidents.

Will there be sparklers and other fireworks at your celebrations? Who will be supervising the children and their sparklers? Will there be alcohol at your picnic? Who will be piloting the boat? Hopefully someone who had not had alcohol to drink?? Will there be water activities involved in your celebration this weekend? Will there be swimmers and safety equipment around the waterfront? Will there be travel involved in your celebration this Fourth? Will you be taking time to rest as you travel?

The Fourth of July will give to us just a taste of the fun we can have this summer. We are so fortunate to live in a nation that gives us the freedom to have fun. We are not living from moment to moment amidst warring parties. We are living in a country that is actually blessed with the capability for its people to enjoy life.

Enjoy the Fourth of July. But, as you celebrate, be smart in your celebrations. Take some time to think about the activities in which you will be taking part. Just a moment of thought can spare you and your loved ones much grief.

While stationed in New Guinea in World War II during the rainy season, Roy Jensen of Thief River Falls shows the erosion caused by the rain near their camp.

Getting acquainted with the native wildlife in New Guinea in this case meant posing with a very long constrictor snake. Roy Jensen of Thief River Falls states that, no, he wasn't in this picture. The closest he wanted to get to that snake was behind the camera.

Serving in the southwest Pacific during World War II, Roy Jensen of Thief River Falls worked in construction of airstrips and camping facilities, sometimes building everything from scratch with only tractor engines for power sources.

Veterans recall WW II events

After completing the airstrip there, the men were rotated back to Australia, later returning to the coast of New Guinea, north of the Milne Bay area. Roy says that the weather did not always cooperate with about one inch of rain per day during the wettest month of the year. Sometimes, he recalls, the siren would blow at night and the men would jump from their beds into six-foot deep foxholes, only to find the holes almost full of water.

By December 1944 Roy was able to take a furlough home for a month, during which he was married to Agnes Kompen, who had been teaching at the same rural school in Highlanding that Roy had attended as a child. The couple was married on December 20, 1944. About a month later Roy was back in the southwest Pacific, this time in the Philippines, at the southern tip at Mandinao. They stayed in pup tents and worked each day to fill holes in the airstrip which were made by Japanese bombers every night.

Roy was discharged during the summer of 1945 and came home to do the same type of work he had learned in the Army. He ran a "cat and scraper" or "cat and dozer" for construction firms until 1955, when he began working in the Thief River Falls city power plant. In about 1966 he became street commissioner of Thief River Falls and continued in that position until his retirement in 1978.

Earlier this spring he and his wife were able to visit a 50th anniversary celebration of the landing at Melbourne, Australia.

When Melvin Swenson of St. Hilaire entered military service in June 1942 he didn't know he was headed for the biggest adventure of his life. Following his training at Ft. Snelling and Camp Wheeler, GA, he was shipped to French Morocco, where they fought for the city of Safi for three days with relatively light losses. They then moved through Algeria and on to the Kasserine Pass, where they spent four weeks, and later to Al Gutar. This unit was the third to attempt to take Al Gutar, about six months after arriving in Africa. They fought the 10th and 21st German Panzer divisions, some of Germany's crack troops, who had the advantage, being in caves. At the end, Melvin's unit was forced to surrender. He recalls that the German doctors cared for the American injured as well as their own.

Melvin Swenson

After the prisoners were searched and questioned, they were marched to Sfax, Tunesia. There they were kept in an area surrounded by barbed wire and each was fed a small can of sardines and a small piece of black bread. They had to sleep in holes in the ground covered with a piece of tin. The following night they were put in boxcars, with almost no room to lie down and taken to Tunis.

There they were kept in school houses with no blankets and vegetable stew made of "mostly peas with bugs in them. We were so hungry we paid no attention to the bugs," Melvin explains. Later they were taken by plane across the Mediterranean Sea, with some of the planes, including Melvin's stopping at Sicily.

A month later they were taken to Palermo, to be put on a train to go to Italy. Most of the men had dissentary and were quite ill. After they arrived in Italy, however, Melvin tells that they had a little better treatment. They were taken to a POW camp in northern Italy on the Adriatic side near Ancona. There they not only had food from the Italians, but also from the Red Cross. They also received newspapers until Sicily was invaded.

"During this time, the men dug quite a few underground tunnels by removing a block of cement and digging straight down for about six feet and then digging out toward the wall. We used tin cans and we poured the dirt down the latrine and washed it out. It was slow work as it all had to done at night and we had to be careful not to be spotted by the guards." Unfortunately these attempts were discovered, after which the men were required to keep a light on in their rooms and guards went by every few minutes.

After the Armistice with Italy, the guards became quite friendly, but wouldn't let the Americans go. The Americans then discovered that they were being held to turn over to the Germans to be taken to a POW camp in Germany. A British Medical captain told them about a plan to help them escape and some of the guards left a door unlocked to allow this. These guards went with the GI's who escaped. They traveled southeast in the direction of the Allied lines. By day they hid in a ravine and covered themselves with brush to escape the Germans who were after them. They stayed there for ten days, during which all the food they had was grapes, stolen from a nearby vineyard.

About two months after their escape, some Italians told Melvin and his companions that the British were landing boats on certain beaches and picking up prisoners. It turned out this wasn't true, and, in fact, the boats were manned by German soldiers.

On one occasion, Melvin and another escapee hid in a chicken coop during an earthquake, which destroyed the building.

Just as they finally approached the Allied lines, they tried to cross a bridge and were caught by a German sergeant and taken to a small camp with about two dozen prisoners. There they started to plan for another escape. When the opportunity presented itself, they took the chance and headed for a nearby river, expecting to be strafed at any time by aircraft which was overhead. During this escape, Melvin's friend became ill and they were helped to a hospital by some Catholic nuns. He had spinal meningitis and was very ill, but after about a month of hiding in the hospital and receiving treatment, he recovered.

A few days after leaving the hospital, Melvin and his friend watched from hiding as a whole division of Germans went by and they were later told by an Italian that the Polish troops of the British Eighth Army had occupied the next town and that the Germans had evacuated the area. They finally then found some Allied troops and Melvin was sent to England.

From there he was supposed to go to the United States, but due to an error, was actually shipped to France, Belgium and, finally back to his own outfit in Germany. He arrived back in the United States on Jan. 4, 1945.

TRF wins title honors at EGF Legion Invitational

Thief River Falls showed its versatility by winning a 1-0 pitcher's duel and a 15-14 slugfest en route to a 4-0 championship performance at the East Grand Forks Invitational American Legion baseball tournament played Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Stauss Park.

The Howard Dalager-coached Post 117 team handled Red Lake Falls 14-3, edged Edina 1-0 and stopped West Duluth 14-4 during the two-division, round-robin portion of the tournament Friday and Saturday, then overcame 6-0 and 11-4 deficits to outlast Fridley 15-14 in an eight-inning Sunday championship game.

"We went from a 1-0 game – probably as perfect a game we've ever been involved in – to a 15-14 game," noted Dalager with a still-disbelieving shake of the head. "The Edina game was great baseball. The Twins don't even play that well. Both teams had outstanding pitching and defense. Edina is the best team we've faced. Fridley.. by that time both teams were a little thin on pitching, and we both hit the ball (14 hits apiece). It was a crazy game, but the kids never gave up – that's the character of this team."

Coupled with doubleheader sweeps over Detroit Lakes (3-1, 5-2) and East Grand Forks (5-4, 4-0) earlier in the week, the tournament success extended Thief River Falls' winning streak to eight games and put Post 117 at 15-4 for the year.

EGF Invitational

■ North Bracket round robin results – (Friday) Thief River Falls 14, Red Lake Falls 3; Red Lake Falls 8, West Duluth 5; Thief River Falls 1, Edina 0. (Saturday) Edina 12, Red Lake Falls 5; Thief River Falls 14, West Duluth 4; Edina 10, West Duluth 3.

■ South Bracket round-robin results - (Friday) Roseau 4, East Grand Forks 2, Fridley 12, Hawley 8; East Grand Forks 3, Hawley 1. (Saturday) Roseau 7, Hawley 5; East Grand Forks 7, Fridley 1; Fridley 14, Roseau 2

■ Finals Sunday - (title) Thief River Falls 15, Fridley 14; (third) Edina 12, East Grand Forks 2; (fifth) Roseau 4, Red Lake Falls 2; (seventh) West Duluth 10, Hawley 7

"We've been up and down, as far as our play goes, but we've been winning the close games," mentioned Dalager. "Now our expectations are going to be much higher. We've still got room for improvement, but the talent and the ability is there if they can just keep playing as a team and not as individuals. We've got 15 kids on the team, and we try to use as many people as we can and still play well."

In addition to team honors, the East Grand Forks Invitational also produced recognition for Thief River Falls' Carter Rogalla, who was named the tournament's top offensive player, and Mitch Bernstein, who was selected as the top pitcher in the field.

Thief River Falls was scheduled to visit Bemidji tonight (Tuesday) before heading to East Grand Forks Thursday – both 5 p.m. doubleheaders.

Two second-inning moves – a hit-and-run, followed by a suicide squeeze – produced the only run of the game as Thief River Falls picked up a prestige-building 1-0 Friday evening second round win over Edina, one of the most recognizable names in Minnesota sports.

It was a pitching duel between Thief River Falls righthander Mitch Bernstein and Edina lefthander Matt Cox. Both threw four hitters. Bernstein struck out seven and did not walk a batter.

Carter Rogalla had two of the four Thief River Falls hits, and scored the only run of the game after coming up with a one-out second inning single. A hit-and-run double, over the third base bag by Bernstein put runners at second and third, and Pete Balmer laid down the run-producing suicide squeeze bunt on the very next pitch.

Fridley..14

Thief River Falls scored five times in the top of the seventh inning to gain a 13-13 tie, then produced a pair of runs in the eighth to complete a wild, game-long come-from-behind effort in a 15-14 Sunday afternoon championship game win over Fridley.

The suburban Twin Cities team had a 6-0 lead after two innings and led 11-4 through five. Thief River Falls pulled within 11-8 in the top of the sixth, only to lose some of that ground when Fridley scored twice in the bottom of the inning to head into the seventh with a 13-8 cushion.

But it wasn't a big enough margin. The five-run, extra inning-producing Thief River Falls seventh inning rally was highlighted by a bases-loaded, game-tying two-out double by Mitch Bernstein.

Then in the eighth, Thief River Falls' Jeremy Olson, Marc Haugen and David Blazek drew successive one-out walks to load the bases. A ground ball back to the mound had the earmark of a pitcher-to-home-to-first game-ending double play, but instead went as a throwing error on the Fridley pitcher, who first turned to go to second to begin an attempted double play before realizing the proper play was the force-out at the plate. But his now-hurried throw was off the mark, making it 14-13.

A foul-pop-up between first base and home off the bat of Barry Dowers wound up producing the eventual winning run when Haugen tagged up on the play and beat the Fridley catcher and pitcher – both of whom went after the foul ball – to the plate.

It still wasn't done, however. Two singles and a walk provided Fridley with a one-out bases-loaded opportunity in the bottom of the eighth. A fielder's choice made it 15-14 and Haugen, the third Thief River Falls pitcher of the game, fell behind the next batter 3-1 before coming back to end the game on a fly ball to the shallow-playing Olson in right field on a 3-2 pitch.

Bernstein was 3-for-5 with three RBI, while Carter Rogalla, Nathan Knutson and Haugen were all 2-for-4. Rogalla drove in four runs and scored four times.

Darin Wald started on the mound for the winners. He worked the first two innings before giving way to Rick Ostby, who pitched the third, fourth and five innings. Haugen went the final three innings for the win. They combined on six strikeouts and seven walks.

Four Fridley pitchers struck out four and walked 11.

Babe Ruth baseball tournament...

Elks Invitational has all-TRF final

A pair of Thief River Falls teams met in the finals of the 24th annual Thief River Falls Elks Invitational Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 14-15-year-olds Sunday at Irv Wilson Field as the Chris Mills-coached Blue and Gold defeated the Chris Nelson/Rick Looker-coached White and Grey 14-4.

The Blue and Gold squad featured players from the rosters of the regular season Thief River Falls Babe Ruth Shockers and Strikers, while the White and Grey team included players from the Thief River Falls Babe Ruth Marlins and Lobos.

En route to the title game showdown, both Thief River Falls teams picked up a pair of Saturday wins as the Blue and Gold beat the Bemidji Braves 7-4 and knocked off Crookston 14-9, while the White and Grey defeated East Grand Forks 13-7 and stopped the Grand Forks Blues 12-7.

Championship performance by the Thief River Falls Blue and Gold started at 9 a.m. Saturday when Chris Vanyo went 3-for-4, Tim Barry was 2-for-3 and Ryan Bendickson had a 2-for-4 game in the 7-4 quarterfinal win over the Bemidji Braves. The winners finished with a 9-8 base hit edge as Barry went the distance for the win on the mound.

Barry was 3-for-3 with three RBI, while Nick Chiodo, Chanc Keefe, Nathan Anderson, Vanyo, and Bendickson all had two hits apiece in the 14-9 Blue and Gold semifinal slugfest with Crookston that found both sides pounding out 14 hits. Bendickson also drove in three runs and Anderson had a pair of RBI. Vanyo was the winning pitcher with a complete-game effort.

Another double-digit scoring and hitting effort produced the 14-4 Blue and Gold championship game win over White and Grey. Keefe led the way with a 3-for-4 plate performance that included three RBI. Vanyo, Bendickson and Barry had two hits apiece, with Vanyo and Bendickson both driving in two runs. Eric Dowers was the winning pitcher, with mound help from Keefe and Craig Huot.

Nearly 50,000 athletes have competed in the Star of the North State Games since they were created in 1988, including an estimated 6,000 participants in the Moorhead-hosted event that offered 28 different activities.

Minnesota, one of 40 states which conducts annual state games for its residents, also offer Star of the North State Games each winter. The 1993 Minnesota games will be held in Red Wing January 15-24 and in Blaine-Twin Cities North Metro June 25-27.

Sites were also announced for 1994 and 1995 games. In 1994, Alexandria will host the winter portion of the event January 7-16 and Rochester has the summer games June 17-26. A successful nesting attempt by a bald eagle pair has resulted in the hatching of one eaglet on the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge. The last successful nest on the refuge occurred in 1958 – 34 years ago.

Refuge officials believe that this particular pair could possibly be offspring from eagles which nested at the Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area since 1986.

Turn in Poachers hotline program aids DNR efforts

Is Minnesota the land of 10,000 lakes or the land of 15,291 lakes? It depends on whether you get your numbers from license plates or hydrologists. Two things are certain, however: the the actual number of lakes isn't on the increase, but the number of anglers is.

More anglers and a fixed resource means those anglers must share responsibility for protecting the resource, according to Col. Leo Haseman, director of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Enforcement Division. Many are helping by making calls to the Turn in Poachers (TIP) hotline, thus aiding in the apprehension of those who are taking overlimits of fish.

That TIP hotline has been busy lately, according to Nancy Huonder, law enforcement officer for DNR Enforcement. TIP calls have helped DNR conservation officers apprehend several parties with overlimits of fish already this season.

DNR Enforcement officials are concerned about the possibility of even more illegal activity as the season continues.

"Our fisheries resource can't handle that kind of extreme pressure," Haseman said. "Fortunately, the vast majority of anglers realize that, and they are helping us catch those who don't."

conducting the aerial waterfowl breeding pair survey May 19. The stick nest, which has been in the building stage for at least two years, is located in the Wilderness Area, near the center of the refuge. The five-foot nest is located in a 15-inch diameter aspen tree.

Bald eagles normally reach sexual maturity at about four years of age. They are becoming re-established in many areas of the United States where they historically nested. They have benefitted from the removal of destructive pesticides from the environment – like the toxic DDT, which causes egg shells to be thinner than normal, resulting in the eggs being crushed by the incubating female.

Public viewing of the nest site is restricted until the eaglet has fledged. Observing the adult eagles is possible on other areas of the refuge.

INSURANCE Update

by Carol Nelson

According to the U.S. National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, nearly half of all claims paid by automobile insurance companies involve serious injury to the neck. This is a disturbing statistic in light of the fact that head restraints for front automobile seats have been mandatory since 1969. According to another NHTSA statistic however, 75% of all front-seat passengers fail to adjust their head restraints. If not positioned properly, head restraints will fail to prevent the violent backward thrust of the head that occurs when a car is rear-ended. The result is strained muscles or sprained ligaments in the neck; commonly termed as "whiplash". This injury can largely be avoided by adjusting the head rest so that it cushions the middle portion of the head.

Trap League

Four of eight perfect scores recorded at the Thief River Trap League during the seventh week of shooting (June 22) came from the top two teams as Northern State Bank and Johnson Trap Co. remained unbeaten in the first half of the season.

Rick Sovde and Karl Bjorkman of Johnson Trap Co. turned in 25-straight scores in a 122-116 win over Tony Dorn Inc., while Howard Thorson and Tom Groelis duplicated the feat for Northern State Bank in a 120-111 win over St. Hilaire Elevator.

The top two teams do not meet until the 12th week of the season – a month from now – so both could remain unbeaten through the first half, which ends after nine weeks of shooting. At that time records are erased and teams start over, providing all teams with an opportunity to gain a spot in a shoot-off at the end of the regular season. In the 18-team league, each team shoots against the other teams once in the 17-week season.

Other perfect scores in the June 22 shooting were achieved by Wes Skibicki, Woodmen Construction; Ike Effingson, Thyren Auto Sales; Roger Hible and Peter Tri, Eagles; and Dale Barth, Sjoberg's Cable TV.

Boating deaths are on the rise in state according to DNR

Eight Minnesotans have died in boating accidents so far this year, twice last year's total at this date, according to Tim Smalley of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

"We're extremely concerned with the high number of deaths occurring so early in the year," said Smalley, a DNR boating safety specialist.

The state boating death toll had been falling for several years. Last year's total of 17 was tied for the second lowest number of boating deaths on record.

The common factor in several of the accidents was alcohol use. "People who would never drink and drive a car, sometimes don't even give a second thought to drinking and operating a boat," Smalley said. The state's level of intoxication for boats is .10 percent alcohol concentration, the same as for motor vehicles.

Alcohol consumption while boating is dangerous for several reasons, according to Smalley. First, alcohol, even at levels as low as one-third the legal level of intoxication, may affect a person's balance, vision and judgement. "This is extremely dangerous in a boat, where capsizings and falls overboard are the two most common fatal accident types, not fiery collisions," Smalley noted.

Second, operating a boat is even more complicated than driving a car. Boaters must deal with other boats coming at them from all directions, not just straight ahead, or the left and right sides. "Alcohol can restrict peripheral vision, so they many not see another boat coming at them from the side until it's too late," Smalley noted.

Last, and perhaps most important, reduced coordination and increased risk-taking behavior often lead to tragic results when combined with boating.

Intoxicated operation of a motorboat is illegal in Minnesota and carries heavy fines and penalties. "A person convicted of BWI (Boating While Intoxicated) can look forward to facing up to a $700 fine, loss of motorboat operating privileges, and even some jail time.

management is seen as essential to protecting the investment and occupancy at the project. Thus, it was suggested that the project have a resident manager and possibly three assistants.

Maintaining occupancy during the summer was also a concern. The feasibility analysis prepared by Kramer, Geiseler and Strand Inc., of Minneapolis, indicates that occupancy during the summer could be as little or as high as 40 per cent. Stewart said that figure was higher that anticipated by the committee, but it underlines the need to find other ways to maintain occupancy. A whole host of summer events were suggested, but again, it would take the cooperation and management of the colleges.

It has been about a year and a half since the project began. In that time, a need was identified in a housing market analysis, designs prepared and a feasibility study completed. Yet, the city still has not executed an agreement with the developer, Frauenshuh Companies. Stewart said the agreement has not been executed because of the changes that keep occurring. As a result, of the meeting Tuesday, some aspects of the project will have to go back to the drawing board.

"Step by step we're still making progress," Stewart said. It has been a slow process, but it is getting to the point of being critical. "We have to move here so that we can start leasing next summer and fall. If not, we may as well turn off the burners," Stewart added.

Thief River Falls city councilmen still look on the project as an economic development tool.

A housing market study conducted over a year examined the problem and concluded that there is a need for student housing and other housing. As an economic development tool, the study showed that a dramatic decline in population, households and employment between 1980 and 1983 was filled by a slow recovery and the increasing number of students entering the community for schooling. The analysis of rental housing, revealed a vacancy rate of less than two per cent, which, it concluded, is an indicator of pent-up demand in the market.

Enrollment at the Technical College is expected to increase by 275 students over the next five years, and enrollment at Northland Community College is expected to remain stable. Many of these students will need rental housing. Some students will commute, but many more are being forced to commute from neighboring communities. Lack of housing and lack of affordable and good housing for students is cited as a problem by students attending the school.

Councilmen and many other residents and businessmen in the community recognize the importance of the influx of students to the economy in Thief River Falls. "If we don't do something to address the housing problem," said Stewart, "we stand a chance of reversing enrollment increases we've been seeing."

In response, the city attempted to encourage private developers to build, but without much success. The city eventually turned to public ownership as the only option left available.

Legislation approved in the last year, indicates that housing problems intended largely for students can be exempt from property taxes, Stewart said. It was one tool to attract private developers. But few developers with the type of experience to succeed, have expressed interest.

Even with the legislation, Stewart said, he hasn't seen any private developers coming out of the wall.

committees over the past couple of years. He also emphasized that the drawings are merely starting points and do not reflect the input in design which will be sought from school faculty and administration and other persons with local expertise.

Among the drawings shown was a potential site utilization illustration of how a building might be placed on the site selected on Pennington Avenue, south of the Abundant Life church and north of County Road 61. (A photo of the illustration accompanies this article.) The 55-acre site was selected by a site selection committee from among about a dozen initially considered and four studied in detail.

Davenport reviewed the concept of having separate "school houses" within the total elementary school building whereby students in preschool through first grade would be centered in one area, those in second and third grades in another and those in fourth and fifth grades in a third. All would have access to shared facilities such as cafeteria, gymnasium, resource center and others but would spend most of their time in the area dedicated for their grade levels.

Comments on the debt equalization legislation were given by Sen. LeRoy Stumpf and Rep. Wally Sparby, both of Thief River Falls, who said the intent was to comply with the intent of the State Constitution which requires equal access to education by all residents of the state.

Key Teeters Asp chairs the Project Facilities Steering committee and presided at the question and answer portion of the meeting following the informational presentation. The district-wide restructuring plan will be recommended to the School District 564 board of education at its regular meeting on Monday, July 13.

"We were able to address all the concerns of the long range planning and advisory group, the state fire marshall's concerns and the community concern that we heard, over and over again, that the cost had to be within our tax means," Teeters Asp told the assembled group.

Supt. Robert Duncan said the district qualifies under the state debt equalization plan because of its current indebtedness and low tax base.

"Our class size is also well above the numbers mandated by the state," he said. "Districts must have 88 students per grade to qualify for debt equalization."

Teeters Asp said that the action by the state legislature in creating the equalization program is supported by court decisions that also mandate equity in education. Legislators and the courts concurred that some children in Minnesota were being denied their constitutional right to equitable education in districts where the tax base was unable to support facilities that would keep pace with program and technological needs.

"Considering the district's future needs, immediate safety concerns and the opportunity to provide a more economical facility plan for future taxpayers, the steering committee was very enthusiastic in adopting the plan with this financing option," Teeters Asp added.

Karmen Ortloff and Jeny Stumpf of Thief River Falls, representing Unit 117 of the American Legion Auxiliary in Thief River Falls, have returned from spending a week at Minnesota Girls State, held June 14-20 at Bethel College in St. Paul. Minnesota Girls State is sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, department of Minnesota.

Karmen Ortloff is the daughter of Irene Ortloff of Thief River Falls. Karmen was elected to serve as a senator and was the chairman of general legislation committee and a member of the veteran affairs committee during Girls State. Jeny Stompf, the daughter of Sen. She also served as sergeant of arms, county and state delegate and was on the rules committee.

Such activities as campaigning for office, forming party platforms, participating in caucuses, electing officials and passing legislation taught the 445 participating girls to learn together and live together as self-governing citizens.

Among those addressing the girls during the week were Mrs. Ward Jeffers, Minneapolis, Department President of the American Legion Auxiliary; Jennifer Niehaus, 1991 Girls State Governor; 1991 Girls Nation Senators, Carol Yeh of Plymouth, and Kellie Rourke of Crystal; Lieutenant Governor Joanell Dyrstad; Representative Harriet McPhearson of District 55B; and Senator Gen Olson, District 43.

Annual Chili cook-off set for July 18 in TRF

Little Brother/Little Sister program in Thief River Falls will sponsor its annual chili cook-off Saturday, July 18, during Western Week on the grounds of the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls.

Area organizations are again being invited to form four to six-person teams to prepare chili for judging and serving to the public.

"Each team will prepare from scratch at least three gallons of its very best chili on site at the grounds of the Best Western, using such secret techniques, rituals and recipes as they desire," stated Bev Rupprecht, coordinator of the Little Brother/ Little Sister program.

"A cadre of official chili cook-off judges—composed of persons of high position, impeccable moral fiber and questionable taste—will monitor the proceedings of the day and judge each team on its chili preparation, taste and appearance," Rupprecht said.

"Costumes, props, theme and even team name will count toward the determination of the winning team, as well as the chili itself. Trophies will be awarded for the first, second and third place teams as the judges see fit and there will also be a People's Choice award for the most popular chili as determined by the crowd that day."

Rupprecht said that a few more prizes will be awarded this year to make the competition even more

NFO seeks to raise milk price through program for $17 milk

Dairy department of the National Farmers Organization (NFO) has announced its 17/90 program designed to raise the price of milk at the producer level to $17 per hundredweight in three years.

Nick Nerheim, director of special projects and Ted Strait, director of training for NFO, said the program is intended to "stairstep" the market up to $17 per hundredweight and stabilize the market once that level is reached.

When NFO controls 20 per cent of the milk volume in the top 21 milk-producing states, it will demand and negotiate for a price of $14.50 per hundredweight, they said. At 30 per cent the price will be placed at $16 per hundredweight and at 40 per cent of the total milk volume producers will receive $17 per hundredweight on at least 90 per cent of their production.

Dairy department director Walt Albers said he believes dairy families could receive $17 per hundredweight on 100 per cent of their production, providing they limit their production to match domestic consumption.

NFO members, dairy staff, field services staff, milk movers and truckers are being recruited to sign up new NFO dairy members, Albers said.

"The dairy industry is consolidating and the best solution to low milk prices is to organize and gain market strength," he added. "With this long-range program, the NFO can put collective bargaining to work for producers and help them get the prices they deserve."

Businesses must report large cash transactions

Any business that receives more than $10,000 in cash in a single transaction or in at least two related transactions must promptly report these payments to the Internal Revenue Service.

People in the real estate business, coin dealers, attorneys, and retailers of such big-ticket items as cars, trucks, boats, jewelry and furs are often affected by this reporting requirement. The business person must obtain the customer's social security number and verify his or her identity by checking a driver's license, passport or similar document.

Form 8300 is used to report these payments and must ordinarily be sent to the IRS' Detroit Computing Center within 15 days after the transaction occurs. Information about cash-paying customers and clients reported on these forms is used by the IRS to investigate the money laundering activities of people involved in drug trafficking and other illegal enterprises.

The IRS asks business people to also report suspicious cash transactions which may be below the $10,000 threshold. The use of multiple money orders or cashiers' checks often indicates a suspicious transaction. Cash purchases in which someone else represents the buyer, or when the buyer asks, for example, that an automobile be listed in the name of a friend or relative, should also be considered suspicious.

Form 8300 and Publication 1544, "Reporting Cash Payments of Over $10,000," can be obtained free from the IRS by calling toll-free 1-800-TAX-FORM (829-3676).

Each team entered will pay a $25 entry fee or sell 20 or more tickets in advance. GOD'S LOVE APPEARS IN THE COOL SHADES OF SUMMER

When springtime flowers disappear,
The sun is bright and skies are clear.
The funtime season now is here,
And temperatures will soar;
Sometimes to record high degrees,
But offset by a gentle breeze
When we are camped beneath the trees.
With happy times in store.
This season comes in greens and blues;
Just right for backyard barbecues.
Or simply taking off our shoes
To walk along the shore.
The lessons of our faith command
That all of us enjoy first hand
This fun-filled season God has planned
When summer comes once more.

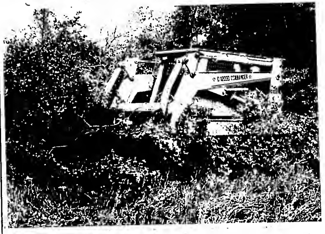
Eighteenth hole on the expanded Thief River Golf club course will be at the end of this fairway which finishes near the present parking area of the clubhouse. Design of the course preserves many of the natural features of the site, including slopes and undulations in the land and most of the oak, ash, basswood and occasional remaining elm trees in the heavily wooded area. The par 36 extension will have two par three and two par five holes.



Getting a full scale test at the site of the addition to the Thief River Golf club course is the Model C-12000 Commander crawler built by Hydra-Mac, inc. in Thief River Falls. Use of the powerful skid steer loader, the largest made by the local company and just recently placed on the market, is a combined donation and testing effort. The equipment is being used to clear underbrush in a number of areas which will be part of the rough on the nine-hole addition.

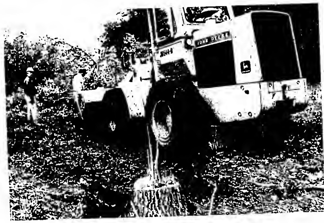
Carving out space for the greens, tee boxes and fairways on the nine-hole extension to the Thief River Golf club course requires the removal of a number of trees on the heavily wooded site. "We will have more trees on some holes in the new addition than on the entire present nine-hole course," stated Dwight Tengquist, who is working with the contractors doing site preparation. In a number of cases changes in original design have been made to preserve desirable natural features, including some exceptionally nice trees. Tengquist said the new nine holes in many ways will be like playing an entirely different course. Hopes are to complete most of the clearing and site preparation this summer.



For a couple of minutes Tuesday afternoon this front end loader had one corner hung up on a stump while moving felled trees at the nine-hole addition being built for the Thief River Golf club course. The operator soon rocked the loader free, however, and was back in business dragging trees to a collection area. Equipment has been at work since earlier this spring in stockpiling fill material for the greens and tee boxes and carving out the addition which will provide area residents and visitors with an attractive and challenging 18-hole course.

Governor Gets 'Thumbs Up' From Snowmobiler

Writing in the Summer 1992 issue of "Minnesota Snowmobiling" magazine, director at large and past president Bill Kullberg of the Minnesota United Snowmobilers association plugs Gov. Arne Carlson's attention to the sport as well as calling attention to some pertinent facts. His column follows:

As part of the "Ups 'N' Downs" panel published Sunday, March 8, 1992, (St. Paul) Pioneer Press editors gave Governor Arne Carlson a Thumbs Down after he "slipped out of town for a snowmobile trip" right after the state's $589 million budget shortfall was announced.

Maybe the editors think the Governor should've spent the weekend doing some public teeth-gnashing or hair-pulling. If he were like some Minnesota politicians, he might've called a press conference to blame the problem on previous administrations.

All of these would amount to the same: Meaningless symbolic acts.

The fact is, the shortfall was visited on the Governor the same as it was on th rest of us in Minnesota. The Governor's presence in the Capitol for the weekend following the debut of the report makes absolutely no difference.

What did make a difference was the Governor's decision to recognize—and learn more about—one of the brighter economic lights shining in Minnesota in these tough times.

It's worth noting, we think, that all U.S. manufacturers of snowmobiles are located in Minnesota. Together, Polaris Industries and Arctco, Inc. manufactured products representing total sales of nearly $450 million in the 1992 model year. Both are robust players in terms of manufacturing in Minnesota.

In today's world, where manufacturing activity is essential to the economic health of every state, these two vital, growing manufacturers are an important part of Minnesota's economic picture. In the face of nationwide recession, both these companies will post gains as a result of their performance in the world marketplace during the season just past.

The snowmobile industry in Minnesota provides hundreds of important manufacturing jobs in Roseau and Thief River Falls, plus thousands more at component vendors, retailers and associated businesses inside the state's borders. These manufacturing-based jobs and their growth represent good news for the Minnesota economy, now and for the future.

Snowmobiling also represents a crucial part of Minnesota's year-round tourism picture. Snowmobilers are Minnesota's single largest category of winter tourists, representing at least $400 million in tourism dollars for the state during the short snow cover season.

Governor Carlson scheduled his first "Governor's Snowmobile Ride" well in advance of the event and he made good on his promise to attend despite a potential for criticism. Along the way, he met with local community leaders in Grand Rapids and Coleraine, visited with area school children and, when the 80-mile public snowmobiling event was over on Friday, February 27th, he spent his Saturday snowmobiling privately with several leaders in the snowmobiling community.

This was a substantive, positive trip in every way. Minnesota is the world leader in snowmobiling and it's an industry worth well over $1 billion to the state's economy annually. Thumbs Up, Arne, for ignoring symbolism and instead paying attention to the things that are really important here in Minnesota.

Wenzel Justified In Being Miffed At Critics

Chairman Steve Wenzel of the Minnesota House Agriculture committee has justification for being miffed at critics who claim his minimum price bill for milk producers doesn't go far enough. In particular he says he was disappointed by the Minnesota Farmers Union's publication of "misleading and inaccurate information" in its newspaper.

"The Farmers Union stated that I offered an amendment to reduce the price that farmers would receive under this bill. This is untrue," Rep. Wenzel states. "I, along with all of the authors and co-authors of the bill, agreed that this compromise was the best course of action to follow in order to prevent a veto."

The legislation which was passed and signed into law sets a floor price of $13.20 per hundredweight for Class I (fluid) milk produced in Minnesota.

"It's true the law is not likely to boost prices when it takes effect August 1 because market prices are expected to be at or above the minimum," he said. "But there will be times when the price falls and the new law will contribute to the income of dairy farmers."

One of those times could have been last spring when prices were 79 cents per hundredweight below the $13.20 figure.

Rep. Wenzel even notes that David Frederickson, president of the Minnesota Farmers Union, offered no assistance nor amendments to strengthen the bill in the Senate while a State Senator, but voted for the very amendment that he is now criticizing.

"I would like to know where all of these people were when I, and the other co-authors of this bill, were working to increase prices for the dairy farmers," Rep. Wenzel said. "They weren't at the Capitol lobbying members of the Legislature. They weren't offering to help head off the threat of a veto. But now they're disappointed that we did not accomplish more.

"It is ironic that following a session where we passed more laws of benefit to dairy farmers than ever before, those of us on the House Agriculture committee who have worked on dairy farmers' behalf are being criticized for not doing more," he concludes.

Such is the lot of the legislator. Praise and credit are infrequently given regardless of how much deserved. Rep. Wenzel must realize that it is easier for people to complain than to work, but we can understand his disappointment at being unfairly criticized and we sympathize with his reaction.

Minneapolis Red Cross

More than 400 families in 10 southwest Minnesota counties were affected by the tornado and storms that ravaged the area on the evening of June 16. Many lost everything they owned. You can help.

Despite the chaotic circumstances, the Red Cross was immediately on the scene. Red Cross volunteers arranged temporary shelters and provided food for victims and emergency workers. Assessment teams trained by the Red Cross determined the extent of the damage. The Red Cross was there for victims who needed urgent medical care. And now there are Red Cross service centers where victims can get additional aid.

The resources of the national Red Cross have been called on to assist in the recovery effort, which may cost Red Cross more than $250,000. Basic necessities such as food, clothing, housing, fuel, cooking and eating utensils, beds and bedding, cleaning supplies, linens, rent, prescription drugs, and more are being provided by the Red Cross to disaster victims, based on verifiable, disaster-caused needs.

Red Cross disaster assistance is extended on a grant basis. No repayment is required or asked for. People affected by disaster are given vouchers to buy items they need from the merchant of their choice. Selecting a favorite color or ensuring proper fit when purchasing clothes might seem minor to the rest of us, but it represents the first small step toward psychological recovery for a disaster victim. By providing this kind of financial assistance, the Red Cross also helps boost the local economy.

All Red Cross disaster assistance is a gift made possible by the voluntary financial contributions of the American people. And yet not since 1889 when Red Cross founder, Clara Barton, grabbed whatever cash was under her mattress and headed for the Johnstown flood has the organization's disaster relief program been in such need. Back-to-back years have broken all records for disasters and depleted the Red cross relief fund. Last year, there were more than 8,000 large-scale disasters and almost 50,000 smaller disasters that garnered little public attention beyond the affected area.

The Red Cross urgently asks that every concerned Minnesotan send a financial contribution for the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund in care of your local Red Cross chapter, or to the American Red cross, PO Box 37243, Washington, D.C. 20013. The toll-free number for charging a donation to a credit card is 1-800-842-2200.

PACTS ABOUT AMERICAN RED CROSS DISASTER SERVICES

- We need people's help. Back-to-back years of record disasters have plunged the Red Cross disaster relief fund into a $30 million deficit.
- To help the victims of more than 55,00 disasters nationwide in fiscal 1989-90, including 6,600 major disasters, the Red Cross spent more than $224 million on disaster relief—the most costly year on record. In fact, the Red Cross has already spent more on disaster relief in the first two years of this decade ($408.6 million), than in the first five years of the 1890s ($389.2 million).
- Fiscal year 1990-91 brought record numbers of devastating—though a few received significant media attention—disasters across this country. More than 8,000 required assistance from the national disaster relief fund, the most in our history. Total cost of disaster relief that year: $184 million.
- 19 out of 20 disaster workers are volunteers. They get paid nothing. Those who are paid are chapter and headquarters staff who continue to receive their regular salary during the duration of their disaster assignment. Red Cross also covers disaster workers' travel, room and board while they are on the disaster assignment.
- To cut costs, the American Red cross eliminated more than 200 positions at its national headquarters in April. Travel budgets have been slashed and a moratorium has been placed on major purchases.
- Red cross chapters across the country annually provide relief and help to the victims of more than 55,000 disasters such as home and apartment fires, transportation accidents, hazardous material spills and localized storms.
- The American Red Cross is the primary voluntary organization that responds and provides relief during a major disaster. Although chartered by Congress, the Red Cross does not depend on government funding to carry out its work.
- All Red Cross disaster relief is free. Every dollar that goes to help a disaster victim is a gift from the American people who know that the Red Cross is a trusted vehicle for their financial contributions. We turn their generosity into round-the-clock disaster relief.

President Roosevelt announced that collections, scheduled to end Tuesday night, would continue through July 10 because of 'disappointing' results in some sections.
